Fascist Troops Flee British Up Dead-End Road

Attack on Cheren, Key to Conquest of Eritrea, Taking Shape.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES NEAR CHEREN, Eritrea, Feb. 5.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The British are preparing to storm the high slopes of Cheren in the belief that its fall would lead inevitably to the capture of Asmara, Eritrea's capital, and then perhaps to the collapse of this oldest of all Italy's African colonies.

It appears that Barentu's hapless garrison, numbering an estimated three and a half brigades, has become a lost garrison with an unhappy future. The Italians sought to slip away Sunday from the circling British, apparently hoping eventually to bring up at Asmara, but they took an unfinished road which ends abruptly in the wild uplands.

Cheren, an important communications center, stands on the watershed between the Baraka and Aineba rivers; dominates the route to Asmara, 42 miles to the southeast, and controls all northern Eritrea from the Red sea coast to the Ethiopian frontier.

Strong Defenses. It is strongly defended, in part by precipitous cliffs, and its escarpment rises 4,000 feet to Asmara, which is reached by a winding road and a railway line.

The attack upon Cheren is assigned to the British left flank; the right is striking for Asmara itself.

British aerial observers reported that the fleeing Fascists, who abandoned much motor transport, appeared to have been hopelessly dispersed.

They were said to be surrendering freely.

British propaganda is operating;

the natives are told by radio and pamphlet of the losses suffered by Italian arms.

Pilot "Takes Town."

Ethiopians in revolt against their Italian conquerors are co-operating with British forces south of Barentu, and mechanized units of Sudanese, led by British officers, have been in the line of fighting in every section on this front.

Captured Italian motor vehicles are aiding the British in supplying the lengthening lines of their forces.

Agordat, seized by the British left flank in the march toward Barentu, actually was first "occupied" by a single British pilot, he reported today. He was forced down by engine trouble last Saturday, he related, and walked into the town fearing to be challenged by Italians any moment. He found instead that the market place was deserted and the town's doors locked. Hearing marching feet, he hid and emerged to welcome the advancing British ground forces.

dish was served with raisin sauce, made of seeded raisins, pineapple juice, brown sugar and corn starch, which was placed between the slices of fried tenderized ham. The colorful platter was garnished with fruits and raisins.

The third entrée on the menu was a fish and rice loaf, of boiled rice, shrimp, thick white sauce and minced parsley. The loaf was served with buttered green beans and garnished with radish roses. A rich potato salad was mixed with celery, chopped bacon, onions, salad dressing, shredded lettuce, tomatoes, deviled eggs and seasoning, and the grilled cheese sandwiches were offered as a complementary dish with the luncheon salad.

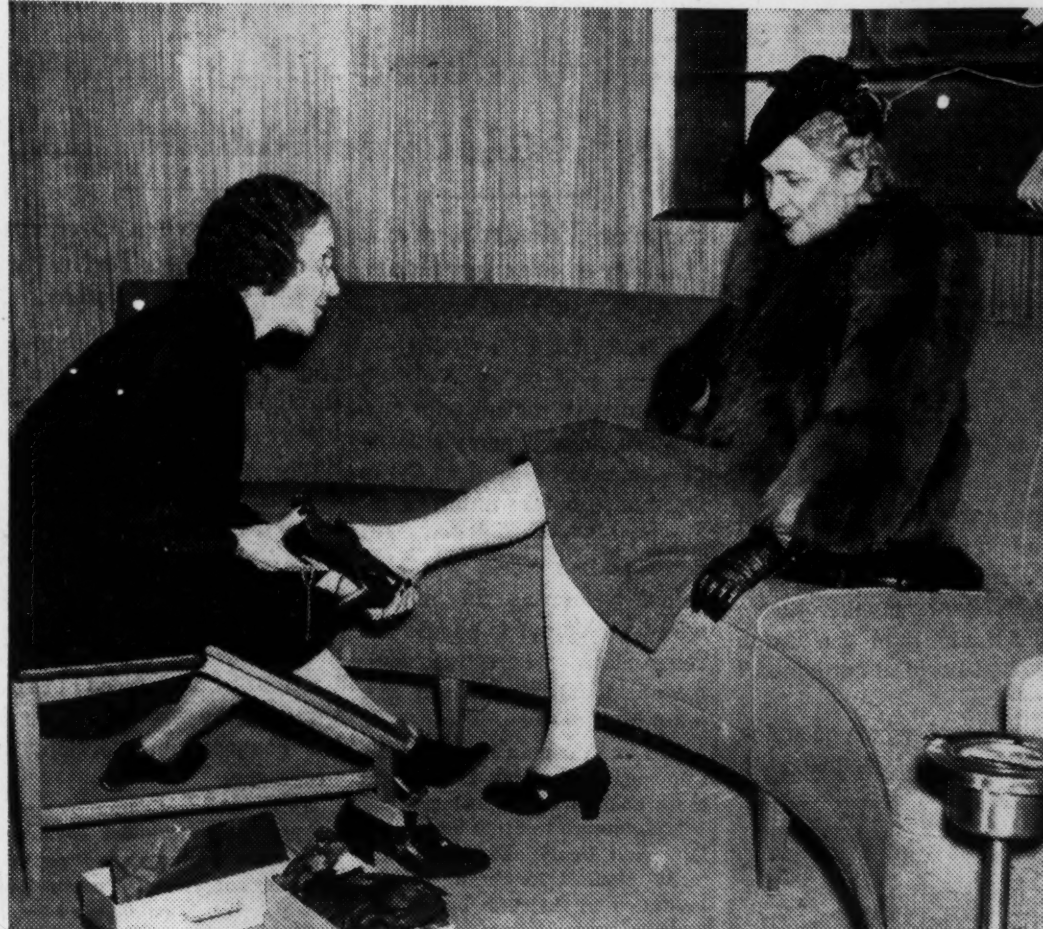

Desserts made at the demonstration were a chocolate chiffon pie, topped with whipped cream and chocolate shot, and bran chocolate chip cookies. Mrs. Baldrige concluded her program with a laundering demonstration and a discussion of easy ironing methods.

The dining room furniture on the stage was from Sterchi's, and the two flower arrangements on the table and sideboard were from Weinstock's. The shoes exhibited on the stage were from Thompson-Boland-Lee, and other firms and products co-operating to make the school the most popular cooking school ever to be held in Atlanta are: Domino Sugar, Northern Paper Mills, Peter Pan Peanut Butter, Derby Foods, National Biscuit Company, Wear-Ever Aluminum Company, Kellogg's All-Bran, Pillsbury's Flour, Lux Toilet Soap, Rinso, Spay, Clorox Chemical Company, Pign Whistle, Sherwin-Williams, Georgia Power Company, Bame's and the Irwindale Dairies.

Leaders Laud New Farmers' Market Here

Officials Say Project 'Will Be Copied Elsewhere in South.'

Agriculture Department representatives from three southern states inspected Atlanta's new farmers' market yesterday and told Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Tom Linder that the project was "a model which would be copied elsewhere in the south" to the benefit of farmers and consumers.

Commissioner Linder took the three men, who are attending a convention here of southern agricultural workers, through the site of the new wholesale market in West End, where construction is well under way.

W. Kerr Scott, North Carolina commissioner of agriculture and chairman of a marketing committee for the association meeting in Atlanta, told Linder that "Georgia is pioneering in the establishment of marketing facilities that will unquestionably return substantial dividends to farmers of the state of Georgia and offer unusual marketing facilities to farmers in adjoining states."

F. W. Risher, representing the Florida commissioner, said that Florida was vitally interested in the Atlanta market both as an outlet for her fruits but also as a center to purchase wholesale vegetables for distribution within her own borders.

Justin Wilson, of the marketing division of the Louisiana agricultural department, said that the national defense program required large wholesale markets, such as the state is building in Atlanta, to feed the army camps. He said that his state planned to pattern markets after the local one.

New Japanese Envoy Sure of Peace With U.S.

Admiral Nomura Confident Problems Can Be Settled Amicably.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—(AP) Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, radiating confidence that the United States and Japan would remain at peace, arrived to the welcome of high military officials today en route to his new post as Japanese ambassador at Washington.

Aboard the Kamakura Maru, escorted to the Golden Gate by two United States destroyers, the admiral returned a smiling "no" to all questions as to whether he believed war with Japan a possibility and said in a prepared statement:

"There is no question whatsoever outstanding between the two countries which cannot be settled in an amicable and satisfactory manner through a timely display of statesmanship by the responsible people on both sides."

The genial, 64-year-old admiral, until recently Japanese minister of foreign affairs, said he was "very glad to have come again to the United States—a country I have known since 1899."

Armed Patrolmen Cause Excitement

Two State Highway patrolmen, guns in their hands, strode briskly into State Treasurer George B. Hamilton's office yesterday and gaping corridor crowds came running.

In the minds of some flashed the thought that Governor Talmadge might be ousting Hamilton, as he did in 1936.

The state treasurer quickly quelled the excitement, however, by explaining he had called the troopers to escort the assistant treasurer, Horace B. Hixon, to a downtown bank to exchange $20,000 in small bills for notes of a larger denomination.

Leon Reynolds, 30, Dies in Accident

Leon Reynolds, 30, a painter, of 212 Ware avenue, East Point, was killed yesterday afternoon when the car in which he was riding with his father, W. J. Reynolds, overturned at East Princeton and Washington streets, College Park, after sideswiping another car, police reported.

The death was College Park's first traffic fatality of the year. Reynolds was dead on arrival at Grady hospital.

He is survived by his parents, M. and Mrs. W. J. Reynolds; a son, Mickey, and a sister, Mrs. Hewlett Smith.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

Laugh Instead Of Titter, Webb Tells Women

Certain Matinee Patrons Irk 'Man Who Came to Dinner.'

By LEE ROGERS.

Lean Mr. Clifton Webb, who portrays a character purported to be fat and acid Mr. Alexander Woolcott in Messrs. Kaufman and Hart's "The Man Who Came to Dinner," discussed briefly in mildly biting, but good-natured tones, the sanctimonious women who titter when they ought to laugh at matinees.

Mr. Webb's lines are on the raw and racy side, designed to produce belly laughs in the intimacy of the legitimate theater and he thinks he's good enough an actor to keep them on the right side of decency.

Mr. Webb was in the process of removing his grease paint and changing clothes after the matinee performance at the Erlanger yesterday afternoon when he was interviewed. He was very friendly, good-looking, with bits of gray touching the waves of his hair, but very, very tired.

"The dear women at these matinee performances are so afraid someone will see them laughing at a racy line and start gossip that they sit so utterly emotionless it's trying on the actor's nerves," Mr. Webb explained. "That audience Wednesday night here in Atlanta was wonderful. They seemed to get every line, every hidden meaning and they responded with roaring laughs. They were a good audience."

Laughing Up Sleeves. "But this afternoon the ladies were laughing up their sleeves, barely tittering if at all, sitting there so sanctimoniously they miss all the fun of a really clever play—all because they fear someone will comment about them laughing. Such a play needs men in the audience."

Three companies are now play-

MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER—Clifton Webb, friendly and likeable portrayer of acid-tongued Alexander Woolcott in the play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," at the Erlanger yesterday and Wednesday, is shown with Earnest, his dog, named from the play, "Importance of Being Earnest." Webb confirmed Woolcott was the inspiration for the comedy.

ing "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Monte Woolley, rotund of body, plays Mr. Woolcott in the Broadway version; tall and slim Mr. Webb has the job in this road company, and the gentleman in question is now playing himself in Baltimore. Each has his own mannerism of interpreting the lines and quite modestly Mr. Webb thinks his is the best.

He has a very definite scheme for proving it. His suggestion is—and it's been tentatively accepted by the authors and producers—to have a gala Broadway rendition of the play on Wednesday and Thursday; and Woolcott performing on Friday and Saturday.

"That way the people could come to see whomever they wanted perform it," Mr. Webb remarked.

An Act for Each. "I suggested a grand opening with Woolcott playing the first act; Monte the second and me the last. Of course that would be simply frightful on the cast—we play so widely different roles—but I think the people would love it."

Sally McMorow, one of the leading women in the cast, arrived in town yesterday to rejoin the company. She has been out for about three weeks following an appendectomy in London, Ont. However, she won't take her part again until next week.

Webb revealed they wanted his company to return to Canada. He thinks they won't go.

"It's a fine thing to be patriotic, but there is a limit. I lose money on the dollar exchange up there and they get me for Canadian income tax, too."

Britain Pleads For Aid Bill's Quick Passage

War Is Costing Empire $42,000,000 Daily, Parliament Told.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(UP)—A plea came from the British parliament today for prompt passage of President Roosevelt's lend-lease bill, as it was revealed that the war is costing Britain more than $42,000,000 a day and new appropriations totaling $6,400,000,000 were voted.

Pethwick Lawrence, former financial secretary of the treasury, told the house of commons that the United States cash-and-carry principle had been a drain on Britain's resources, but that passage of the lend-lease bill would provide relief, "at any rate for a time."

"I am sure I am expressing in behalf of every member of the house and the whole country our deep sense of gratitude for the generosity of the (lend-lease) proposal," Lawrence said. "We hope that the very generous attitude of the President will find expression in congress by carrying that bill through."

Lawrence spoke after Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, had disclosed Britain's staggering war costs and had asked supplementary appropriations of 600,000,000 British pounds ($2,400,000,000) to meet expenses for the balance of the fiscal year ending March 31 and 1,000,000,000 pounds ($4,000,000,000) to begin the 1941-42 fiscal year.

Commons approved the appropriations without a record vote. The chancellor's figures showed the government's expenditures were more than half the total national income.

Sir Kingsley minimized the danger of inflation, which he said the government was watching closely, but warned the British public, already bowed down under crushing taxes, of "still heavier burdens and sacrifices" in the future.

The British tax burden already is such as to make an American gasp. The normal income tax is 42½ per cent on income above exemptions, which are small. The excess profits tax is 100 per cent.

The "purchase tax" on many commodities, including clothing and household goods, is 33½ per cent, on other more essential items it is 16.2-3 per cent. Estate duties range up to 65 per cent. Tobacco and liquors are taxed almost 100 per cent.

The daily expenditure of $42,000,000 disclosed by the chancellor did not include ordinary government expenses, which add another $7,000,000 a day. Sir Kingsley said the present war was by far the most costly in British history.

The chancellor's warning that taxes would be increased in the next budget late in March recognized the growing criticism and demands by economists and financial circles for a sounder financing of the war. The demand of the people for sounder financing is running ahead of the government, the same as a demand for greater production efficiency.

It is estimated that the deficit for the fiscal year ending March 31 will be 2,500,000,000 pounds ($10,000,000,000). Taxes and borrowing are falling far short of

Willkie Lands In Africa, Long Sea Hop Next

Due To Start 3,120-Mile Atlantic Flight to Trinidad Today.

BOLAMA, Portuguese Guinea, Feb. 6.—(P)—The Dixie Clipper, bearing Wendell L. Willkie, landed here at 3:48 p. m. (10:48 a. m. Atlanta time) today, completing the first leg of a pioneer flight over a new course between Lisbon and New York.

The plane left Lisbon last midnight and will start the second and longest hop of the course—3,120 miles—to British Trinidad tomorrow.

From there, the route goes to Puerto Rico; thence to New York, where Willkie is due sometime Sunday.

Thus Willkie might get a chance at least to see the lion of the lions he expressed a desire to shoot earlier today when he was apprised at Lisbon of the Portuguese Guinea governor's invitation to go hunting.

"I wouldn't mind killing a couple of lions . . . tearing them limb from limb," Willkie grinned.

Bridging this gap, which, thus far, has been controlled partially by the liquidation of dollar assets, proceeds from the sale of gold and increases in the floating debt.

Georgians Given Naval Promotions

Why Wear-Ever was chosen by the Constitution Cooking School

How a recipe turns out depends a lot on the utensil in which it's cooked. For best results, the cooking school uses and endorses Wear-Ever Aluminum Utensils. There are four reasons for the choice:

1. Aluminum is friendly to food. Preserves flavor, color and nutritional values.
2. Aluminum heats evenly. No hot spots, less chance of burning or scorching food.
3. Aluminum heats quickly. Saves time and fuel.
4. Aluminum is light and easy to handle, yet strong and long wearing.

For over 40 years Wear-Ever has meant "Aluminum at its best." Modern Wear-Ever Utensils are most attractive, easy to clean, convenient to use. Made of thick, hard sheet Aluminum to wear for years.

SEE THIS FRY PAN DEMONSTRATED
This deep, thick Aluminum fry pan is one of many Wear-Ever Utensils that will be demonstrated at the Cooking School. It has a genuine Bakelite handle that will stay cool. Fries foods deliciously, browns evenly.

Road Advertising Hearing Sought

Representative Paul Etheridge Jr., of Fulton county, yesterday called for a public hearing on a bill to regulate outdoor advertising along public highways.

The committee on public highways No. 2 reported the bill unfavorably, but Etheridge immediately asked unanimous consent for it to be recommitted to the committee for a hearing. This was granted.

His bill calls for regulation of advertising by the State Highway Board and the creation of a licensing system for firms or individuals who wish to place advertisements along the highways.

Winant Began Varied Career As Teacher

Activity Contradicts Notions About Politics and People.

By GLADWIN HILL.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 6.—(P)—When John G. Winant was first mentioned as the possible ambassador to Britain, many people couldn't have told you whether the name represented an Australian tennis star or a new variety of apple.

The main exceptions to this would be citizens of New Hampshire, which Winant served three terms as governor; habitual readers of dispatches from Geneva, Switzerland, where Winant directed the international labor office; and people who could remember back to the first director of the Social Security administration.

Yet for many years Winant has been pursuing one of the most remarkable careers in American politics.

Tall and dark, with a stern face and piercing eyes but a winning smile and a friendly, firm handshake, he is a striking contradiction of many notions, true or fallacious, that have been bandied around about people and politics for decades.

Some of these are: That all school teachers are people who couldn't make a living any other way;

That what is the matter with this country is that people of means never take any interest in public affairs;

That government is monopolized by professional politicians instead of experts in public service;

That rich people can't get labor's viewpoint;

And that New Englanders are invariably chilly in demeanor and provincial in outlook.

Began As Teacher.
Winant began his career as a school teacher and subsequently demonstrated unusual ability in many lines. A man of large private means, he has devoted the better part of his career to public affairs, commercial interests, he has displayed solicitude for labor.

And, a New Englander in upbringing and appearance, Winant administered two far-flung, cosmopolitan projects—the League of Nations' labor division and the social security program—with sufficient finesse and warmth to bring him into consideration for an important diplomatic assignment.

Winant's inconspicuous rise might seem to indicate him as the slow-and-steady type. Actually he is a much rarer breed: the fast-and-steady. Thorough about everything he does, Winant nevertheless has seldom followed one activity long because he usually was impelled quickly on to something bigger.

Born in New York.
Born in New York, the son of a real estate man who soon afterward moved to rural Concord, Winant went to St. Paul's school, a rather select Episcopal institution here, and returned, after graduation from Princeton, as an instructor in history.

His pedagogic career was hardly started, however, before he got himself elected to the New Hampshire legislature. He left this, in turn, before the completion of his first term, to serve in the World War Air Corps, enlisting as a private and emerging as a captain.

Winant then married Constance Riving Russell, daughter of a New York banker, and returned to St. Paul's as assistant principal, but left again for politics.

After three terms in the state legislature, divided between the state senate and the house, during which he did post-graduate study in government problems at Princeton and Dartmouth, Winant beat the Democratic incumbent for governor in 1925. At the end of his term he returned to private life.

Varied Interests.
He had important interests in a Texas oil company; a California ranch; a dairy, a fruit farm, a real estate company and a gypsum company in New Hampshire; and owned stock in Concord's two newspapers, the Monitor and the Patriot—all of which he has since given up, retaining no commercial interests except his private investments, which are managed by a business office he maintains in Concord.

Probably the most remarkable single aspect of Winant's career has been his feat of bridging the gap between Republican and Democratic party views.

Winant, classified as a "Liberal Republican," plumped for better wages, hours and working conditions for labor back in the boom days of the '20s. And when he was re-elected Governor of New Hampshire on the Republican ticket for two more terms in 1931 and 1933, he introduced a state "New Deal."

Labor Interests.
In 1935 he became assistant director of the labor office in Geneva, with the vast job of coordinating international efforts at coping with such problems as unemployment, standards for women workers, hours of coal miners and workmen's compensation, among the principal states of the world.

President Roosevelt called him to head the Social Security Administration. Winant resigned during the presidential campaign of 1936 to reply to attacks on the social security program.

Then he became head of the labor office, which moved this year, under his supervision, from Geneva to McGill University at Montreal.

The most frequent theme of his statements from this office in recent months has been that the international armament race, by drawing on national incomes, would inevitably raise prices and lower living standards.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Psychiatrists Ready To Foil Draft Dodgers

Doctors Close Two-Day Parley With Freudian Methods' Discussion.

Malingers, those who feign illness to keep out of Uncle Sam's army, will be up against a tough problem in dealing with medical officials of the draft, who, besides being competent physical examiners, will be experts at the business of deciding as to the mental and emotional characteristics of prospective soldiers.

By studying family histories, mannerisms, attitudes, and general physical make-up, they hope to be able to predict in advance whether a man would be a disciplinary problem, becoming hysterical in combat, or whether he would bolster the morale of his associates.

Freudian methods of probing beneath the surface of human behavior were discussed here yesterday as army psychiatrists and draft physicians closed their two-day meeting.

If a man is constantly fatigued, irritable, curses around the house, he would be a neurotic case, it was pointed out. If he thinks he is persecuted, has hallucinations, he would fall in the paranoid class. If he had a confused personality—psychoneuroses—he would be likely to "crack" in time of stress.

These facts were brought out by Dr. Theodore Waters, of the Tulane University School of Medicine, who spoke yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan, adviser to the selective service headquarters in Washington, closed the seminar by declaring that psychiatry is now the "front line" of medical science in the army. He said: "I feel we should organize our methods for a tremendous burden that we may face in the very near future."

very moment, something went fatally wrong, for hours later the wreckage of the plane was sighted from aloft.

Snow was falling thinly at the time the plane fell, but men at the Armstrong airport reported that the weather was not unfavorable.

A rescue party aided by snow shovels traveled by truck to the wreckage, but it was slow going because of the great drifts piled up in the seldom-used road.

In the crash of the bomber, fire from the big four-motor ship consumed sagebrush for 100 yards around the wreckage.

A watch found at the scene had stopped at 9:40. The last message received from the plane was at 9:30 a. m., reporting the craft 50 miles east of Reno.

The weather was not particularly bad; there had been a few showers and the sky was overcast.

Darlan in Paris For Showdown

VICHY, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Armed with a threat to send the formidable fleet to Africa beyond Germany's reach, Admiral Francois Darlan arrived in Paris tonight to seek a compromise on Nazi-supported demands which would install Pierre Laval as virtual dictator of France.

The French navy minister and chief confidant of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain reached Paris shortly before 7 p. m. bearing an offer from the 84-year-old marshal which would make Darlan premier and restore the olive-skinned Laval to his former post of vice premier.

Under the proposed compromise Petain would surrender to Darlan his direct control of the government, remaining only as titular chief of state, and Laval would be brought back into the Vichy regime in a secondary role.

There was belief in many quarters that Laval, a shrewd bargainer, would reject the proposal and that in the end he might succeed in obtaining the post of foreign minister which Petain would give to Darlan.

Help Defense With Pipelines, President Asks

from Port St. Joe, Fla., to Chattanooga, Tenn., was blocked when the railroads refused to permit the line to cross the railroads, Smith said.

He pointed out, however, that the line is in operation from Port St. Joe to Bainbridge and all of the right of way to Chattanooga—except 25 miles—is owned by the pipeline company, but it cannot be completed until construction is permitted to cross railroads.

The Georgia legislature, in 1937, gave the pipeline company the right of eminent domain, Smith said, but due to a technical defect in the law, the supreme court upheld the contention of the railroads when the case went to court.

However, he said, a new bill has been introduced in the house—House Bill No. 41—which will correct this defect.

A. B. Conger, spokesman for railroads in Georgia, issued the following statement in reply to the letter:

"All that the President suggests in his letter is that a study of the oil and gasoline transportation facilities of the Atlantic seaboard section be made. The railroads, their employees and friends will welcome such a study."

"If the President is interested only in the Atlantic seaboard area, as a probable supply base for the Navy, then the situation has no bearing on the proposed gasoline pipeline in Georgia, for the Southeastern pipeline does not go near the Atlantic seaboard and would be of no service in that respect."

"If the President, however, wishes a study of the entire southeastern interior in relation to this question, such study will disclose that the railroads are amply able to take care of any and all government needs for gas or oil."

"As a matter of fact, the 1939 purchases of the government in the United States were 12,000,472 barrels of gasoline, oil and fuel oil for the Army, Navy and Coast Guard. This amount was only 2.7 per cent of the total national consumption. If an emergency should arise, the railroads could, by giving preference to government needs, handle 10 times the normal government requirements by using only one-fourth of the available tank-car facilities, for there was a daily average of 8,526 tank cars idle during a period of 21 months prior to last November 1, the last date figures were available."

Greek Plane Offer Not Exactly Free

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—It developed today that the 30 Grumman fighting planes the Navy has offered to Greece would not be cost free, if accepted.

In clarification of the situation, Secretary Knox said today that by "give" he had meant the Navy would not be paid directly for the planes. He explained that they could be made available for the Greeks by the Navy's trading them in on new planes.

Purchase of the planes, the secretary said, would then be a straight financial transaction between the commercial firm accepting the planes on trade-in and the Greek government.

Defense Loan Chief Outlines Duty of Banks

Institutions Told They Must Absorb Shock of War Adjustment.

Banks of the country, by exercising sound business judgment, can relieve to a great extent the post-defense shock to the country's economic system resulting from the war, John Snyder, chief of the defense loan division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said here last night.

He said banks, by careful and conservative measures, could cushion the economic impact "which is almost certain to result when the time comes for the reversion of our industry into the channels of peacetime activity."

The RFC spokesman, addressing the annual meeting of the Atlanta Freight Bureau, said "pressure of future events" may compel the sacrifice of certain privileges which have become associated with our concepts of freedom—but such will be only the legitimate means to a vital end."

E. L. Hart, secretary and traffic manager of the organization, in his annual report said the 76th

Congress considered more bills affecting transportation than any other Congress in recent years.

J. R. Bachman is president of the bureau, and H. S. Collinsworth is treasurer.

Other speakers were John W. Barriger, chief of the railroad division of the RFC, and Chief Justice Charles Reid of the Georgia supreme court.

Directors, who will name the officers for the coming year, were elected at the meeting. They are: J. R. Bachman, Charles Manley Brown, Herbert E. Choate, D. E. Clark, Robert A. Clark, H. S. Collinsworth, John M. Cooper, J. J. Doran, W. E. DuPre, Tate L. Earnest, Charles F. Evans, Sig. Guthman, Arthur Harris Jr., L. A. Hirschberg, Bolling Jones Jr., F. A. Jordan, H. L. Litchfield, J. W. $250 Reward Is Sought For Charles E. Martin

Solicitor General Roy Leathers, of the Stone Mountain circuit, and DeKalb County Police Chief J. T. Dailey yesterday called upon Governor Talmadge to offer "the usual reward" of $250 for information leading to the arrest of Charles E. Martin Jr., 25, named by a coroner's jury as the slayer of his pretty young wife, Dorothy, last Monday night.

Martin, object of a manhunt since his wife was found dying of knife wounds on a quiet Kirkwood street, is believed still to be hiding in the Atlanta area.

Green Will Be Here for Labor Union Meeting

Ramspeck, LeCraw Also To Speak at Birthday Dinner.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will come to Atlanta tomorrow to attend the 50th anniversary dinner of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, Albert Gossett, president of the federation, announced last night.

Green will arrive in Atlanta at 8:35 and at 11 o'clock will confer with members of the executive board of the Atlanta Federation.

The anniversary event will be held at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the Ansley hotel and more than 500 members of the organization are expected to attend.

Other speakers will include Congressman Ramspeck and Mayor LeCraw.

Founded January 24, 1891, the federation has grown from a membership of approximately 200 in five locals to more than 20,000 in 95 locals, Gossett said.

posed legislation in the general assembly to insure right of work on tax-supported projects without any exaction of fee.
5. Visit of a delegation of hospital carpenters to the capitol to congratulate Senator Edwards. They were told to hold to their jobs and were assured of backing from legislators.

Text of Announcement.
The text of the notice calling "Notice to All Carpenters: 'Carpenters on all shifts will report to work Friday, February 7, as usual, whether or not they have affiliated with AFL Union, Local No. 225.'"

"The time limit set for closed shop operation has not been extended but further organization will be done gradually and all replacement men must be qualified by the union before being hired."

"Griffin Construction Company, Inc., and McDougall Construction Company."

By CARROLL GRIFFIN, General Manager.
"This notice to be prominently posted."

It was forecast by Major W. E. Weghorst, constructing quartermaster, that no interruption of work would ensue.
"We sent Sorrells word not to stop operations," said the officer, "and he replied that he wouldn't."

No Figures Given.
Sorrells' office adjoining the employment office at Camp Gordon had a cluster of men about it, but he refused to make public any membership figures.

On the other hand, Garland said his organization had started with 200 members and had been signing others all day at its own office on the hospital reservation. He said Dale Savage had been made president and Owsley Langley secretary-treasurer. Both are employed on the hospital.

When told that Garland expected to obtain a majority of the 1,100 workers, and thus become the legal bargaining agent, instead of the $50 membership AFL union, Sorrells told a Constitution reporter:

"I can run the job up to 2,000 men if I want to. It can handle that many."

Sorrells accused the press of "burning me up" and declared he would make no further statement for publication beyond vehemently paying his respects to Edwards and urging him to come to Camp Gordon, and to deny that he was a Communist.

Charles Barnard, supervising constructing quartermaster in charge of the hospital, was to arrive during the night from Washington, but he was said to be merely on a routine inspection tour.

Thirty carpenters, dressed in overalls, went to the capitol yesterday morning direct from Camp Gordon and congratulated Senator Edwards on his bill designed to end charging fees for the privilege of working on federal projects. Public hearings on the bill will be held next week, it was announced by Senator J. H. Clark, chairman of the committee on the state of the republic, to which it was referred.

Right to Work.
In the house Representatives Perry L. Pittman, of Berrien, and E. E. Yawn, of Dodge, introduced a resolution asking that citizens be given the right to work in the defense of their nation without having to pay tribute to any private organization. The resolution was ing troops in southeastern states to depots located in various parts of the country, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Jeffersonville and Chicago."

Since discontinuance of the old depot, Colonel Holland pointed out, each succeeding corps area commander has contended to the War Department that the system of supplying troops within the corps area was unsatisfactory and urged re-establishment of a general depot here.

"The War Department in October, 1940, authorized the establishment of a quartermaster depot at Fort McPherson, to be known as Fourth Corps Area quartermaster depot, under control of the corps area commander," said the Colonel.

3 Warehouses Used.
In November, 1940, three warehouses at Fort McPherson were set aside for use and another 30,000 square feet of floor space in the post's quartermaster warehouses was assigned for depot use, said the Colonel. This gave the referred to the committee on industrial relations.

Yawn referred to the "union racket" as a "monster—a cancer eating from within." He said he went to Hinesville and obtained first-hand information concerning fees paid to the unions by members of unions.

"Why they are collecting enough money in Georgia to build an army camp of their own," he asserted. "It is time for us to say something—to express an opinion."

Defends Labor.
Representative Frank McNall, Chatham county railroad man, who said he had held a union card more than 30 years, came to the defense of labor, charging:

"Newspapers and syndicated columns are making a national effort to tear down labor. They are printing only one side of this question and that the blackest side they can find."

"They are doing this because labor has found it possible to organize under the present party—the New Deal—and President Roosevelt."

Labor has raised the standard of living, workmen can buy a change of clothes, and still have enough money left to buy your farmers' produce. That's something you couldn't do on a dollar and a half a day."

McNall charged that the contractors, not labor, are to blame for conditions criticized at defense projects.

"Contractors are hiring men who can't drive a nail or saw a straight line, and paying them $1.25 an hour when they aren't worth 50 cents a day if they were paid on merit. Contractors don't care who they hire. They are taking government funds, your money, on a cost plus basis. That's why they pay unskilled labor $1.25 an hour—to get their cost plus percentage."

Representative Cicero Kendrick, of Fulton, holder of a printers' union card, declared:

"When President Roosevelt asks longer hours, labor will work those longer hours without complaint."

A bill similar to the one introduced in the senate by Helibert Edwards was introduced and referred to the committee on industrial relations.
Representatives Ford and Jones, of Worth, introduced a resolution urging the members of the Georgia delegation in congress to "take an active part in formulating and strengthening laws to prevent strikes in vital defense plants."

depot a total of 97,000 square feet of floor space.

An authorization was also made of three officers and 38 civilian employees, clerks, storekeepers, a carpenter, and laborers, to start operation of the depot.

"When the depot was first started at Fort McPherson," went on the Colonel, "its mission was to carry a 60-day maintenance allowance of practically all quartermaster corps stock items for 50,000 troops stationed in the Fourth Corps Area."

Leased Office Space.
"On September 1, 1940, we leased 15,000 square feet of office space and 550,000 square feet of warehouse space in the present plant. We moved in as quickly as possible. This space was needed to supply the needs of between 300,000 and 400,000 troops in the area under the national defense program."

"From time to time we have taken over additional space in the plant. By January of this year, we had possession of the entire plant, consisting of 27,000 square feet of office space and 1,057,000 square feet of warehouse space and 275,000 square feet of shed space."

As compared with seven officers and approximately 50 regular civilian employees when the depot moved into the Candler plant, the depot personnel now consists of seven regular army officers, 28 reserve officers and approximately 1,000 civilian employees.

The civilian pay roll for January amounted to $92,252. This, Colonel Holland pointed out, is at the rate of $1,107,024 a year.

"I anticipate that by July 1, this year, we shall give work to approximately 1,500 civilians and our pay roll will run as high as $2,100,000 a year," said Colonel Holland.

The plant maintains a well-equipped laboratory, to see that the substance which Uncle Sam buys to feed his soldiers is chemically pure and meets specifications under which it is bought.

For the inspection of clothing and miscellaneous supplies, a corps of approximately 75 inspectors is employed.

Auto Repair Parts.

"Another interesting feature is that we have been assigned the huge task of supplying all automotive parts and equipment to service all recent models of motor vehicles used by the army in this corps area," said Colonel Holland.

"These supplies alone occupy 166,000 square feet of floor space." The Atlanta quartermaster depot will not last long, however, because it will soon past into a larger picture. The army recently acquired 1,500 acres of land nine miles southeast of Atlanta, near Conley, Ga., on the Macon highway.

This is the site for a new depot which will be known as the Atlanta General Depot. The new depot will not only store and issue quartermaster supplies, but those pertaining to the medical department, signal corps, the chemical warfare service and the engineer corps.

Construction Started.

Construction of the new depot was started within the past month and will be completed within a year, at a cost of $15,000,000. When completed it will be largest of its kind in the United States.

The plant will consist of an administrative building, approximately 20 warehouses, containing 2,000,000 square feet of floor space; heating plant, utilities shops and be provided with an enormous amount of railroad trackage within the reservation.

February 1, Colonel Holland disclosed, the War Department removed the depot from the jurisdiction of the commanding general, Fourth Corps Area, and placed it under direct control of the quartermaster general.

Asked about employment at the plant, Colonel Holland said:

Civil Service Jobs.

"All should understand that all positions at this depot are civil service positions and that appointments are made by selection from lists of eligibles furnished by the district manager of the Civil Service Commission.

"For a person to get his name on the eligible list, he must take and pass an examination prescribed by the Civil Service Commission for the job being sought."

Colonel Holland also revealed that the plant is well guarded, as on a wartime basis. There is an officer of the day and passes are necessary to get in and out of the plant. Guards are posted at strategic points on a 24-hour basis.

PLAYS TONIGHT—Yehudi Menuhin, violin virtuoso, will play on the All-Star concert series at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the auditorium.

Menuhin Here Today To Play In Auditorium

Violin Virtuoso To Appear Before Sold-Out House Tonight.

Yehudi Menuhin, virtuoso of the violin, will arrive early this morning for his concert on the All-Star Concert Series under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Club at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the city auditorium.

He plans to spend the day in quiet relaxation, a little practicing and some attention to his correspondence. The auditorium for this concert is practically a "sold-out house."

Menuhin and the Atlanta committee have selected a program varied in its interest. It will open with the "Sonata in G Minor," known as the "Devil's Trill" by Tartini-Kreisler, followed by "Sonata in G Minor," for violin alone, Bach. The Paganini "Concerto in D Major," "Allegro Maestoso," the cadenza by Emile Sauer (Urtext Edition to Commemorate the Centenary of Paganini) will open the second half of the program.

He will conclude with the group, "Negro Spiritual Melody" from "The Largo" of the "New World Symphony," Dvorak-Kreisler; "La Chasse," Kreisler; "Caprice Viennois," Kreisler; "La Fille aux cheveux de lin," Debussy-Hartmann, and "Caprice Basque," Sarasate.

With the conclusion of this season's concert tour, Menuhin plans to retire for a season. He will spend the time with his wife and children at their ranch "Alma," near the home of his parents in Los Gatos in the Santa Cruz mountains.

Barty Funmakers On Decatur Stage

Billy Barty and his company of Hollywood Funmakers will appear on the Decatur theater stage today and tomorrow, matinee and night, in the revue "Rhythm in Youth."

Billy was Mickey Rooney's pal in the 65 comedies which they made together and when Mickey was known as Mickey McGuire. Billy has played in many features, some of which are "Nothing Sacred," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Alice in Wonderland," and "Goldiggers."

Featured in "Rhythm in Youth" are Billy's musical sister, Evelyn and Dolores; Audrey Dennison, Paramount specialty dancer; Robert Driscoll, master of ceremonies, and a chorus.

The man who can perfectly paint anything but your wife's lips carries his ad in the Business Service column in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Singers Face Death Penalty In Rumania

Sima Reported Plotting New Revolt; Antonescu Names Successor.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 6.—(P)—Rumanian Premier Ion Antonescu struck at the rebellious Iron Guard with startling death penalty decrees today as rumors spread that Horia Sima was plotting a new insurrection as a fugitive.

Altogether 20 crimes were made punishable by death, including even writing anti-government articles, drawing anti-government cartoons, or singing political songs. Thousands of soldiers, armed with submachineguns and escorted by tanks, hunted Sima. Every dwelling of the capital was searched from cellar to attic.

Antonescu apparently was convinced that any fresh outbreak would include another attempt at his assassination, for he was reported to have designated one of Rumania's outstanding army leaders to succeed him in event of his death. The name of the general was kept secret.

Antonescu ordered the most drastic criminal code in Rumanian history in providing the death penalty also for persons hiding the revolt leader, helping him escape from the country or failing to inform authorities of a plot and for any civilian found with arms or explosives, or permitting a sniper to fire from his windows.

From one to five years' imprisonment was provided for parents whose children are convicted of crimes. (In the Iron Guard revolt, one machinegun was manned by a 12-year-old boy.)

The decrees were directed with special rigor at Communists, Jews and persons of non-Rumanian origin. Prison terms were ordered doubled for them.

Tax To Advertise State Is Proposed

Representative Jack Williams, of Ware, proposed a constitutional amendment yesterday which would authorize a tax to advertise Georgia.

The proposal, if approved by the general assembly, would be submitted to the voters of the state in the June general election. It would permit the general assembly, counties, cities and other municipalities to levy taxes for advertising intended to promote agriculture, industry, historical and tourist interests of the state.

Atlanta Drive To Aid Greece Begins Today

Star-Studded Broadcast Will Feature National Effort.

The Atlanta chapter of the Greek War Relief Association will open headquarters today in the Georgian Terrace hotel to launch the local movement in the national effort to raise $10,000,000 to aid the Grecian cause, George Moore, president of the chapter, announced yesterday. Moore said anyone interested in the work of aiding Greece would be welcome at any time. He added that a steering committee is now being chosen from among the business, civic, cultural and educational and religious leaders of Atlanta. An outstanding feature of the help-Greece drive from a national standpoint will be a nationwide radio broadcast Saturday night from Hollywood, which will feature the largest group of radio and motion picture celebrities ever gathered on any single show, according to Moore.

This program will run an hour and a half, from 10:15 to 11:45 o'clock Saturday night. In Atlanta, Station WATL will carry the entire program, broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting Company.

Station WSB will carry the last half of the program from 11 to 11:45 o'clock, as sent out by the National Broadcasting Company.

Among the stars participating will be Bette Davis, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Fannie Brice and Hanley Stafford, Alice Faye, Clark Gable, Ronald Coleman, Charles Laughton, Myrna ANGEL NOW—Katharine Hepburn a year ago was called "box office poison" by the theater managers of the nation. Today she is their "box office angel," for her "Philadelphia Story" is cleaning up the money. It has been held at the Grand for another week.

Loy, Mary Martin, Paul Muni, Spencer Tracy, Robert Young, Groucho Marx, James Stewart, "Rochester," and others.

Burial Insurance Bill Introduced by Whaley

A bill to regulate the operation of fraternal benefit societies and burial insurance organizations was introduced in the senate by Senator Whaley, of the 45th. The bill seeks to require all organizations engaged in burial insurance to be chartered by the State Insurance Commissioner, make quarterly reports to him and to post a $1,000 bond.

2 New Films Make Bows on Screens Here

Pair of Hit Pictures Are Held Over; Opening Dates Juggled.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

Atlanta's opening dates for the new movies got juggled this week, confusing even film editors as to what was playing when and where.

Especially confusing was it to us who have been out of town in Miami a few days for the world premiere of Universal's "Back Street," a fine motion picture which will probably be a great hit with the women. But here's the current screen entertainment lineup.

"Virginia," a technicolor film, is playing at the Fox theater and introducing Stirling Hayden and starring Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray. "Chad Hanna," a story of the circus, finds Dorothy Lamour draped in yardage instead of a sarong, playing opposite Henry Fonda at the Roxy. It opened yesterday.

"A Dispatch From Reuters," the story of the founding of Reuters' News Agency, a reported fine Warner Brothers picture, though slow, starring Edward G. Robinson, continues through tomorrow night at the Paramount theater, as does the stage revue, "Tropical Nights," and the film, "San Francisco Docks," at the Capitol theater.

"The Philadelphia Story," with Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant and James Stewart, continues another week at the Loew's Grand, and "This Thing Called Love" is booked for seven more days at the Rialto.

Out at the Rhodes, beginning today, the first in a new series of family pictures, is being offered. It is "Keeping Company" with Frank Morgan, Ann Rutherford and John Shelton.

Rhodes.

The trials and tribulations of young newlyweds, and particularly the danger of their first quarrel, becomes the subject for a gay and romantic comedy which begins a new series of family films at the Rhodes theater today.

It is called "Keeping Company," and is a first-run attraction with Frank Morgan, Ann Rutherford and John Shelton to head the cast. John and Ann are the newlyweds. Morgan and Irene Dunne are teamed as the older couple while Virginia Weider and Gloria de Haven play Ann's younger sisters. The story is of the marriage of the young couple, brought about by planning on the part of Morgan and Virginia. Trouble appears when Ann's ex-sweetheart arrives. Jealousy, spurred on by gossip, brings quarrels and Ann goes home to mother. More plotting by the families have some complicated effects.

Roxy.

"Chad Hanna," from the novel by Walter D. Edmonds called "Red Wheels Rolling," is a story of the circus with Dorothy Lamour as the glamorous circus queen who dazzles the back country towns with her beauty.

Appearing as Chad Hanna is Henry Fonda and Linda Darnell is also featured. Associate producer and writer of the screen play is Nunnally Johnson, of Georgia. Also in the cast are Guy Kibbee, Jane Darwell, John Carradine, Ted North, Roscoe Ates and Ben Carter.

This is a first-run picture playing under the Roxy's new policy.

Fox.

"Virginia," filmed in technicolor with a Williamsburg background, is the feature at the Fox, starring Fred MacMurray and Madeleine

BEGIN NEW SERIES—"Keeping Company," opening today at the Rhodes theater, is a first-run picture and the initial issue in a new series of family films. Co-starred are Ann Rutherford and John Shelton.

Carroll in a story of a modern rebel's exploits on the battlefield of love, so the pressbook says.

Introduced to movie audiences for the first time is handsome young Stirling Hayden, and the little star of "Honeymoon in Bali," is back, Carolyn Lee. Others in the cast are Helen Broderick and Marie Wilson.

The young rebel, played by Miss Carroll, falls in love with two men, from different stations of life and complications arise in the best of families.

Loew's.

Here's a story of theater managers being wrong. A year ago the theater managers of the nation were in accord in proclaiming Katharine Hepburn "box office poison."

Now, one year later, it is Katharine Hepburn's movie, "The Philadelphia Story," that is setting the box office records at the motion picture theaters of the nation. Not only that, her stage version of the same play set records on Broadway, has done it on the road and is so good her company is drawing the best salaries of any company on the road.

So well have Atlanteans received the screen play that Manager Eddie Pentecost announced last night that the show would be held over for another week. And Atlanta is not the only place it is being held over. That is the usual procedure wherever it has played.

Today Miss Hepburn, always unpredictable in private and public life, is making theater managers eat their words and call her the "box office angel."

Rialto.

Today begins the fourth and positively final week of the engagement at the Rialto theater of "This Thing Called Love," snappy marital farce co-starring Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas.

This story of newlyweds who determine to remain on strictly platonic relationship for the first three months of married life, only to stumble against a business situation that compels pretense that a blessed event is on the way, is undoubtedly one of the snappiest and raciest of films yet made, both as to situation and dialogue.

Capitol.

In connection with the showing of "Here Comes the Navy" at the Capitol theater for one week starting Sunday, the Capitol management is offering a special bon voyage gift check in the amount of $25 to the first Capitol patron who is accepted for enlistment in the United States Navy. "Here Comes the Navy" stars James Cagney and Pat O'Brien and is considered to be one of the greatest service films ever made.

The gift check offer is being made by the Capitol management as a gesture of patriotism and in an effort to create some additional interest in the United States Navy, which is in need of recruits. It was explained by the Capitol management that any patron interested in the $25 check offer could secure from the doorman, any day next week, a special identification coupon which is to be presented to the officer in charge of the United States Navy recruiting bureau in the new post office building.

On the stage starting Sunday the theater brings in a classy revue under the title of "Follies Caprice," with cast of 35, including the ten starlets, beautiful line girls, who can dance as well as display beautiful costumes and gowns.

Couch Offers Bill Affecting Schools Here

Measure Would Guarantee Expenditure of $61 for Each Pupil.

A bill which would guarantee an expenditure of $61 per year for each pupil in the Atlanta city schools was introduced in the state senate yesterday by Hugh C. Couch, who represents the 52d district.

Under the present Atlanta charter 30 per cent of the city's income is allocated to public schools. Couch's resolution provides that in case this percentage at any time becomes insufficient to give $61 per pupil to the system that the city shall appropriate additional funds to the board of education.

Last year, according to Senator Couch, the city schools received a per capita income of $61, but he added that reduced water rates and the loss of other city income would result in a much lower educational share unless his amendment to the charter is approved.

His bill also would require that the city council grant an additional $200,000 each year for the construction of new buildings, purchase of additional land and equipment and other items of "capital outlay."

DR. SUTTON TAKES ISSUE WITH LE CRAW

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, yesterday took issue with Mayor LeCraw on the $15 per capita increase in the cost of the Atlanta educational system for the five-year period beginning in 1935, and defended the hike.

Sutton expressed regret that LeCraw "chose to make and publicize a comparison, the validity of which had been called to your attention before it appeared in print."

He laid the cost increase to salary slashes for school employees amounting to $676,642 in 1935, which accounts, he said for nearly two-thirds of the disparity in the per pupil cost.

Changes Killed, Aid Bill Vote Looms Tonight

the conflict, and a negotiated peace, immediately, would be the best possible result.

He testified after Colonel Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, who said that fears of an invasion of the United States were "fantastic"; that the Nazis would not conquer England and that England did not need help from the United States for defensive purposes.

Another witness, Hanford MacNider, former minister to Canada, denounced the lease-lend measure as a war bill that "undermines our heritage as free men in an attempt to save it for others."

The house, with a striking absence of snapping tempers, quickly approved amendments proposed by Foreign Affairs Committee Democrats to increase support for the measure. They would:

Set a two-year limit upon the period in which President Roosevelt could contract to manufacture arms for the British, and a five-year limit upon the delivery of war items called for in the contracts.

Require that President Roosevelt consult the chief officers of the Army and Navy before sending defense implements abroad.

Stipulate that the bill grants no new powers to the President to assign American naval vessels to convoying ships to belligerent ports.

Block Substitute.

In between times it staved off a Republican effort to substitute an entirely new bill that would place assistance to Britain on a money-loan basis only. This plan, which would have empowered the President to lend up to $2,000,000,000, was offered on behalf of the Republican members of the committee by Representative Mundt, Republican, South Dakota. It was defeated 145 to 206.

Another by Mundt, declaring it to be the sense of congress that the President should not send ships on convoy duty, was beaten 74 to 111, and a proposal by Representative Vorys, Republican, Ohio, that the chief officers of the Army and Navy must specifically approve before any war material could be transferred to other nations was rejected 78 to 109. An amendment by Representative

Voorhis, Democrat, California, to limit the life of the powers granted to June 30, 1942, also went into the discard.

The one restrictive amendment slipped through while a large bloc of Democrats was at lunch. This amendment, offered by Representative Dirksen, Republican, Illinois, provided that congress, by passing a concurrent resolution, could terminate at any time any of the powers given the President. A concurrent resolution is an expression of the will of both houses of congress, not needing presidential signature to become effective.

Leaders Confident.
A short time before the amendment was adopted, the Mundt substitute had been defeated by a vote of 145 for it and 206 against it. The voting on the Dirksen amendment showed 148 in favor and 141 against. Those who kept tab on the tallies remarked that in the interim about 60 votes, virtually all of them on the side of the administration, had disappeared from the chamber.

Administration leaders were unworried at the inclusion of the amendment and apparently were making no plans for removing it from the bill later, although they claimed more than enough votes to do so.

They were of the opinion that it might increase support for the measure on final passage and help show the world a house more nearly united behind the bill than would otherwise have been the case. After the amendment had been approved, one supporter of the bill arose and challenged those who have objected to increased presidential powers to vote almost at once on final passage.

"The bill is now in shape to pass in 30 minutes," said Representative Page, Democrat, Georgia. "My hope is that now that all the rights and powers of congress are in the hands of a simple majority of congress, this eternal controversy will end."

Mundt Explains.
Mundt, in offering his substitute bill for $2,000,000,000 in loans, explained that under it the President could act only after consulting Army and Navy chiefs, that the loans could be used only to buy articles produced in the United States, and that all orders must have the approval of the office of production management.

On the other hand, he said, the administration bill would make President Roosevelt the "director-general of the war." He expressed grave doubt that the house wanted to repose such "fearful responsibility" in one man. The Republican side of the chamber gave him

'Let This Eternal Controversy End,' Pace Begs Legislators

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—In an appeal that met with enthusiastic applause, Representative Stephen Pace, of Georgia, made a strong bid for unity in action on the lend-lease bill late in the house debate on amendments today.

Expressing the "fear that if this controversy continues" the house "will have done more harm to the nation within its borders than any foreign power could ever do," the Georgian declared:

"I, in my feeble way, now call upon the opposition to come in and help us present to the nation a united front on this question. I do not believe there are six members of this house who do not pray in their heart of hearts for British victory. I do not believe there are six members of this house who are not anxious to render all possible aid to the British in their fight against the German menace."

With reference to delay in action, Pace said:

"A hearty ovation when he had concluded.

In reply, Representative Luther A. Johnson, Democrat, Texas, contended that a "grant of credits alone" was insufficient to meet the British crisis. The substitute indicated a "lack of realism," he said.

A voice vote was inconclusive and a teller vote was ordered. The result was 145 for the Mundt substitute and 206 against it.

A little later another amendment was approved. It was one of several changes agreed upon by the Democrats of the Foreign Affairs Committee in an effort to attract Republican votes to the bill. The measure already stipulated that the powers contained in it should expire June 30, 1943. Today's amendment stipulated that any contract entered into by the President before that time must be executed by or lapse July 1, 1946.

Lindbergh Heard.

Lindbergh, telling the senate committee that the United States had been sending almost all its new planes abroad while its own air force remained in "a deplorable condition," declared that if America is ever invaded "the responsibility will lie with those who sent our arms abroad."

He told frankly, in response to questions, of having received and retained a German decoration from Field Marshal Goering and disclosed for the first time his own unofficial part in the scary crisis days just prior to the British-French capitulation to Hitler at Munich.

Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy summoned him to London from the continent, he said, and he gave to the American envoy and to unnamed Englishmen his estimate that at that time Germany was much stronger in the air than any combination of powers that could be arrayed against her. France, he said, had not a single pursuit plane at that time capable of catching German bombers then in mass production.

The famous flyer, trim in a dark blue suit but heavier than when they called him "Slim," proved to be a quick and ready witness.

Once he delighted the huge crowd which jammed the senate caucus room with a remark that obviously discomfited one of most belligerent questioners, Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida.

Pepper had said it was important that the people be made aware of the course of Lindbergh's convictions, and began by asking aggressively, "When did you first go to Europe?"

"In 1927, sir," Lindbergh replied simply. That was the year in which he flew the Atlantic.

Burst of Laughter.

There was a hushed instant, followed by an uproarious outburst of laughter and applause, which Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, quelled only with the greatest difficulty. Lindbergh ment. It was obvious that he had simply given a matter-of-fact reply to a matter-of-fact question, with no thought of repartee. He was as much surprised at the outburst as was Pepper.

The flyer engaged in a brief and intensely polite dispute with Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, on the question of the number of new American planes being shipped abroad.

"Almost all of the equipment and almost all of the new planes that are being built in the United States are going abroad," Lindbergh said.

"Well," Connally interrupted, "a large percentage."

"I should say that most of it is—and our air force is in a deplorable condition."

"You have no statistics on that?"

"No, sir, but they could be easily obtained."

Connally ended the exchange with an unbelieving gesture and a statement that the committee had already received the statistics in closed session.

For the rest, Lindbergh mostly repeated the statements he made a fortnight ago before the house committee.

When MacNider concluded his testimony, the audience applauded and Chairman George ordered all spectators to leave the room.

"This is not a town hall meeting," the Georgian declared. Only newspaper reporters and committee aides were permitted to remain and hear O. K. Armstrong, of Springfield, Ohio, formerly field director for the No Foreign War Committee, the day's last witness, testify.

Armstrong, the fourth witness before the committee to deprecate the possibility of a successful Axis invasion of the United States, said the United States should determine what it intended to defend, and asked:

"Does any patriotic American doubt we could do it?"

Declaring no amount of amendments could make the legislation "a good bill," Armstrong said the "purpose is either to take the United States into war by our overt actions, or so to flirt with the dangers of war as to invite a declaration of war or acts of war against us by some country or countries. Either course would be a betrayal of the American people, the vast majority of whom desire to keep out of the wars now raging in the Old World."

14 Rail Unions Will Vote on Strike Question

Leader Informs Roosevelt 'No Other Course Is Open.'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Their demands for vacations with pay rejected, 14 standard railway labor organizations, representing about 750,000 employees of Class 1 railroads, decided today to vote on the question on striking.

Decision to take the vote was announced late in the day by George M. Harrison, head of a committee of union leaders, after he had visited President Roosevelt to express regret that "no other course is open to us."

The President, Harrison said, hoped that a strike could be averted.

Presumably at the suggestion of Mr. Roosevelt, Harrison said he would get in touch with John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, in a final effort to work out some agreement. Pelley was out of town today and his aides declined to comment.

Harrison said the following unions would be polled on the question of a strike:

Order of Railroad Telegraphers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of America; International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers; Sheet Metal Workers' International Association; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America; International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers; Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees; Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees; International Association of Machinists; Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen of America; National Organization Masters, Mates and Pilots of America; National Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, and International Longshoremen's Association.

Harrison said ballots would be in the hands of employees by February 15, and that 30 days would be allowed for completion of voting.

Should a strike be authorized, the committee, headed by Harrison, would fix a date for it, but the machinery of the national mediation act provides a "cooling" period of about 60 days.

Church Council Asks Defeat of Gambling Bill

Washington and Franklin Quoted in Condemning Horse Racing.

A statement strongly expressing the hope that the general assembly will promptly defeat the pending bill to legalize gambling on horse and dog races in Georgia, should it be brought to the floor for a vote, was issued Thursday by the civic committee of the Atlanta Christian Council, through Dr. Louie D. Newton, chairman.

The statement follows: "The renewed effort to legalize gambling on horse and dog races in Georgia, as provided in the pending bill in the house, offered by Roscoe Pickett, of Pickens, will meet, we confidently believe, with the same fate which similar bills have suffered in previous sessions of the general assembly; but we earnestly call the attention of the public to the fact that the bill has once again been offered, and urge immediate expression of conviction on the matter to the members of the house and senate from every county and district in Georgia. "Gambling, as George Washington declared, is the child of avarice, the brother of iniquity, and the father of mischief. The history of legalized gambling in some of our sister states, and in other nations, reveals one long record of grief, not only for those who participate, but for society in general. "Our concern in this matter is chiefly for the youth of our state who would be victimized by such schemes as this proposed legislation would thrust upon the young people, in every community, and particularly upon the communities where large numbers of soldiers will be in training. We believe, with Benjamin Franklin, that just as we would keep from fire, so must we seek to keep youth from gambling. "We therefore appeal to the members of the general assembly to promptly defeat this bill, should its sponsor undertake to bring it to a vote."

Nazis Will Release 3,200 French Prisoners

VICHY, France, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Germany has agreed to repatriate 3,200 French war prisoners deemed "not indispensable" to German prison camps, the war ministry announced today.

The prisoners, who will be returned via Switzerland between tomorrow and February 19, are part of the French army medical corps. The ministry also announced demobilization of another fraction of the army class of 1938.

House Messenger Called by Draft

Uncle Sam's draft arm reached into the general assembly yesterday. The old Uncle patted 23-year-old Woodrow Tucker, messenger of the house of representatives, gently on the shoulder and told him he was needed in the army.

Messenger Tucker said he was willing to go, but the house felt his services were more vital to the general assembly and took steps to have his military service postponed. By resolution the legislative body asked that a committee be named to confer with military authorities concerning postponement until the close of the general assembly. Named on the committee by Speaker Randall Evans Jr. were Representative Ferguson, of Sumter; Whipple, of Bleckley, and Grice, of Bibb.

Flour Export Subsidy Rates Reduced by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department announced reductions today in its export subsidy rates on flour.

The reductions were as follows:

From Pacific Coast ports to the Philippine Islands from 70 to 60 cents per barrel, and from any United States port to Latin and South America from $1.05 to 90 cents per barrel.

The old rates had been in effect since last November 7. The new ones became effective at 1

p. m. (Atlanta time) today and were subject to change at the same hour tomorrow. Officials explained that domestic wheat prices had gone down recently, reducing the spread between American and world prices, thereby permitting a cut in the flour subsidy rates.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 7, 1941.

The Economic Peril

One major point has been almost lost to sight in debate and testimony on the lend-lease bill in Washington this week. That is, the economic result of a Hitler victory in Europe.

Most of the debate and the testimony has been concerned with the military results of German rule of Europe and the remnants of the British empire.

Yet the economic result would be even more serious than the military and naval aftermath. They are to an extent intermingled, but of the three the economic aspect is by far the most serious.

The United States enjoys the privileges of world-wide trade today, restricted only by the artificial trade barriers to which this country in no small way contributed. That trade is contingent upon the control of the seas by Great Britain and with the United States. It matters not whether we term them democracies or not; it matters not whether Albion is perfidious or not; it matters not whether minorities are being mistreated or whether they are being coddled. The cold fact remains that this country, alone, cannot escape the barriers of naval might to trade at will in an oceanic world dominated by enemies of our way of life.

No sensible military or naval authority will assert that an immediate invasion of this country would follow the defeat of Great Britain. Such a maneuver would be a classic feat of arms. It would first require the capture of near-by bases, not in South or Central America, but in the islands off the coast of this country and in Mexico. It would require the reduction of Hawaii. It would require the subjugation of South America to protect the flanks of such a movement. It would present almost insurmountable problems. But it would never be necessary.

Today this nation and Great Britain possess the power to blockade, in most instances at long range, every major world power capable of contesting for land tenure. The moment England falls that advantage will switch immediately to the Axis powers under conditions with which the United States could not compete. They would be supreme at Gibraltar, at Cape Horn, at Singapore, and in England and Iceland. The major trade routes of this country would be effectively severed and any passage of United States' ships through these key points now held by the Anglo-Saxon powers could and would be stopped.

This country then would be confronted with the problem of constructing an economy based in its entirety upon self-sufficiency, which it could accomplish only by internal sacrifices of the most stringent kind. If it could at all. And there would be no release from that stranglehold except by a world war of a ferocity never before known to mankind in which the greatest part of American manhood would have to be sacrificed to break bonds self-imposed by a refusal to recognize, today, the responsibilities of tomorrow.

America is at the crossroads. And the sands of time are flowing every second.

Wilful Blindness of the G. O. P.

Wendell Willkie, for the first time in a decade, last summer injected life into the almost moribund carcass of the G. O. P. elephant. He ran a race for the presidency that was one of the most remarkable in recent history and it looked, under his leadership, as though the day might be within sight when there would be, at least a reasonably influential minority party, if not a Republican majority, in the United States.

Now, however, it is apparent the reaction has set in. Willkie's honesty and liberalism are too much for the old leaders of the party that lives among the relics of the past. He tried to awaken them, to lift them into contemporary life, but apparently he has failed.

Now it appears certain that, if Willkie is to retain any semblance of party leadership, it means a split. The conservative, old line Republicans will never follow his vigorous, liberal viewpoints. They prefer to sink back, like old men in club chairs, into the primeval incoherence of their memories and to let the world, with all its movement and progress, pass by and leave them to undisturbed slumber.

Willkie was their one hope and, if they repudiate him, the G. O. P. will not probably see any restoration to power for more than a decade to come. If ever.

As a matter of fact, Willkie should have been a Democrat all along. He is too alert, has too keen a mind, too active a conscience, to belong in the party of special privilege.

In New Mexico a steam shovel, having dug a large hole, proceeded to topple into the same—as clear an analysis as we have heard of the European outlook.

Synthetic Rubber

Development of an imitation, or synthetic, rubber is one of the most important defense achievements in the United States. Recently the process, with some reservations as to secret ingredients, was demonstrated in Atlanta. Various articles made of the synthetic product, including an automobile tire, were shown and the research representative explained that it was as good and as serviceable as the average tire made of natural rubber. "It will wear longer than some, not as long as others," he said.

The United States raises no rubber on its continental territory. It consumes approximately 600,000 tons annually. In case of war an enemy which could cut off the rubber supply would strike a serious blow to this country's defensive effectiveness. If that war came with a Britain defeated and without the British fleet to help keep open the ocean lanes, such a severing of overseas supply lines could be easily accomplished.

The uses of rubber in modern warfare are innumerable. Mechanized units use specially built rubber tires to travel on. The latest army tractors have rubber treads, because metal will not stand up under the rate of travel necessary, without splitting. These rubber tractor treads are used on all the fast tanks of the army. Without them they could not travel over 10 miles per hour, instead of the 60 mph. they travel today.

Rubber is essential to aviation. It is used in various parts of the modern airplane and the rubberized lining of war plane gasoline tanks is what makes them puncture proof to enemy bullets.

Rubber is essential in the making of barrage, or observation balloons. And in the collapsible lifeboats which have saved many fliers after their ships have been shot down over water. It is used in the pontoons with which naval flying ships are equipped and it is essential in a thousand and one other pieces of army, navy or aviation equipment.

It is reported that the United States government has on hand a reserve stock of natural rubber sufficient, in emergency, to supply the country for a year or more. This, however, does not take into account the increased need which would be involved by war. It is believed that the establishment of plants sufficient to make 100,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year would make it possible to so increase plant capacity after war had started that, by the end of the year, the synthetic product would be in sufficient production to supply all our needs.

Thus one defense, or war, problem is well toward solution. Nothing more important for the nation's safety has been achieved since the present emergency began.

At 82, a tendency is growing to think of the Kaiser as a dear old thing. Thus, the Fuehrer has 30 years in which to become cute.

Braving the bombs of London was Brother Willkie's own idea. Even if it were our war, we don't believe the Democrats would send a republican ahead as a decoy.

SPIRIT OF METAXAS

Even though the arms of Greece continue onward against the Italian invaders of Albania, the sudden death of the premier-dictator, John Metaxas, certainly must be counted a blow to the Greek cause. The DETROIT NEWS, while the NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM believes that, "whatever the end of the story may be, history will honor this man who exposed the fable of Axis infallibility and set in motion a sequence of events that has revolutionized the strategic situation in the eastern Mediterranean."

"John Metaxas had a sore throat. It finished him in less than a fortnight," points out the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD, which adds that "Adolf Hitler, who has long been reported, has a sore throat. . . One wonders if it worries him a bit more than usual today. . . There's no telling what may happen to Caesars. Time and again it has been something quite unpleasant." However, "Metaxas can ill be spared," says the CHICAGO NEWS, "but all of the world that is opposed to totalitarianism can echo his dying words, 'I place my hope in the Greeks.'"

Meanwhile, Alexander Korizis, who has been named by King George of Greece to succeed Premier Metaxas, is a banker and not a politician," reports the BALTIMORE SUN, which goes on: "As governor of the National Bank he is said to have shown no little administrative ability, but that is far different from ruling a country that for five years has been under the iron hand of Metaxas." And the DENVER POST, setting forth that "Metaxas was a military genius while Korizis is a banker," feels that "Maybe the impetus of a steady succession of victories will carry the Greeks along until Italy is disposed of. That is the hope of their American friends," as the LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL considers the possibility that "The advance in Albania may be still further slowed down due to the change in leadership. But," the COURIER-JOURNAL adds, "Greece is united and it will continue the crusade led by Metaxas—the mediocrity who rose to something akin to greatness."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE NEW AMBASSADOR WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The nomination of John G. Winant to be American ambassador to Great Britain has been sent to the senate. An explanation of this mysterious appointment is in order. It throws interesting light on the trend of thought at the White House.

Winant was the President's man, chosen in the face of unusually determined opposition at the State Department. The clue to the President's insistence on Winant is to be found in Winant's close association with the labor movement, as assistant director of the international labor office at Geneva in 1935, and as director from 1939 onwards. The accent is on labor at the White House, both for domestic and British consumption, and Winant is being sent to London as a friend of labor, if not a labor representative.

Winant's appointment is of a piece with the elevation of Sidney Hillman to associate directorship of the defense effort. It tries up neatly, for whereas William S. Knudsen, the industrialist, is first, and Hillman is second in the OPM, at the London embassy Winant will be first and a businessman minister, now expected to be Averell Harriman, will be second. Labor leaders here were consulted before Winant was named. Furthermore, the President is authoritatively understood to have been much influenced by intimations from London that Winant's appointment would be extremely agreeable to the British labor leaders. In the course of his work at Geneva, Winant became particularly intimate with the famous British minister of labor, Ernest Bevin, and the New Dealers here hopefully anticipate that having a crony at the American embassy will strengthen Bevin's hand in British politics.

Bevin seems, in truth, to be becoming a major pre-occupation of the President and the New Deal group in the administration. When Lord Halifax was made British ambassador to this country, the White House made little secret of a disappointment which now appears to be forgotten. And at that time Bevin was frankly mentioned by persons close to the President as the man who would have had the most enthusiastic reception.

COHEN GOES ALONG? Of course, Winant's labor affiliations were not the only reasons for his appointment. He is a high-principled, personable and industrious man, with a manner somewhat picturesquely homespun. Born in New York of modestly prosperous parents, he was educated at St. Paul's school and Princeton, married a charming wife with a substantial fortune, and returned to his school to teach. St. Paul's is at Concord, N. H. He entered New Hampshire politics, was eventually elected Governor as a liberal Republican, caught the President's eye as a social-minded political moderate, and was made chairman of the textile mediation board when his term expired. Then followed the two periods of work at the ILO, with an intervening two years as chairman of the Social Security Board.

He is, in fact, a good man with a good record. Moreover he is a firm believer in the wisdom of the struggle against Nazism, and when Munich occurred, and then began to urge American rearmament in the air.

Unfortunately, he is also generally acknowledged to be a poor administrator, an incurable holder of conferences, and an exceedingly slow thinker. For these reasons, and possibly because some doubted whether a man partly chosen to please the British labor party would command the confidence of Winston Churchill, the State Department's opposition to Winant was remarkably strong. The objections from the Department caused the long delay in making Winant's appointment official. They were probably also responsible, at least in part, for the choice of a minister to work with and supplement the new ambassador. In addition Winant himself has invited Benjamin V. Cohen, one of the most brilliant men in Washington, to accompany him to London as legal adviser.

BULLITT FIRST CHOICE When the search for a successor to Joseph P. Kennedy first began, the specifications for the ideal man were rather exactly laid down. He was to be an individual of standing, quick sympathy and strong intelligence. He was to be able to spend an hour or so every other evening with Winston Churchill, and to transmit the British leader's hopes and fears, needs and purposes hot to the White House. In short, in his sole person, he was to be the British-American liaison which is now so sadly lacking.

The President may feel the need of such a liaison less than many other people, since he and Churchill are understood to have resumed their man-to-man talks on the transatlantic telephone. Certainly Winant is not the most likely liaison officer. With the aid of Cohen or another equally able man, Winant may well perform with success the incredibly difficult task ahead of him. Yet one cannot help regretting that the virulence of office politics at the State Department, and his enemies' habit of stopping at nothing, made William C. Bullitt unwilling to take the London post when it was first offered to him.

A Job

To Be Done

Felton Williams, who has so devotedly given himself for the poorest and most wretched of Atlantas, through the Atlanta Mission, is facing another of his urgent financial problems.

You know Dr. Williams, ever since he began his ministrations to the helpless ones, has operated with faith as his capital. He has always believed, and practised, that when something is urgently needed for the help of the distressed in body or in soul, go and get it and trust that, somehow, the money to pay for it will be forthcoming. And, so far, his faith has always been answered.

Through faith he has created the Sunday schools for the children of the poorest; the summer camp for the same children, to give them a chance of fresh air and plentiful food and the open country for a week or two each year; his Community Center where mothers and young women and men find help in classes both for training and for prayer, in clinics for betterment of health and in a social focus that lifts them higher in the scale of citizenship.

An Area

Of Sordid Poverty.

There is an area in Atlanta which is designated, by all who know, the most wretched, the most overcrowded, the most vicious in all the city.

And Dr. Williams, ever believing that the best work for God and for men can be done where the need is greatest, is establishing a new center for his mission in that area.

You've heard of it. It is roughly designated as the "Formwalt area."

The Mission has secured, in the heart of the section, an old house. It is old, therefore fundamentally well-built. It is well fitted to the needs of the Mission.

But, like all old houses, there is much work to be done on it before it is really fit for use.

New plumbing is necessary, throughout. The walls were covered with five or six thicknesses of old, mouldy, rotting wall paper which had to be scraped away.

Dr. Williams is a man of many friends and many methods. He has secured, as gifts to his Mission, all save about $50 worth of the plumbing material needed. He can get gifts of much of the paint that must be used.

But the balance of the essential plumbing and the wages of the men who install, and of the painter who paints the inside of the house, must be paid in cash.

For the total need it is estimated about $500 is needed. Dr. Williams has faith that, somehow, it will be forthcoming.

Perhaps this column may be the instrument of answer to that faith. If you who read can understand and, to some extent, respond.

Significance

Of "Invictus."

Somewhere about 1870 an Englishman named Henley wrote a poem which, since, has been set to music and sung throughout the English speaking world. I suppose everybody is familiar with it. But the words of that poem are so apropos to the British spirit of today that they now seem almost prophetic. Don't you think so?

INVICTUS.

Out of the night that covers me
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeoning of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the horror of the shade;
And yet the menace of the years
Finds and shall find me unafraid.

It matters not how straight the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll,
I am the master of my fate;
I am the captain of my soul.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Monday, February 7, 1916:

"Manager Charlie Frank, of the Atlanta baseball team, announced yesterday afternoon that the local club has accepted the offer of Vidossia, and will train in that city this year."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

"Tiddley Winks can be sent by mail postpaid for 30 and 55 cents by John M. Miller, 31 Marietta street."

Exhibition Loses.

Shareholders in the New Zealand Centennial Exhibition have little hope for getting any return on their subscriptions, totalling about $550,000. The final report filed in Wellington shows that the government, in addition to a subsidy of $200,000, assumes liabilities of approximately $370,000. When the exhibition closed last May the government took possession of the buildings and grounds as an act of defense base and set up a committee to value the assets. The committee fixed a sum of $260,000, after taking into consideration what it would have cost the company to dismantle buildings and salvage materials.

FAIR ENOUGH

A Sort

Of Jook

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. This place was a sort of jook down there, if you remember where you make that square turn to right by the entrance to Key Largo and start down the straight road toward Key West about five or ten miles down, on the left-hand side, toward the sea. Distance fools you along there with those green water ditches by the road and the high grass and jungle, but for a long way before you came to this place there had signs stuck up on stakes about their wonderful stone crabs and wonderful turtle steaks and pompano. So we finally came to it, and, like I say, there was a girl, or rather she was a woman about, maybe, 22, in slacks and a kitchen apron, and this little kid was playing all alone in a little clearing, a kid of maybe 3 or 4.

She was not bad looking but kind of sloppy from around the kitchen, and the place where you eat was in a screened place with screen walls but a canvas roof, and these people lived in a little shanty-looking place out back. So we got talking, like, you know, you get talking with strangers, and it turned out she came from North Dakota, and here it was up around 100 degrees and back where she came from probably 40 below, but she says they can have Florida, but give her where she came from, because she wasn't any Daniel Boone, and pioneering was out of her line.

Florida

Mosquitoes

Mosquitoes, brother, they eat the meat off your bones in bloody big hunks, and if you get a flat along there at night it was worth your life to stop, because they would be attracted by your lights and your sweat, and sometimes you could see those conks—what they call the natives—working naked to the waist and their hide would be just black with mosquitoes, but the conks they hardly feel it on account of something in their blood. But if you aren't a conk it's murder, where back in Dakota if you kill a mosquito you have it stuffed and put in a museum, and furthermore, one night just lately, they had a painter on the roof and it like to scared her crazy.

I never heard anyone call a painter in speaking, although I read where people said like that in books, so I thought for a minute it was a, you know, a house-painter got drunk and went out lally-gagging because, like I say, she was pretty good looking, although she had her husband there, except he was down the road when we was there, chopping down weeds and came with a match and setting out more signs about his wonderful crabs and turtle steak.

She heard this painter screaming and came out and saw the bulge in the canvas where she was sitting on the roof, so she gave him a jab with a mop-handle, and before her husband could get a shot at him he sailed off into the weeds, and you could see his white belly just as pretty in the moonlight, but his claws ripped the canvas like someone cut it with a razor.

About a

Rattler

So we said it was a cute little kid, and she said that was another thing why she wanted to quit pioneering, because the week before the husband heard a rattle in the weeds where he was setting out those damn signs and turned around and slouched a rattlesnake over the head as big as an inner tube with his machete and brought it home at noon and threw it in the yard. Then after lunch he went back to put out more signs, and he said after work he was going to skin it and make a wonderful snakeskin belt or sell it to some tourist, because it was practically enormous and no holes in it like when you shoot them.

So a little later she looked out the kitchen door, and there was the little kid playing around the rattlesnake and trying to pet it, and the snake was coiling up and coming around from the sock on the head with the machete, because it wasn't dead but only stunned. So she damn near died of fright, but she quick grabbed the old man's automatic off the bush in the canvas and whammed the snake, and she had to take a terrible chance on killing her own kid, but she didn't, and while she was at it she let the snake have five or six more.

And so when the old man came home that night he raised hell for the beautiful snakeskin full of holes—so, brother, she was all caught up on that pioneering stuff, and we didn't blame her, and, moreover, don't ever fall for that turtle steak; it's blue like a football bladder, and you just as soon eat a felt hat.

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

The late Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain compiled a book of his speeches called "In Search of Peace." One book review reads, "In long speeches are all alike—mild, surprised rather than outraged, friendly and without stiffening. Evidently Chamberlain wrote them himself or spoke them extemporaneously."

EXTEMPORANEOUS.

Extemporaneous is an adjective pronounced ex-tem-po-RA-ne-ous with the accent on the fourth syllable. You should experience no difficulty in pronouncing this word if you speak each syllable as it is written. The accented syllable (ra) has a long (a) and rhymes with rain. The (ous) is spoken like (us).

Extemporaneous describes that which is unplanned, unprepared, unstudied, unrehearsed; something improvised to meet an emergency, an opportunity, or an occasion, an extemporaneous speech, an extemporaneous performance, an extemporaneous shelter, etc.

Extemporaneously is the adverb and has the accent on the same syllable as does extemporaneous.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THAT MAN—WILLKIE Mr. Wendell Willkie has just been given what many persons consider the highest honor in politics, a wrathful condemnation by the Chicago Tribune.

The Tribune says the Republican party should hand Mr. Willkie his hat. And do so right this very minute before he does more damage. The Tribune views Mr. Willkie as a traitor and as a turncoat and they let it be known they never really had much faith in him.

A gentleman who knows Mr. Herbert Hoover very well indeed, was in Atlanta yesterday. He reported that only a few days ago he saw Mr. Hoover and that Mr. Hoover was very critical about Mr. Willkie's whole career. He said Mr. Hoover was of the opinion that had Mr. Willkie made a clear-cut issue of the campaign he might have won. And also that Mr. Willkie, by going to London and by hobnobbing with the British leaders, has made it impossible for him to do anything but come back to the United States and join wholeheartedly with Mr. Roosevelt in pushing the President's lend-lease bill.

This gentleman said also that the leading Republicans now were viewing Mr. Willkie as a shallow sort of person who didn't have the capacity to carry the load and who fumbled the ball when it finally was handed to him at Philadelphia.

The Republicans, when they say "That Man," do not at all mean Mr. Roosevelt. To the Republicans Mr. Willkie is "That Man."

MR. WILLKIE GROWS The mere fact that the Tribune and Mr. Hoover oppose Mr. Willkie greatly will commend that gentleman to many who were not at all interested in him. To be opposed by Mr. Hoover immediately convinces a majority of our people that the cause is just and correct because it has come to be one of the laws of nature for Mr. Hoover to be wrong.

Mr. Willkie has grown in the eyes of most of the nation. Many regard him as the real winner of the recent election. Assuredly he has been himself and has established a record for honesty and patriotism which none in his camp have shown.

He has done more for national unity than any other single person. He will continue to do much for that important factor in our effort at national defense.

The Republicans, by complaining he did not make a clear-cut issue in the campaign, mean that he refused to stultify himself by standing on an issue in which he did not believe. Mr. Willkie announced he was in agreement with the President's foreign policy. He also was in agreement with most of the social legislation and also that of labor.

Believing in these things, he said so and campaigned on what really was, or should have been, a clear-cut issue—that of production and work. The war boom, which started the nation to producing and to employment, had the effect of taking away this issue. He really was left without much of an issue.

But Willkie did establish himself as an honest man and now has established himself as a patriotic one, refusing to destroy national unity for the sake of political advancement.

THE IRISH VISIT It is quite likely there was much behind Mr. Willkie's visit. It is not quite likely he went merely as a tourist, or, as his Republican foes claim, on a publicity hunt.

His visit to Ireland may have more than ordinary significance. The Irish question is an important one and Willkie may have carried, as an unofficial ambassador, some sort of message from Mr. Roosevelt to Mr. De Valera, the head of the Irish Free State.

The Irish problem is one of the more serious ones. England may be forced back into the old war with Ireland before many weeks have passed. It may be necessary for them to take over Ireland. The Germans could take Ireland with much greater ease than England. Ireland has no planes to speak of and no army of size or equipment to oppose a determined invasion attempt.

Be that as it may, Willkie has captured the attention of the world and especially that part of it which actually or theoretically opposes Germany.

He remains, at this writing, the most likely presidential candidate for 1944. It is not too unlikely that he and Roosevelt may form some sort of alliance despite the mutual dislike which each had for the other during the campaign.

Actually, they are very much alike. The Tribune has handed him his hat but a few short weeks after they were hailing him as Gallahad and St. George. Mr. Hoover does not like him.

But the new "That Man" is a greater figure today than when, hoarse and weary, he went up and down the land campaigning for votes.

How a Modern Diogenes Learned to Get the Equivalent of Riches

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"I am poor," said he, "but nature has made me proud. I must gain wealth or power to make me independent, for I never can feel respectable if I am beholden to any man or compelled to ask favors." In the city he soon found a job, for he was strong and intelligent, but within a month he was ready to quit.

"I am like a slave," he said. "To get this man's money I must do his bidding, and that is fair enough, but I am no longer free. I must mind my p's and q's to avoid giving offense, yet I must bear affronts in silence. I can't trade my independence for bread."

When he quit his job, he began to carve pretty figures from wood and peddle them in the market place. They were good, for he had talent, and he sold enough to provide his living, but once more he was soon dissatisfied.

"I am selling my soul," he complained. "When I ask people to buy, they feel superior and regard me as a supplicant. Some shut the door in my face. I must smile and speak politely to people I despise. The shame is more than I can bear."

Defeated again, he decided to give up his dream of wealth and get power instead. He went into politics. Being gifted with charm and a ready tongue, he succeeded beyond his hopes and climbed rapidly from one office to another, but the cost was too great.

"I am sick of it," he growled. "I have become a liar and a hypocrite and a fraud. I promise the impossible. I say one thing to one man and the opposite to another. I lick the boots of the powerful and court the favor of the contemptible. It is too much. I am whipped."

Then at last philosophy came to his aid and he saw a way out. "How simple!" he cried. "I can't be independent so long as I must ask anything of anybody. The other man is my master while I desire something that I must get from him. But if I can't have anything I desire, I shall learn to Fifty Great Years Of Paderewski; Did He Outlive His Job?

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the first appearance in America of Jan Ignace Paderewski—then a young pianist with a huge shock of reddish hair and a mastery of music which made bored critics sit up and gasp. And made feminine enthusiasts fight for a lock of that hair.

Paderewski was 80 years old last November. He is broken—and said to be "broke." He earned millions—and gave it all away, mostly to Poland and the Polish people. He is in America now—to escape European turmoil and to rest. They say he has leased a home in Florida.

A New York organization is preparing a celebration of his anniversary, when music societies everywhere will be asked to present a "Paderewski program," presenting works with which he was identified. For instance, the "Moonlight Sonata" of Beethoven. There is no demand for money, though checks will be acceptable. The information I have doesn't say to whom they might be sent.

I can't remember how many times I've heard Paderewski play. Every time he has played in the south. His last performance was tragic. A weary old man, apparently half asleep at the keyboard. The fire of flaming youth gone.

But the beauty of genius still there—and burning brightly. The Paderewski touch—in the more subdued numbers—still magic. I found myself sorrowful at his last recital. Until he played an encore number. I've forgotten just what it was. One of the "classics." Simple little thing. Your high school daughter could have played it acceptably, without a false note. Nothing difficult about it.

But when the old man had played it I discovered tears on my cheeks.

There is an old story that Daniel Webster was so great an orator that he could have repeated the multiplication table and awed his audience by the majesty of his eloquence.

I think Paderewski could have played "The Maiden's Prayer" and made his hearers realize his colossal genius.

Slacks for Women
Glimpse from the trolley: Young woman in a Peachtree show window, arranging a new display. And wearing pink slacks.

Why not? Sensible. And modest. If that's not an obsolete word. Her job would require her to kneel down and bend over and crawl around. Moving with freedom in skirts, she might offer a display which would detract from the merchandise.

I am no earnest advocate of trousers for women. Most women, I've noted a number who resembled the rear end of an interstate truck. Especially, Florida-bound tourists from the corn-fed regions of the Middle West.

But you can say one thing for trousers, overall slacks or whatever name you prefer: They are concealing, except when they're too tight. One glimpse and you've seen all. All you're going to see. So maybe you can get to your desk on time.

Louisville, Ga., has a new weekly, the Jefferson County News. As a platform announcement Editor W. J. Gaines declares: "While this is not in the least a denominational or sectarian paper, it is a religious and moral paper and we do not promise to accept just any kind of an advertisement or print any profane or vulgar news."

"We accord to every man the right to vote just as he pleases and he just as well let us vote as we please, for we are going to do it any way. And you can go to any church you like and, if you invite us, we will go there with you."

Mr. L. E. Altman, who writes on Atlanta hotel stationery and is evidently just passing through, pens a note of protest against my bitter complaint of certain revivals of music which do not come under the ASCAP rules demanding royalties from all concerned.

Mr. Altman says it is: "as disgusting a bit of drivel as I have ever read."

Maybe so. Probably so. I've typed an awful lot of drivel in my time. If Mr. Altman would call and I could dig up the files I could show him a lot worse drivel than that.

Mr. Altman is especially sore because I said I was weary of "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair."

Which I am. He likes Jeannie. So do I like Jeannie. I am sure she was a swell person. And I have no allergy to light brown hair. I also like lobster a la Newburgh. But I wouldn't like it three times an evening for 30 evenings. I'm afraid it would pull upon me.

For be it from me to butt into a controversy over radio music and royalties and who should pay them.

I do think that a man who writes a song or a symphony is entitled to a return from everybody who plays that symphony or sings that song for profit. Whether it be theater, night club or radio program. It is his, it belongs to him, if it wasn't good they wouldn't use it—and they should pay for it.

But, as Westbrook Pegler hammers in so frequently, things can go too far. Unions can make too heavy demands. Frequently unreasonable demands. They hurt themselves by demanding too much.

In the meantime we are hearing by radio some excellent music—and some pretty well rehearsed. Last Sunday, I think it was, I heard Strauss' "Tales of the Vienna Woods" on three different radio programs. And all beautifully played. One of my favorites. But it won't continue to be one of my favorites if I hear it eleven times a week.

White, Negro Ministers Hold Joint Meeting

118 Clergymen Present Vote To Hold Similar Sessions Quarterly.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

In a step toward improved race relations in Atlanta 118 white and Negro ministers of city churches held a joint meeting yesterday at Wesley Memorial church and gave attention to the themes of neighborliness and brotherliness. Dr. Ryland Knight, president of the Atlanta Christian Council, and Dr. M. L. King, president of the Atlanta Ministers' Council, presided jointly.

Enthusiastic approval was given the joint gathering and unanimous vote was made that the meetings be held quarterly hereafter. Both white and Negro ministers present at the meeting yesterday expressed confidence that the quarterly meeting would go far toward improving the relations of races in Atlanta, which already are favorably known throughout the nation.

Dr. Willis J. King, president of Gammon Theological Seminary, conducted the devotional period and gave an exposition of the Good Samaritan parable. Dr. Charles D. Hubert, president of Morehouse College, urged that the neighborliness of the parable be sublimated into brotherhood. He said the essence of Christianity is brotherliness, and that Christians must be brotherly and contempt of classes must be removed.

Expressing his fear that another dark age is near, Dr. William G. Gardner, pastor of the Atlanta First Presbyterian church, insisted that the time is at hand for ministers of the gospel to think in terms of recovery. He urged that the fact and sovereignty of God be reasserted, that faith in what man may become through divine grace, and the cross as a way of life and the way to life be emphasized.

Dr. Lester Rumble, as chairman of the Christian Council Interracial Committee, said Methodist churches throughout the United States will observe race relations day next Sunday, and that numerous other churches also will observe the day in a similar manner. He stated that churches having special Boy Scout programs for next Sunday will observe the race relations day the third Sunday in February.

At future meetings of the joint gathering a working program of special endeavors will be adopted, it was said.

Community Fund Conference Today

A study of various phases of Community Fund operation and social service methods will get under way at 10 o'clock this morning when some 80 representatives of social service organizations gather at the Biltmore hotel for the second annual Southeast Conference of Community Chests and Councils.

Highlights of the program outlined for today will include discussions of the possible effect of the war on money raising by private charitable organizations such as the Atlanta Community Fund and on social service programs in general.

Allen T. Burns and Bradley Buell, of New York, will take important roles in the two-day meetings, all of which will be open to the public, it was announced yesterday by Boyce M. Edens, director of the Atlanta Community Fund.

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Today marks the opening of Boy Scout Week, February 7-13, in celebration of the thirty-first anniversary of the Boy Scout movement in the United States. President Roosevelt will be heard throughout the nation in a broadcast Saturday evening (tomorrow evening) at 6:30 o'clock, central standard time, as one of the many features of this anniversary. Next Sunday, in rural, village and city churches, special programs will be devoted to this anniversary. The entire nation will be thinking about our Boy Scouts.

And as we think about our Boy Scouts of today, we will, of course, go back in grateful memory across these 31 years, giving full acknowledgment of the abiding gratitude we must ever feel for those who laid the foundations of the great movement in this nation. Such reflection will lead us quickly to think of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of scouting, who died only a few weeks ago in Africa, at the age of 83. Chief Scout Executive James E. West, President Walter W. Head, and all other national leaders, together with our regional and local leaders of scouting, will be assured of the cordial interest of the people generally in the wonderful work they are doing with and for the youth of our nation.

"Scouting strengthens and invigorates democracy." This striking statement appears on the posters for Boy Scout Week this year. And that is sufficient to gain the attention of every thoughtful person. Anything that strengthens and invigorates democracy in this crucial hour of the world is worth while. "Be prepared" is another slogan of scouting.

ing which will be emphasized throughout the nation this week and all through the year. A Scout is taught to be prepared at all times for any and all emergencies.

All the more do we need these prepared young people today. Think what it will mean for the 1,500,000 active Scouts in the United States to have the encouragement of the public generally as they observe this week the thirty-first anniversary of this world-girdling movement. I believe in the scouting movement with all my heart. I am happy that we have three troops and a cub pack in our church. I can always count on my Scouts. The boys who have been Scouts in our church-sponsored troops across the years are now honored men in varied posts of fine service. I salute them on this occasion, and I believe for the Scout movement a yet greater service as it seeks to strengthen and invigorate democracy through intelligent programs of training for the youth of our land and of the world.

Buying of Rails

[illegible]

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Further buying of railway loans paced a gentle rise in the bond market today.

Demand was not as strong in the carrier group as in the preceding session, but purchasing was active for many industrial and utility issues were marked up good-sized fractions. The medium-priced loans again were the featured railway performers.

New South Wales 5s of '59 headed gains in British flag issues by finishing at 61 1/2, up 1/2. Lesser rises were recorded by Australia 90 1/2-2s at 53 and Canada 4s at 90 1/4.

United States governments were 13-32 lower to 8 3/32.

General Motors' Earnings Boosted

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(P)—General Motors Corporation, in a preliminary report on its 1940 earnings, showed a net of approximately $195,500,000, an increase of about 7 per cent over 1939.

The company showed the increase in federal taxes had cut heavily into its profits. It said earnings before deducting income and excess profits taxes were $92,500,000 above a year ago, but provisions for higher taxes absorbed about $80,300,000 of these increased earnings.

The result was an indicated net total for stockholders only $12,209,778 above the 1939 total of $183,290,222. The net for last year amounted to $4.32 per common share, against $4.04 in 1939.

While the company did not make public figures for the final quarter of 1940, the preliminary net for the year, compared with a net for the first nine months of $129,172,490, indicated a fourth-quarter result of $66,327,510.

PROTESTS UNION FEES FOR DEFENSE JOBS

Editor Constitution: I note an article in your paper under the heading, "Carpenters Get Until Friday To Join Union." I trust that the government agency whose duty it is to look after such things will not allow this union to put anything like that over. And, if they have already allowed anyone to join a union in order to get a defense job, that the union be made to pay it back to them.

Every person, whether union or nonunion, should stand on the same footing when it comes to getting a defense job. Our government, which must depend on every citizen to do his part in defending this country, cannot afford to recognize any union or organization which seeks to put its own workers ahead of other workers on defense regardless of merit. Fitness for the job alone should be considered by a government agency in employing men. And private contractors who have these defense contracts should not be allowed to employ men just because they belong to a union. They should be required to judge only of the fitness of the applicant, be he union or nonunion.

At the time of making these contracts the government should stipulate how much profit the contractor is to make, and what wages are to be paid employees, then all be made to abide by these rules. We insist that every citizen, whether he belongs to a union or not, must be treated fairly. We want a solid front with which to meet the enemy. Let us get away from the fight between capital and labor. It should have no place in a defense program such as we have on now. And certainly the government does not want to be a party to helping a private union mulct from a laborer $50 which he is unwilling and, in most instances, unable to give. We trust our government will see to it that all of our citizens are treated alike and fairly.

OBJECTS TO PRESENT WAR POLICY

Editor Constitution: Your editorial headed "Dangerous Policy," which exposes Kemper's "pitiful ignorance and illogical reasoning," offers this paragraph in evidence: "As a matter of fact the present policy and program are the only way to keep America out of war. Only by making sure the victory in Britain and by making our own country so strong in armament that the whole world would not dare attack can we keep this country out of war. Which is exactly what President Roosevelt and the congress are striving to do."

That statement is untenable, contradictory and absurd, but it has been repeated to the point where you seem to actually believe it.

For one thing, we can NOT assure Britain of victory.

All we can do, without war, is after a cold then what

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

An experience with S.S. Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

to give them the bulk of our production.

If we give that away we cannot, in reasonable time, make ourselves impregnable against the whole world; yet we are warned that the world will be against us in case of British defeat this month or some other month.

We can choose either course, but not both. We can't give away the defense and have it at the same time. But that is the only way, you say, to keep out of war. The policy goes further. It contemplates naval and other forms of aid not openly discussed at the moment, which are almost certain to mean actual warfare. Yet you assert they will do the opposite. Strange logic for the south's standard newspaper.

Your editorial states that 90 per cent of the people approve the present policy. Gallup shows it to be 60 per cent, and it's a safe bet that most of those don't know what it is all about. But he finds 88 per cent definitely opposed to entering a war, if given a choice. Even accuracy in figures seems not to interest The Constitution. Could that be "pitiful ignorance" or illogical reasoning?

AIR POWER MOST IMPORTANT

Editor Constitution: "One Word More" on February 4 was intriguing and reflects the honestly-held belief of all too many of our military men. However, we must awake to the very real fact, that the factors which would have turned the tables or did turn the tables in favor of the side having cavalry or battleships at its command are now obsolete and for the same reason, namely, the airplane. Tanks supported by airplanes can clean the terrain of any character when the same is occupied by cavalry or animal-drawn war equipment. In fact a tank division supported by air equipment can render untenable positions to which even a rabbit cannot climb much less a horse or mule.

For the good of our country and for the good of all humanity we must awake to the fact that the country having dominion in the air will also control the surface lanes by land and by sea, once we realize this to be a fact we will gain and hold air domination because we are the only nation extant having the manpower, ingenuity, natural resources and gold necessary to gain and hold domination of the air.

County School Supervisor Bill Proposed

Representative Seeks To Remove Office From Politics.

Spalding County Representative John Goddard proposed yesterday to remove county school superintendents from politics, making them appointive instead of elective officials.

He drafted a measure to provide for election of county education boards, now appointed by grand juries, and the boards then would appoint the superintendents.

"I consider that the job of county school superintendent is something of a technical one," Goddard explained. "There should be certain qualifications of education and experience required before any person is placed in such a responsible post."

"As the law stands now, any man who can read and write a little, who happens to be popular politically, can qualify and be elected school superintendent despite the fact he may know nothing whatever about running such a system."

Goddard's bill would divide each county into five districts, so that one member of the board of education would represent a district. Provision is made to exclude cities which do not operate their schools under the county superintendent.

PICK CARNIVAL RULERS.
REIDSVILLE, Ga., Feb. 6.—The students of Reidsville High school this week elected a boy and a girl from each of the four grades to represent them as king and queen at the "Valentine Carnival" to be held February 14. The winning contestant will be crowned at an impressive ceremony in the auditorium, as one of the main attractions of the carnival.

Veal Dishes for Small Families

Veal lends itself admirably to the preparation of attractive meals for small families, although it is perhaps not as generally used as lamb or beef. Good veal is fine in grain, grayish pink in color. It is usually quite lean, since it is the meat of a young beef animal—what fat there is should be firm and white. Veal needs to be cooked slowly and to be well cooked—it is never served rare.

Roasting, fricasseeing, sauteing or braising are the cooking methods best suited to veal. Veal is never broiled because of the lack of fat and the large amount of connective tissue which requires a longer, slower cooking period to make it tender.

The cuts of veal suited to roasting for a small family of two are limited. You might have a loin roast of three or four or five loin chops in one piece, or a rolled roast made from a veal cutlet stuffed and rolled. If your butcher sells prepared rolled shoulder roasts, you might be able to buy about three pounds of this and roast or pot roast it. Breast of veal makes delicious fricassee or stew; very thin slices of the leg are used for scallopina or for veal birds. Loin or rib veal chops may be braised alone or with vegetables or stewed in a red wine sauce, which is delicious for occasional use.

Specific recipes are what you want, I know, so here are a few that are particularly good. These recipes are for serving two persons:

Roast Shoulder of Veal
Buy 2 1-2 to 3 pounds of boned, rolled shoulder of veal and see that it is securely tied and that it is wrapped with a piece of suet. This fat is needed to keep the meat juicy. Rinse the meat with cold water, drain and dry, then place in a roasting pan and sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour. Place in a slow oven—325 degrees—and cook for about 2 hours or 2 1-4 hours, basting every half hour with the fat that forms in the pan. Do not add water. This long, slow cooking makes the meat tender, keeps it juicy and prevents it shrinking very much. When done, make a brown gravy from the juice in the pan by adding 2 tablespoons flour to it and when mixed, stirring in 1 cup cold water. Stir until boiling and strain if necessary.

Roll Roast Cutlet
Buy a veal cutlet cut about 1-2 inch thick. This is a more expensive cut than the shoulder but has very little waste. Flatten it on a board and sprinkle with a little salt and pepper, then rub with 1 teaspoon of lemon juice. Crumble 1 cup fine stale bread crumbs and mix with 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 tablespoon melted butter and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Add just enough hot water to moisten the mixture and then spread it evenly over the meat. Roll up and tie securely with string in the middle and at both ends. Place in a greased pan and lay three or four strips of fat bacon over the top. Sprinkle lightly with flour, salt and pepper and roast in a slow oven—325 degrees—for 1 1-4 hours. The last half hour place two sliced canned pineapple cut in halves around the meat and finish cooking.

Braised Veal Chops
Buy four loin veal chops cut a scant half inch thick. Rinse in cold water, drain, dry and roll in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Heat 2 tablespoons of butter in a heavy frying pan and add a thin slice from a clove of garlic. Brown the chops in the hot butter, then reduce the heat to a very slow flame. Pour off any excess fat, add 1 teaspoon minced parsley and 1-4 cup red wine. Cover the pan closely and simmer for 40 minutes. Instead of the wine, you might add 2 tablespoons water, simmer the chops for 30 minutes, then add 1-2 cup thick cream and 1 tablespoon minced onion, cover and cook 10 minutes longer. Serve with the sauce in the pan as a gravy.

Veal Fricassee
Buy 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 pounds breast of veal. This has a lot of bone in it but the meat is sweet and tender. Have it cut in pieces. Roll the meat in flour seasoned with salt and pepper and brown quickly in a little hot fat. Drain off any excess fat, add a diced carrot, 1-4 cup sliced celery, 1-4 cup sliced onion and 3-4 cup water. Cover and cook very slowly for 1 1-2 hours, then thicken the gravy, if necessary, with a little flour and serve the meat very hot with mashed potatoes, boiled rice or in a noodle ring.

This cream date and walnut pie has a melt-in-the-mouth deliciousness.

Let's Make a Pie

For a grand climax to a dinner present pie as the dessert. Pie, whether it be fruit, cream, or fluffy chiffon, is a perennial favorite, and always will bring forth pleased exclamations, especially if there's a man in the crowd to be fed.

The crust—ah, that's where the trouble often lies. A crust should be delicately flavored and meltingly tender if it shall be worthy of the tantalizingly good filling it bears. And if you wish to be cherished as a maker of good pies you must practice the art of pastry making until you have mastered it. It is not a difficult art to learn. Here are suggestions for the pastry maker and luscious pie fillings:

1. Pastry is tender if the dough is handled little and rolled lightly. Toughness usually is caused by overhandling and by using too much water. Add the water a few drops at a time, tossing mixture lightly with a fork until the particles barely hold together.

2. Pastries made with cold shortening and cold water are flaky. Pastry is especially flaky if the cold shortening is cut into the flour only until the lumps are the size of a pea.

3. A mixture of shortening, salt, and flour may be kept in the refrigerator ready for the addition of water when there's a pie to be made. Another time saver is to mix pie dough, form into a ball, cover with wax paper, and chill in refrigerator until needed. Since chilling helps make pastry flaky, place pastry-lined pans in the refrigerator while filling is being prepared.

Basic Pastry Recipe
2 1-2 cups sifted flour
3-4 teaspoon salt
2-3 to 3-4 cup shortening
1-3 cup cold water

Mix and sift flour and salt; cut in shortening. Add water a few drops at a time, tossing lightly with a fork until particles hold together. Shape lightly into a ball, place in bowl or wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator thoroughly. Roll out lightly when ready to bake. Makes pastry for two 9-inch pies.

Pie pans need not be greased since the shortening in pastry prevents sticking.

Always ease pastry into the pan without stretching. Make a single baked crust by baking pastry over the back of a pie pan, and be sure to prick the pastry with a fork to let the steam escape.

Grated cheese mixed with the flour makes delicious nippy pastry for apple pie. Use 1-2 cup cheese to about 1 1-2 cups sifted flour.

Cream Date and Walnut Pie
2 cups milk
1-2 cup brown sugar or 1-2 c. maple syrup
2 beaten egg yolks
1-2 tsp. salt
2 tb. plain gelatin soaked in 1-2 c. cold water
1-2 cup dates—cut
1-2 cup broken walnut kernels
1-2 pt. cream, whipped
2 8-inch baked pie shells

Combine milk, sugar or syrup, egg yolks and salt in top of double boiler. Cook until slightly creamy and add gelatin that has soaked in cold water for about 10 minutes. Chill until mixture is firm, then beat slightly with egg beater and fold in the nuts, dates and 1-2 of the cream that has been whipped. Fill baked pie shells; top with remaining whipped cream and chill again until filling is set. Decorate top with whole walnut kernels.

Pecan Pie
1-4 cup butter
1-2 cup granulated sugar
3 eggs, unbeaten
3-4 cup molasses
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup pecan meats, sliced

Line 9-inch pie plat with pastry. Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, molasses and lemon juice and beat with rotary egg beater. Add pecan meats and pour into pastry-lined pie plate. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees F.) and bake 30 minutes longer.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Fish Flakes in Cream
Cold fish never is a problem, for fish flakes in cream sauce—generous with butter and seasonings—have many possibilities. Vary the flavor with any favorite sauce or with celery salt, minced parsley or grated onion.

2 1/2 cups cooked fish flakes.
1/4 teaspoon pepper.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1 cup cream, or cream and fish stock.
3 tablespoons parsley.
4 tablespoons butter.
Place butter, or part butter and shortening in frying pan over low heat. If minced onion is added, simmer in the shortening until light brown. In a bowl combine the other ingredients with cream, adding the flaked, cooked fish last. Pour into the hot shortening and simmer slowly until thoroughly heated and blended. Serve on toast, or with baked potatoes.

Ripe Olive Casserole Pie
2 1/2 cups diced cooked meat.
1 1/2 cups diced cooked carrots.
2 1/2 cups stock or bouillon.
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
1/4 teaspoon paprika.
Salt and pepper.
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch.
2-3 cup sliced ripe olives.
2 cups hot mashed potatoes.
Melted butter.

Combine meat, carrots, stock, Worcestershire sauce, paprika, salt and pepper to taste, cornstarch and ripe olives in a saucepan and stir until cornstarch is well blended. Bring to a boil and cook and stir until thick. Pour into a buttered casserole or baking dish; cover with potatoes, which should not be too moist, and brush with melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven (350 to 375 degrees F.) until top is nicely browned. Serves 6 to 8.

Hot raisin muffins, made by adding a half cup of raisins to plain muffin batter, are delicious with lemon gelatin ring filled with melon balls, or with cottage cheese.

Jellied Orange Fruit Cup
1 tablespoon gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
1/2 cup orange juice, heated
1/2 cup orange juice, unheated
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup orange pieces
1/2 cup sliced bananas
1/2 cup raspberries, canned or frozen

Soften gelatin in water 5 minutes. Add the hot orange juice. Stir to dissolve gelatin. Add cold orange juice, lemon juice, sugar and salt. Stir. When slightly thickened add orange pieces, banana slices and raspberries. Pour into shallow pan. Chill. When set serve in dessert glasses or parfait glasses. Garnish with additional orange sections and berries. Serves eight.

1 pound brown sugar equals 2-3 cups
1 pound butter or margarine equals 2 cups
1 pound meal equals approximately 3 cups
1 pound rice equals 2 cups
1 pound ground coffee equals 4 1-4 cups
1 pound finely chopped meat, packed, equals 2 cups
6 ounces raisins or currants equals 1 cup
2 ounces bread crumbs equals 1 cup
1 ounce chocolate equals 1 square (2 tablespoons cocoa equals 1 square chocolate)
1 ounce chopped nuts equals 1-3 cup
1 pound eggs equals 9 or 10 eggs

Patty Shells for Parties

February with its round of gay parties and entertainments is here and the special occasions call for your prettiest tricks in making gay cookies and cakes, small sandwiches and appetizers. An easy-to-make party teaser is a decorative patty shell made from toasted bread. To make them take two sizes of the same shaped cookie cutter. Plain round cutters make attractive shells, but hearts, diamonds, spades and clubs—if it's a bridge party—are fun too.

Allow three slices of bread for each patty shell. With the larger cutter, cut a shape from the center of each of the three slices. With the small cutter, cut the centers from two of the shapes, thus making two frames. Dip all three shapes in melted butter and stack them with the first and larger shape as a base. This makes the shell. Fix as many shells as desired, dip in melted butter and toast in a hot oven, or under a moderate broiler flame until a delicate golden brown. Fill each shell with two or three tablespoons of hot creamed food, tuck a tiny sprig of parsley into the top and serve.

The smallest shapes of bread cut from the centers of the frames may be spread with softened butter, sprinkled with grated cheese and toasted along with the patty shells. If it's to be a buffet meal, you may prefer to turn them into dainty little sandwiches with tempting spreads.

Braise Pork Chops

Pork chops properly cooked are among the most delicious of meats. It's an art to cook them correctly but fortunately an art quite easy to learn. There is but one basic method and that is by braising. Much of the secret of success lies in cooking the chops very slowly and thoroughly after they have been nicely browned. The long cooking is what brings out the flavor and insures a fine, tender texture of the lean meat.

For braising pork chops have the chops cut thick, at least one inch. Dredge the chops with flour, if desired. Brown them well on both sides in a little hot shortening. Season them with salt and pepper. Add two or three tablespoons hot water. Cover tightly and cook very slowly until thoroughly done, 45 minutes to an hour. There are a great variety of ways to serve pork chops, but braising is the basic preparation. Following is a recipe for

Pork Chops With Peanut Stuffing
6 pork chops
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 tablespoon butter or shortening
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs

Braised pork chops here are served with parsley potatoes.

1-2 cup finely chopped peanuts
1-2 teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne
1 3-4 cup milk

Have the chops cut two ribs thick and a pocket slit from the bone side. Cook onion slowly in the butter or shortening 5 minutes. Add bread crumbs, peanuts, salt and cayenne. Moisten with 3-4 cup milk. Fill pockets in the chops with stuffing. Sprinkle chops with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and brown slowly on both sides in a small amount of hot fat. Add the remaining 1 cup milk, cover closely and cook slowly over fire or in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until meat is tender. When chops are tender, remove to hot platter. Serves 6.

Pimento Sauce
Try this with meat patties, baked fish and baked beans:
1-3 cup green pepper, chopped.
3 tablespoons butter.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
1 cup boiling water.
1 1/2 tablespoons flour.
1-3 cup pimento, chopped.
Cook green pepper in water until tender. Mix butter, flour and salt. Add water and green pepper slowly. Cook until thickened. Add pimento last and serve hot.

Prize Winning Recipes For This Week

Cauliflower au Gratin

Submitted by Mrs. Harvey R. Whitmire, 2917 4th street, N. W., Canton, Ohio.

1 medium sized head cauliflower
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon dry mustard
1-8 teaspoon pepper
3-4 cup milk
Juice 1-2 lemon
3 tablespoons grated cheese

Separate cauliflower into flower-lets. Soak in salt water 15 to 20 minutes. Drain, drop in boiling salt water and cook until tender. With the butter, flour, salt and pepper, mustard and milk, make a white sauce. Then add lemon juice and half the cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Place drained cauliflower in buttered casserole. Pour sauce over all and sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake until cheese is melted and lightly browned.

Black Eyed Susan

Submitted by Mrs. S. P. Woods, 131 Maxwell street, Decatur, Ga.

1 envelope of plain gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
1-2 cups freshly made coffee
1-2 cup brown sugar firmly packed
Few drops of oil of cloves
1-2 cup heavy cream whipped
1-2 cup chopped Brazil nuts

Soften gelatin in cold water, add freshly made hot coffee and brown sugar. Stir until dissolved, add oil of cloves. Pour half of the liquid into a mold that has been rinsed in cold water. Chill half of the liquid until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream and chopped nuts. Place on top of clear jelly and chill until firm.

A prize of $1 each is awarded for recipes printed in this column every Friday. Address recipes to The Constitution or to Sally Saver, with your name and address written plainly on each sheet.

Honey Bran Muffins

Submitted by Mrs. Roy M. Jones, Route No. 2, Decatur, Ga.

2 cups sifted flour
1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups bran
1-3 cup chopped nut meats, (optional)
1 egg, well beaten
1-3 cup honey
1 3-4 cups sour milk or butter-milk

3 tablespoons melted shortening
Sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt together. Stir in bran. Mix egg, honey, sour milk and shortening together, then add gradually to the first mixture. Stir only enough to combine. Do not beat. If nuts are used, stir into dry ingredients before adding to wet ingredients. Fill well-greased muffin pans 2-3 full. Bake in hot oven (400F.) for 30 minutes or until done.

Brown Onion Soup

Submitted by Mrs. A. O. Bray, 711 Maple Drive, Griffin, Ga.

1 cup minced onion
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
2 bouillon cubes
2 cups boiling water
1 cup milk
1-4 teaspoon salt

Brown onions in butter or margarine. Remove from fire. Add flour and salt. Stir until blended. Combine bouillon cubes and boiling water. Stir until dissolved. Add to onion mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add milk. Heat to boiling. Serve at once.

The Army IN GEORGIA

Major J. Walter LeCraw, brother of Mayor LeCraw and assistant solicitor general of Fulton county, was ordered into active duty yesterday with the field artillery in Washington. He will be stationed in the office of the chief of ordnance. He has been connected since 1920 with the field artillery reserve in Atlanta.

GUARD OFFICERS GET FEDERAL RECOGNITION.

The following federal recognitions of national guard officers were announced by the National Guard Bureau of the War Department:

Lieutenant Colonel Alpheus L. Henderson, of Savannah; Captain Frederick H. Quante Jr., of Savannah; Captain William S. Waldo, of Atlanta; Captain Paul E. Caswell, of Hinesville; First Lieutenant William A. Smith, of Atlanta; First Lieutenant William H. Lindsey, of Atlanta; and First Lieutenant Carl H. Martin, of Savannah.

All were assigned to the 101st Separate Battalion, Coast Artillery (antiaircraft).

NAVY CONTRACT AWARDED TO ATLANTA COMPANY.

The Navy announced yesterday award of a $28,213 contract to the York Ice Machinery Corporation of Atlanta for air conditioning equipment at the Naval hospital at Pensacola, Fla. The contract calls for completion of work in 100 days.

BILLETING OFFICE AT FORT BENNING

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 6.—(AP) A billeting office has been established in the civic building to aid Fort Benning officers and married enlisted men in finding living quarters within and near the city.

Operated through the co-operation of post and city officials, the office daily secures from real estate dealers a list of available places and rental costs. Where homes seem priced too high an attempt is made to have the rents reduced.

In cases where the owner refuses, the homes are not offered to Army personnel. All officers and married enlisted men are required to rent through the office. Captain Frank R. Crom, in charge of the service, said its

'Loan Shark' Rate Put at 240 Per Cent

Average interest of 240 per cent annually was charged on 1,640 salary buying transactions investigated by a committee of the Atlanta Bar Association, according to a report filed yesterday with Philip Alston, president of the association.

Victor K. Meador, chairman of the committee on enforcement of usury laws, in his report said that the transactions investigated involved 591 separate individuals and a little more than $35,000. The usual custom, he said, was to charge 10 per cent every two weeks on loans exceeding $10, and 15 per cent every two weeks on loans of $5 to $10.

"A study of these transactions indicates that once a citizen becomes a patron of a loan shark, it is almost impossible for him to extricate himself," the report said.

mission of keeping rentals at prices fair to both owners and occupants is being accomplished. Secretary Stimson, in a statement several weeks ago, singled out the Fort Benning area in charging that some property owners were taking advantage of a housing shortage to charge exorbitant rents.

COLONEL HEAVEY ASSIGNED TO TROOPS' STAFF.

Lieutenant Colonel Thomas J. Heavey, Cavalry, has been detailed as a member of the general staff corps and assigned to the general staff with troops effective upon his arrival at Birmingham. He is relieved from assignment with the Sixth Cavalry, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Major Robert H. Holmes Jr., field artillery, has been assigned to Fourth Corps Area, Atlanta, from Fort Blanding, Fla.

Alabama Law To Keep Stock Off Highways

Ban Against Open Range Will Go Into Effect on March 1st.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 6.—(P)—Alabama's first state-wide stock law, enacted by the 1939-40 legislature in culmination of an embittered controversy enduring for many years, becomes effective March 1.

On that day and thereafter all hogs, goats, sheep, horses and mules must not run at large "on the premises of another" or on highways, unless the owner expose himself to penalties and indemnity to owners of property damaged by the roaming animals.

The same goes for cattle, except the law provides an option whereby a county by a majority ballot may render inoperative that part of the statute erasing the open range for cows, calves, yearlings, bulls and oxen.

Four counties—Escambia, Baldwin, Washington and Clarke—have exercised the option and the open range will continue for cattle. Votes have been taken in three other counties—Mobile, Tuscaloosa and Bullock—and these sustained the general ban against any open range. In these three and 60 other of Alabama's 67 counties all livestock come within the scope of state-wide law, unless and until others later vote from under the ban on free range for cattle.

The new statute nullifies an old Alabama law giving owners of stock the right to collect damages from persons killing or injuring animals on the highways.

Quadruplets Born; Getting on Nicely

FARGO, N. D., Feb. 6.—(P)—Quadruplets, one girl and three boys, were born today in St. John's hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Nick Brown, of Leonard, N. D. Weighing between 3 and 4 pounds each, the babies were getting along satisfactorily an hour after they were born, said Dr. J. F. Hanna, Fargo, who delivered the babies. The mother is 37.

Snake Cultism Ban Proposed In House Bill

Ministers Not Excused From Felony Charge Asked by Pittman.

Religious cults which persist in handling snakes should be brought under the law, thinks Representative Perry L. Pittman, of Berrien. He introduced a bill in the house yesterday to make it unlawful for any person to handle a poisonous snake or reptile in such a manner that the safety of any other person would be endangered. The author recalled a case of several months ago in which persons taking part in a religious rite were bitten by poisonous snakes in Cook county. "The fact that the person advising, counseling or encouraging another to handle snakes is a minister shall in no way excuse the offense," the bill said. He provided that conviction would carry the sentence of a felony—from one to 20 years. In the event, however, that death is caused by a violation of this act, the convicted person may be subjected to the death penalty.

Farming Group Sees Growth of Dairy Industry

Long-Time Viewpoint in Handling Unemployment Urged.

By HAROLD MARTIN.
Fearful that at some future time the boom based on national defense will collapse suddenly leaving in its wake ghost towns and a distressed economy, members of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers last night went on record as urging a long-time point of view in the handling of employment and housing around new defense industries.

At the same time the association saw a great opportunity for an increase of dairymen and the south as the result of camps and cantonments in this section, and urged dairy producers to work out plans to supply sufficient high-quality milk to meet military demands.

Outlining farm problems now as "loss of market, low prices for what they sell, high prices for what they buy, and an inadequate and improper diet," the association made the following recommendations:

"That every resource of state and nation be turned to raising the income of the farmer; that conservation and adjustment programs may be continued to aid the farmer in using all his land in a balanced program of production for raising food and feed for home needs, for balancing crops with livestock and for profitable production of timber."

Seek New Markets.
It was also resolved that new markets for farm products must be found to make way for those lost by the spread of war, and the association pledged itself to research leading to new and bigger outlets for farm produce.

The problem of tenancy, it was resolved, could first be attacked by increasing farm income and working out a system that will provide productive employment of farm labor throughout the year. Increase in forestry, dairying, poultry raising and the improvement of farm housing were other efforts favored by the resolutions.

A resolution adopted by the southern commissioners of agriculture attending the meeting urged congressional approval of a resolution introduced by Representative M. P. Fulmer, of South Carolina, which would provide for the use of cotton to increase the quality of wood pulp. Such usage, it was said, would conserve timber—and decrease by five to six million bales a year the cotton surplus.

At a business meeting last night Clarence Dorman, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, Mississippi State College, was elected president of the association, succeeding Dr. I. O. Schaub, dean and director of the North Carolina State College, at Raleigh.

Other officers chosen include W. C. Lasseter, Memphis, vice president, and F. E. Miller, director of Department of Agriculture test farms at Raleigh, secretary-treasurer.

Electrification and mechanization of farms was the subject of two addresses yesterday. Miss Willie Vie Dowdy, extension economist, pointed out that the average rural woman worked at least 52 hours a week, and that electrification could cut this total by at least a third—at a cost of approximately 9 1/2 cents a day.

Citing the experience of Georgia families, Miss Dowdy pointed out that electricity can be used not only to make life easier by decreasing the amount of hand work, but can also be used in the development of various farm money-making projects.

Mechanization of farm work now makes it possible for the farmer and his family to do most of the farm work, Harry G. Davis, Chicago, told the association. Though this trend displaces some farm workers, he said, the greater income derived from the farm will set up a higher living standard, giving employment in industry to displaced farm workers.

Greeks Pound Tepeleni, Fight At Very Gates

Italians Use Everything They Have in Effort To Save City.

BITOLJ, Yugoslavia, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Greek warriors are pounding at the very gates of Tepeleni, border dispatches said tonight, after their guns set aflame that vitally important Albanian town commanding the road leading to the Adriatic port of Valona, 28 miles away.

The harassed Italians, trying desperately to stem the Greek advance, were reported to have made attack after attack here and there, the report said, only to be thrown back with staggering losses. Even crack Fascist motorized units were used to no avail.

Italian General Ugo Cavallero has thrown everything he has into the battle of Tepeleni because he realizes the fate of the entire Fascist venture in Albania hinges on success or failure there, Greek sources say.

In the Devol valley sector, in central Albania, the Greeks and Italians fought toe-to-toe with bayonets throughout the day, advances reaching here said, with considerable losses on both sides and without change in original positions.

Greeks here reported their forces in the last 10 days had dislodged the Italians from more than 40 square miles of territory.

DAVID WALLACE, of Detroit, head of the Chrysler Sales Corporation, who told southeastern dealers here yesterday that the national defense program has not curtailed the automobile industry.

Ex-President Bru Sees Cuban Peace

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Dr. Federico Laredo Bru, former president of Cuba, predicted today that deposed Cuban officials seeking refuge here would "get together" with President Fulgencio Batista and return to the island republic.

"Everything happens in politics," Dr. Laredo Bru said in an interview, "everything is always fixed up. There is no love or hate in politics and sooner or later they all will get together."

NAVY COMMANDER SAILS FOR MIAMI

Defense Work Called No Bar To Auto Output

The automobile industry is co-operating with the defense commission but does not foresee curtailment in its normal production of automobiles, David A. Wallace, president of the Chrysler Sales Corporation, said here yesterday at the southeastern Chrysler dealers' meeting.

Mr. Wallace, who discussed the immediate prospects of the industry, reassured the dealers and declared that the co-operation asked for and received by the government in its national defense work has not thus far affected the progress of the automobile business because orders for armored trucks and ordinary trucks are easily filled and because machines used in making automobiles cannot be converted into machines to make tanks and airplanes.

"The government doesn't want to curtail our business," Mr. Wallace explained, "and until required we won't cut our production or any phase of our organization, from laborers to dealers. When the time comes we will worry about what will happen to the 30 per cent, say, if that is how much we are asked to cut, and until that time we aren't worrying about anything except our day by day business."

The Chrysler Corporation has received a government contract to manufacture tanks, and Mr. Wallace said a new factory is so near completion that the machinery is being placed and that the tanks will be coming off the assembly line a great deal faster than a new model car could be put on the market.

"Even with the co-ordination problems, like getting armor plating from other factories and setting up a new organization with the best men in the Chrysler company to head it up, work on these 25 to 30-ton tanks with from 700 to 2,000 horsepower airplane motors which are air-cooled instead of water-cooled, is moving plenty fast, and the defense commission is doing a magnificent job," Mr. Wallace concluded.

Other speakers at the session who discussed the national defense problem from both automobile factory and automobile dealer points of view were S. W. Monroe, general sales manager of the Chrysler Sales Corporation; C. L. Jacobson, vice president of the corporation; and Kendrick Brown, president of the Chrysler Detroit Company.

The four guest speakers are from Detroit, and the meeting here was one of a series being conducted in various parts of the country to remove confusion regarding the status of the industry as regards the defense program.

Nazi Freighter Runs Britain's Blockade

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Agents of the German freighter Rio Grande said today they had received information that she had run the British blockade and arrived in Hamburg with a load of grain and other supplies. The ship sailed November 30, from Rio Grande Do Sul after several previous efforts to get away.

Georgia Elks' Association To Meet Sunday

Nomination of McClelland as Exalted Ruler Is Expected.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 6.—The Georgia Elks' Association, which will meet here Sunday, is expected to endorse the nomination of Past President John S. McClelland, of Atlanta Lodge No. 78, for grand exalted ruler at the grand lodge session in Philadelphia next July.

Reports will be received from District Deputies Roderick M. McDuffie and Dr. W. C. McGeary, the vice presidents of the association, and the exalted rulers of the 23 Georgia lodges.

With the institution of Decatur Lodge No. 1602 on October 13, 1936, the association adopted the slogan, "Elkdom Is on the March in Georgia," and since that time 10 additional new lodges have been organized in the state, the newest being Columbus Lodge No. 1639, which received a dispensation from Grand Exalted Ruler Joseph Buch January 24, 1940.

The Gentleman—

From White ... From Ringgold ... From Emanuel ...

Representative E. L. Russell, of White.

E. L. Russell, representative from Cleveland, White county, has spent the greater part of his life serving the public. He operates a restaurant and grocery store in Cleveland and is also connected with a gasoline business there.

"White county is now leaning on my intelligence," he says, "for honest and square representation."

It is his aim not to prove a weak support. He is 50, has three sons and one daughter, and finds politics "fascinating."

Senator J. H. Clark, of Ringgold, 44th District.

Unlike most of the senators, Jim Clark took his oath of office in bed—at St. Joseph's hospital. And he says his friends will never forget the polka dot pajamas he wore in the photograph. He thinks he must be lucky. Everyone says I am.

Outside of interest in the work of the law-making body of the state, he thinks the most valued possible friendships are made in the assembly chambers. A farmer and stock dealer, he was born and reared in Ringgold where his father was a pioneer. He got into politics "on the spur of the minute"—that's all he knows about it.

Representative V. H. Hooks, of Emanuel.

A Swainsboro farmer and grocer, Representative V. H. Hooks is serving in the house for his first time. He is interested in the economical benefits of the state and his county. His aim is to see better schools and a more efficient educational system in the state. Because he is a farmer and lives in a farming section, he naturally is interested in the general welfare of agriculture. He is 44 and has six children.

Insurance Tax Increase Fails To Pass Group

House Committee To Make Adverse Report on Measure.

By LUKE GREENE.

A tax increase on insurance companies was voted down, 23 to 11, yesterday afternoon by the ways and means committee of the house of representatives and an adverse report will be submitted to the full house today.

Representative J. Bush Mims, of Miller, argued for his bill which provided that the tax on gross insurance premiums be increased from one and one-half per cent to three per cent. Representatives of three insurance associations and companies opposed it.

State Rate Low.

He contended that insurance companies in most other states had to pay more taxes than they did in Georgia. He cited figures showing that only three states have a rate as low as one and one-half per cent—Alabama, Delaware and Georgia.

"If the state of Texas can get three and one-fourth per cent, why can't we get three per cent?" he wanted to know. He said this tax in Georgia last year raised approximately $1,000,000 and he declared that "if you could collect what people in Georgia owe, you wouldn't have any trouble running this state."

He proposed that the money that would be received from the tax be divided up among the counties to compensate them for the losses sustained from home-stead exemptions.

Called Burdensome.

P. M. Lancaster, of Sylvester, president of the Georgia Association of Fire Insurance Agents, said insurance companies already were laboring under a tremendous

Cecil Cannon 10th Member Of Traffic Unit

Board Will Be Organized at Meeting This Afternoon.

Cecil Cannon, Atlanta hotel executive, yesterday was designated by Mayor LeCraw as the 10th member of the newly created city traffic board and will attend the organization meeting of the group at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Cannon will serve with five other citizen members and four city officials, who will devote their efforts towards a solution of the increasingly perplexing local traffic problem.

Other citizens who will serve on the board are Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution; George C. Biggers, vice president and general manager of The Journal; Albert Gossett, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; Charles H. Jagels, general manager of Davidson-Paxon Company, and Lawrence L. Gellerstedt, executive vice president of the Citizens' and Southern National Bank.

The mayor, Police Committee Chairman G. Dan Bridges, Police Chief Hornsby and Raymond W. Thomas, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, are other members of the group.

M. L. Thomas, traffic engineer, and Emmett Elliott, who will serve as secretary of the board, will attend the organization session today.

Reserve Officers To Meet Sunday

State-wide observance of National Defense Week beginning next Wednesday will be planned Sunday at a meeting of the Georgia Council, Reserve Officers' Association, Macon.

Lieutenant Colonel P. S. Moses, of Savannah, state department president, has called the session for 10 a. m. (EST) at the Dempsey hotel. He said about 100 officers representing the 30 chapters in the state will attend.

A delegation of about 15 Atlanta reservists, headed by Lieutenant John T. Carlton, Atlanta chapter president, will leave early Sunday morning for the session, program for which calls for morning and afternoon business sessions and a luncheon. Colonel Fonville McWhorter, executive officer of the Atlanta military district, will be one of the principal speakers.

President Approves Bill To Build Cargo Ships

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt gave quick approval today to a bill appropriating $312,500,000 for construction of 200 new cargo ships.

Congressional action was completed yesterday.

The new ships will cost an aggregate of $350,000,000, but $36,500,000 already has been allocated from a special fund by the President to start work on new facilities for building the ships.

Good used bikes are in demand. They put cash in your hand when offered through the Want Ads of The Constitution.

MY DAY: R. A. F. Insignia On Benefit Watches

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Wednesday.—On leaving the very pleasant lunch given by Mrs. Frank Walker yesterday, I went to the Calvary Baptist church, where an afternoon seminar on the migratory worker was going on under the auspices of the National Christian Mission. The churches have been working for some time on this problem; and I feel it is a very good thing for all of us, no matter to what special denomination we may belong, to join in work which translates into action the spiritual beliefs we hold.

Over the banisters, as I came out of the church, a little old lady called to me in French. I answered her in her own language, for I think one must have a hunger sometimes, when in a foreign land, to hear other people talk the language of your birth.

From there I went to receive a watch from Mr. William C. Ruxton, president of the British-American Ambulance Corps, Inc. A duplicate of the one given to me is being sent to Queen Elizabeth, and these watches with the insignia of the R.A.F. are going to be on sale at local jewelers all over the country for the benefit of this committee. Here in Washington they are trying to raise $25,000—the first $1,000 was handed to Mr. Ruxton today for the purchase of a flying ambulance to pick up aviators shot down at sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawkins, of Reno, Nev., arrived to spend last night with us, and we had the usual small dinner preceding the congressional reception. After the reception was over, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. and I left on the night train for New York. We breakfasted in my apartment in New York and at 9 o'clock Miss Rose Schneiderman, of the Women's Trade Union League, joined us there. We started at once for Greenpoint, Brooklyn, where I had promised to speak for a few minutes to the girls who have been on strike at the Leviton factory for a great many weeks.

We are now starting on our drive to Amherst, Mass. Both of us are armed with fur coats and warm clothes, though I confess it seemed impossible to believe in Washington that it could really be cold up here.

We have had a warm winter so far in Washington and I have been able to sleep with both my bedroom windows open. My bed stands between them, so when the wind blows I sometimes am awakened in the middle of the night by swishing curtains over my face and shades and papers blowing off my night table!

Girl Dislikes Living Next Door To Mother-in-Law

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

We are engaged to be married in a few months. His mother has given us a lot next door to her home. I have refused to live that close to his family and have told him that we should start out right and alone and sell that lot and buy another somewhere else. I have hurt him by saying this much. I love my future mother-in-law and she thinks a lot of me. Please tell me how to handle this problem.

BEWILDERED.

ANSWER:

Putting yourself in the other woman's shoes, wouldn't you think son's fiancée was a high-handed miss, itching for a row? Wouldn't you think her unappreciative, ungracious, selfish and determined to have her way? Wouldn't you suspect that she was jealous, possessive and unlikely to be an amiable partner to your son? Frankly, that's what I would conclude were I the prospective mother-in-law.

Quite true, in these days everybody has a word on the subject of the impossibility of in-laws living together in peace and concord. Not surprising that the young people should be aroused to the dangers of the experiment. But there other side which isn't often said; namely, that where in-laws are not antagonistic to begin with, where they know how to exercise forbearance and self-control, it is entirely possible for them to be dear friends as well as loving relatives.

Surely mother and daughter-in-law ought to be able to live in the same block without incurring mutual enmity, particularly when mother has generously given the lot on which son and his wife live. This every-one-has-a-right-to-lead-his-own-life philosophy is taking us. It is taking us too far. It is making us ruthless, restive under responsibilities which we should assume gladly and carry gracefully. This philosophy is fostering selfishness and cruelty in our dealings with our dear ones, or those that ought to be our dear ones.

A young octogenarian who lays down a wicked wood on the bowling green has for many years taken his daily shot of insulin and carried a lunch to eat in mid-afternoon in case of a let-down (hypoglycemia, insulin shock) in the course of his game. A year or more ago I persuaded him to boost his intake of vitamin B complex. He began supplementing his prescribed diet with a moderate daily ration of B complex.

A few months later he informed me that not long after he had adopted that practice he had found it necessary to reduce the dose of insulin which had been required for years, and was now able to keep in fine fettle on a smaller daily dose of insulin.

I have been yelling about this effect of vitamin B complex for years, and not wholly on the power of my own hot air generator either. Scientific literature, if not medical journals, has provided the power—I merely chop it up and slice it thin for you. Scientifically no doctor, professor or textbook author can afford to question or doubt that vitamin B complex (principally, perhaps, the B1 (thiamin) entity or factor, but presumably other entities of the natural B complex too) is essential for the metabolism (assimilation and utilization) of carbohydrate (starches and sugars), and that most of diabetes who follow a regulated diet, under medical supervision or on their own, get rather less vitamin B complex than ordinary folks get whose diet is made up largely of refined foods. That being true, I stand on solid ground when I urge everybody who has diabetes, and more particularly everybody who is now training for diabetes to supplement his daily scant intake of vitamin B complex with a concentrate of B complex which is suitable for the purpose.

Again the other day, warming up for a game, my young friend was reminded he had something of interest to report. Recently, he said, he had still further increased his daily ration of B complex, on the principal that if a little is good more would be better. Having booped it the second time he went on and forgot about it, until one day he suffered another insulin shock, the nature of which a member of his family recognized at once and promptly dispelled by feeding him some sugar. So there now he is coasting along as smoothly as one could desire on a still smaller daily dose of insulin.

The next chapter in this story must await the denouement. Unless some medical mossaick gets my bowling cron's ear and mumbles about the dangers of taking too much vitamin I expect the next spell of hypoglycemia will put the man off his insulin altogether. That's why I call vitamin B "poor man's insulin"—even though it makes some of the big shots tearing mad.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Hernia Cured.

Confronted with choice of wearing a truss the rest of my life or going through an operation with all the necessary hospital expenses and interruption in work. Write you, and you recommended Dr. [Name] who gave me the injection treatment, and in approximately 15 treatments I was cured. Thank you for sending me to such a competent man. (H. H. N.)

Answer—The ambulant (injection) treatment is not applicable in every case of hernia, nor is every doctor qualified to give the treatment, but in the hands of a doctor properly trained in the difficult technique it is successful in at least as large a proportion of cases as the radical operation is.

Goitre.

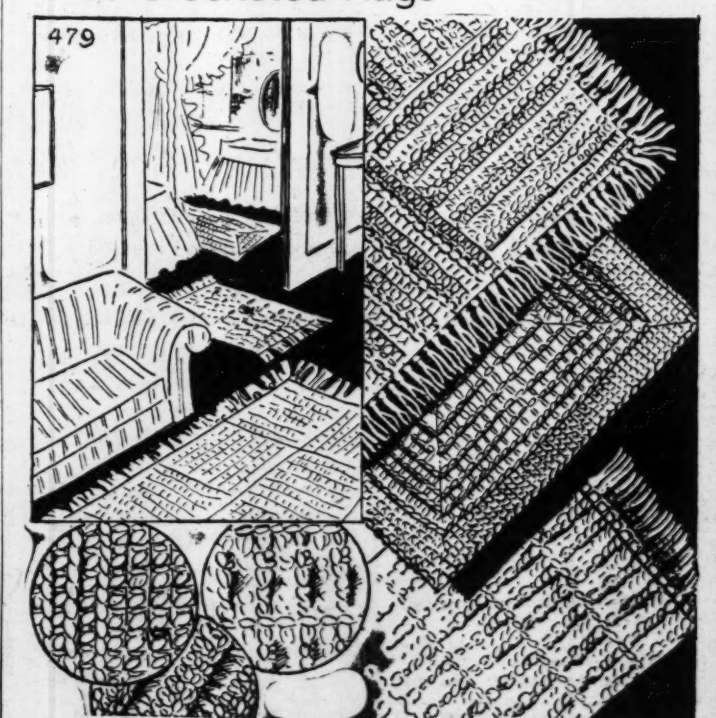

Does the use of iodized salt in place of ordinary salt help reduce a possible goitre? Which foods contain iodine? (Mrs. E. C. R.)

Answer—Yes. Also take an Iodin Ration—for instructions send stamped envelope bearing your address. Any sea fish or shell fish, fresh or canned, is rich in iodine—such as canned salmon, oysters, shrimp, codfish, crabmeat—of course fresh fish or shellfish contains more iodine than canned.

Today's Charm Tip

Don't make it your business to prove that the other person is wrong in a small unimportant statement which may not be wholly true. By letting it pass, he saves his face and you your charming one.

Women love creams that soothe and soften their skin, that keep the skin smooth and with a velvety mat finish, that lubricate and aid in preventing tell-tale lines, and a cream designed for rejuvenating the skin is even more appealing. We've told you about many kinds of creams before, but the one we've been using lately is really something special.

The cosmetics in creating this cream kept in mind two things . . . that modern beauty is based on a smooth, lovely skin and that make-up must be artfully applied on a good foundation cream or lotion. The use of this cream, after you have cleansed and toned your face, gives you a moist, natural-bloom look and acts as a grand make-up base.

It's a bland, white cream, delicate, scented, which makes the skin feel smooth and alive and as soft as an infant's skin. For the woman who dislikes a heavy, lubricating night cream, this one is perfect to use just before retiring and leave on overnight, keeping the skin moist and pliable with no greasiness whatever and making it feel cool and refreshed.

Be sure to thoroughly cleanse the face and neck before applying this cream. Put a dab of the cream here and there on the face and blend it over the entire surface. Then you're ready for your make-up. You'll find that besides holding make-up all day and protecting the skin, this restorative cream minimizes fatigue lines, large pores and slight imperfections on the skin, giving the skin that radiant dewy look of youth.

You'll think, after using this cream a few times, that you have truly discovered the Fountain of Youth and you'll be delighted at the flattery it merits. For skin loveliness night and day; for building and protecting skin with a youthful bloom, you'll add this cream to your must list.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Is an opening bid of three or four preferred in making a pure shut-out bid in contract bridge?
A. The four-bid is preferred because it takes three rounds of bidding away from the opponents.

Q. How can the discoloration inside aluminum pans be removed?
A. By cooking tomatoes or rhubarb in the pan, or boiling in a weak solution of vinegar and water for five minutes.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor of The Constitution, 1013 13th Street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

House Plants Brighten A Home

So beautifully an array of plants sets off your household treasures! In a sunny window you can easily grow the lovely Lady Washington geranium and kalanchoe. Arrange them on shelves with your prized bits of glassware and what a picture you have—the gay colors of the flowers vying with the jewel-like tones of the glass!

Or think what miracles plants would work with other pieces, giving grace to an old secretary, brightening a bronze tray. Many plants flourish in even darkish spots with a little care.

As for the sun-loving geranium its other wants are few. Not too much water, a not-too-rich soil and it should thrive. One Lady Washington variety has gorgeous red blossoms splashed with velvety black.

Kalanchoe, too, is one of the sturdier house plants. Its clusters of pink or red flowers last for weeks and all it asks is a porous sandy soil and lots of water while growing.

Then with your flowering plants you want the grace of trailing foliage. Philodendron, English ivy and wandering-jew can be grown easily in either soil or water.

This time of year, too, you can force into bloom branches from flowering trees and shrubs—forsythia, Japanese quince and bridal wreath. Choose short branches for quick bloom. Cut stems on a slant and keep in water in a light warm spot. And not too late to start narcissus bulbs and lily-of-the-valley pips, give your home all the joys of spring!

Hedy Borrows Corsage From Studio To Wear For An Evening Out

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—Claude Colbert could not understand at first why her "Skylark" set was crowded with most of the columnists and reporters in town. She soon found out. There were rumors of an imminent visit from the stork. "No," said Claudette. And further emphasized, "No, no!" The Pressmans, however, are looking for an infant to adopt. . . . Joan Crawford's New York newspaperman is in town — which is why she is refusing all other dates. . . . Carole Landis is now as fond of Cedric Gibbons (Dolores Del Rio's ex) as she was a few weeks ago of Franchot Tone, who is now playing the field and avoiding what he describes as "Women with brains."

Sign of the Hollywood times: Hedy Lamarr wore two orchids for her last scene in "Ziegfeld Girl." She cared for them tenderly under the siege of hot lights, and at the end of the day said, "I have to go out this evening. May I borrow them?" I wonder which man was taking Hedy out and not sending her flowers?

Ernest Hemingway and his bride, Martha Gellhorn, had one night in Hollywood before leaving for China. And were given a party by the Gary Coopers. But the latter, instead of inviting people the Hemingways might want to meet, gathered the folks who wanted to meet the Hemingways. Which is something else again. The author, by the way, says he only wants Ingrid Bergman for "Maria" in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." "I don't want to sound egotistical," says Bob Hope, "but a Paramount executive in London tells me that when an air-raid is on, people go to the cinema to see me in 'The Ghost Breakers.'"

Dorothy Lamour, who will soon have made six pictures in seven months, is complaining to her bosses that she is the most over-worked actress in Hollywood since Bette Davis was rushed into a breakdown via too many pictures. Dotty tells me that unless there is

It may be another four years before Fred Allen gets together with Jack Benny—or anyone else, for a picture. It took two years and two trips to New York for Director Mark Sandrich to corral Allen for "Love Thy Neighbor," which, by the way, is bringing in a fortune for Paramount. "But," Sandrich tells me, "Allen does not like the medium of pictures. I want him for a repeat with Benny, but it probably will take me four years to get him this time." Allen, who is a boy who looks well ahead, is considering cutting in half his hourly weekly broadcast, but not until 1943. It must be nice to be able to plan like that in these troublous times.

Opera Stars Become Glamour Girls

By Ida Jean Kain.

In the old days of the Diamond Horseshoe, slimmest among opera stars was so exceptional that it was almost taken for granted the golden voice needed the lush bolstering of excessive weight.

But the old order has changed. Nowadays, the singing stars are watching the weight scales as closely as the glamour girls of the movies. It would take Lily Pons and Gladys Swarthout together to bring the scales up to the impressive figure at which the famous Tetrazzini regularly weighed in.

There are not very many like Nordica, Gadski, Matzenauer, Fremstad, Emmy Destinn and Schumann-Heink. True, some of the older stars today are still more portly than plump—but that is not what would be called the trend.

The lovely Grace Moore shows what an opera star—or any other woman—can do with her looks via the weight scales. Those who knew her "when" say she was no glamour girl until she became weight conscious. After she became ambitious for a screen career, she not only slimmed down from a mature figure to school-girl proportions but even acquired the fascinating cheek hollows demanded of movie sirens.

Most of the singers, however, are as noted for their streamlined figures as for their voices. Jarmila Novotna, the Czech soprano, sets a new high in glamour for the Met—she is tall, slender, beautifully proportioned.

The blonde and lovely Hilda Burke thinks it impossible to keep in form without 45 minutes of daily exercise, which includes rope skipping, kicking, and other vigorous tests of endurance. She also keeps a strict eye on the calories—and regards soda fountain concoctions as the main downfall of the feminine figure.

Gladys Swarthout, twice nominated as one of America's best dressed, proved the theory that being well-dressed depends on having a good figure. She is five feet three and one-half inches tall and weighs 125 pounds—all streamlined. Her formula for beauty consists in standing on her head several times a day, doing a wall-walking exercise and in exercising daily with a rowing machine.

If you want to watch your calories, send stamped return envelope to The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for Ida Jean Kain's "Twenty-One Day Diet"—you can lose 10 pounds on it.

Italian Force Already Moving Out of Bengasi

British Expected To Reach Gates of Capital in 48 Hours.

CAIRO, Feb. 6.—(UP)—Italian motorized columns tonight were reported fleeing from Bengasi, Fascist general headquarters in Libya, to escape encirclement by Britain's army of the Nile.

The British invasion of Eritrea, Italy's Red Sea colony, was said to be closing in upon the plateau town of Cheren and the capital of Asmara in a double-pronged drive that already has taken 1,500 prisoners and war materials "of all descriptions."

(The British are expected to reach the gates of Bengasi in 48 hours, the Associated Press said.)

Constantly blasting a path for the drive of tanks, armored cars and Australian infantry, planes of the Royal Air Force kept up a steady bombing of Bengasi's defenses, including the nearby air-dromes.

Everywhere in the British thrusts into Eritrea, Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, British casualties have been "negligible in comparison with the enemy casualties," the British middle East command reported.

The forces of General Sir Archibald Wavell were sweeping toward Bengasi along three routes with thousands of demoralized Italian troops fleeing before them, according to military advisers.

One wing of Wavell's army of the Nile moved along the coastal road from Derna and Cirene toward Bengasi, a second pushed westward along a road slightly inland across the Gebel el Akhdar plateau and a third struck straight across the desert, past ruins of the ancient Roman Empire.

The force proceeding along the Akhdar plateau intends to join the main coastal force at Barce, just north of Bengasi, for the final assault on the stronghold.

Dispatches revealed that long motor truck trains already were moving westward from the Bengasi area in anticipation of the tion to a nice British prison camp. There they will join several thousand more of their comrades. They were among that Bardia crowd.

France Bars Donovan From Travel in Syria

Embassy Official Stops Him as He Starts To Board Train.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Colonel William J. Donovan, the American observer who is traveling extensively in southeastern Europe and the Near East, has been prevented from traveling through Syria by express orders of the French government at Vichy, a reliable informant said today.

(The eventual position of the untested French army in Syria, like that in North and West Africa, is nebulous, but both General Maxime Weygand in Africa and General Henri Dentz in Syria have called upon soldiers and civilians to obey Chief of State Petain at Vichy, rather than be swayed by "Free French" appeals from London. Syria might become a battleground if Germany should try to strike at the Suez Canal through southeastern Europe and the Levant.)

Donovan, who now is in Jerusalem, left Ankara Monday night. He had a visa which would have enabled him to go through Syria to the Holy Land.

Just before he boarded the train, however, a French embassy official arrived at the station, it was reported, and announced that he had received a cable from Vichy which said that under no circumstances should Donovan be permitted to traverse Syria.

As a result, the colonel and his party hastily rearranged their schedule, went by train to Adana, in south Turkey, and from there were flown to Palestine, via the British Island of Cyprus, by Lord Forbes, assistant British air attaché in Athens.

The plane avoided Syrian territory.

London Enjoys Another Night Free of Raids

Strong Wind Follows Heavy Snowfall During the Day.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—London relaxed in its 14th raid-free night out of the last 18 tonight, and German air activity elsewhere over Britain was minor.

A few planes were reported near Liverpool and other localities in west England and Wales. No bombing of any consequence was reported.

'Standby Duce,' Parading Rome Students Urge

Several Hundred March in 'Disdain' Against Reports of Riots.

ROME, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Several hundred students, shouting "Down with democracy!" and crying vivas for Mussolini, Hitler and Italy's king, marched today from the tomb of the Italian unknown soldier through Rome's principal streets toward the American embassy, but turned into a side street without passing the embassy itself.

Among the signs they carried was one bearing the inscription: "Stand by the Duce!"

Some reported that anti-American shouts were heard, while the demonstrators themselves said they were protesting against Britain and not America.

The official Italian news agency Stefani said the demonstration was one of "disdain" for the "non-sense" of the London radio—which has alleged that riots occurred in Rome—and intended also to show "the most lively solidarity for the Italian and German comrades."

Il Giornale D'Italia appeared with a denunciation by its authoritative editor, Virginio Gayda, of proposed United States help to Britain.

Gayda, who usually expresses the views of Premier Mussolini, asserted the "unconfessed but dominant aim" of the United States was the defense of plutocracy, not democracy.

Opponents of the Roosevelt administration's bill to help Britain were termed "more honest and wise American politicians" by Gayda, who named particularly General Robert E. Wood, head of the America First Committee.

Get your Vitamins with BAMBY bread

BAMBY puts back in its bread what the miller takes out of white flour.

One of nature's most potent food elements, and very necessary to balanced diet, is stored in the kernel of the wheat.

Converting wheat into white flour, millers extract the germ and remove the bran layers, thus robbing the flour of its chief vitamins.

That is why doctors and dietitians have, until now, recommended whole wheat bread in preference to white. It has the natural vitamin required to nourish and sustain the body.

Vitamin B1
Heart of the Wheat

At long last, chemists have discovered how to capture and restore the important vitamin B1 to white bread without effecting either its color or taste.

Now you get your Bamby white bread with the same quantity (501 International Units) of vitamin B1 as contained in a loaf of 100% whole wheat bread.

No Advance in Price

The Energy and Nerve Vitamin

Six slices eaten daily of Bamby white bread contains quantity sufficient of the important vitamin B1 to compensate for the absence or deficiency in many of the popular foods that form the diet of the average family.

So, get your vitamin B1, in ample quantity, by eating Bamby Bread three times a day.

Rich! Wholesome! Delicious!

FIRST in this market to incorporate Vitamin B1 in Bread.

Sentiment Is Sharply Divided On Roosevelt British Aid Bill

Gallup Poll Finds Northeastern States Approve Measure While Midwest Opinion Is Almost Evenly Split; Time Limit Is Asked.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
Copyright, 1941.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 6.—Public sentiment in the New England and middle Atlantic states, as measured by an Institute survey, is favorable to the President's lease-lend bill by a fair-sized majority, but opinion in the east central states is much more evenly divided. In the area comprising Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan the number of voters who oppose passage of the lease-lend bill is almost as large as the number who favor it.

These results, emphasizing the fact that opinion on the bill splits geographically, are part of the Institute's nation-wide survey on the lease-lend controversy. Ballots from the New England, middle Atlantic and east central areas were the first to come in.

NEW ENGLAND AND MIDDLE ATLANTIC STATES
Yes	54%
No	21
Qualified Answers	16
No Opinion	9

EAST CENTRAL STATES

(Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan.)
Yes	39%
No	35
Qualified Answers	17
No Opinion	9

Republican leaders on Capitol Hill struck a responsive chord when they insisted that a time limit be placed on the life of the bill, for the public sees eye to eye with them on that score.

Evidence of this comes from another question put to voters in the survey, as follows:

"If congress does pass this bill, should the powers which it grants to the President be given to him for as long as the war lasts, or for only a limited period of time, such as two years?"

	New Eng. & Mid-Atlantic	East Central
As Long as War Lasts	35%	31%
Limited Period	56	59
No Opinion	9	10

House Moves To Eliminate Ballot Numbers

Plan Would Be Optional With Counties Under Measure.

By LUKE GREENE.

Georgia's house of representatives yesterday moved to increase the number of voters in the state by approving a bill calling for a "secret" ballot in those counties that want it. The vote was 148 to 4.

Representatives George L. Sabados and Ernest Wetherbee, of Dougherty county, took the floor in behalf of the bill which would permit counties to adopt the new system for primaries and general elections if one grand jury recommends it.

The measure is designed to do away with the system whereby ballots are numbered so that they may be matched with numbered stubs and thus show how each person cast his vote.

Representative Sabados explained that Dougherty county citizens were especially anxious that the bill be passed. He said it was essentially a local bill with a general application.

"I know that many are kept away from the polls because they are afraid someone will find out how they voted," Sabados said. "I've had people tell me they hated to vote a certain way, but they had to vote that way because we do not now have a secret ballot."

Measure Amended.

An amendment was tacked onto the measure providing that if, after a year, a county decides it wants to discard the system, this can be done with the recommendation of the grand jury. Prior to this amendment the bill specified a period of two years.

Sabados emphasized that Georgia at present does not have a strictly Australian system of voting, pointing out that only two other states are in the same position—South Carolina and Delaware.

He added he did not favor a system whereby several hundred voters in a county might stay away from the polls through fear that somebody might know how they voted.

Questions Answered.

"The threat of intimidation always is there," he asserted. "It makes some people vote differently than they would if they could vote secretly like free people should."

The two representatives from Dougherty were forced to answer a volley of questions on the measure but finally sold the lower house on the measure when they made it clear that it was purely optional with the counties.

It almost precipitated a parliamentary tangle when it came to a vote, however. The measure actually was a substitute for a substitute bill. The first substitute had been reported favorably by the committee, and the second was introduced from the floor. Speaker Randall Evans Jr. straightened the representatives out by letting them vote against the first substitute and then take up the second.

Prison Bill Scheduled.

Major bills to be taken up today will include those abolishing the State Board of Penal Corrections and transferring the duties of this department to the Prison and Parole Commission. They also provide for the creation of a superintendent of farms to perform some of the functions previously under the jurisdiction of the penal board.

The house postponed action on these measures yesterday on the request of representatives who asked that copies of the bills be prepared. The house will vote on the bills already passed by the senate.

POSTAL BUSINESS UP.

MOULTREE, Ga., Feb. 6.—Postal receipts here in January registered an increase of 18.47 per cent over the same month a year ago, post office officials report. Total receipts for the month were $4,432.61 compared with $3,741.40 for January, 1940.

SAYS

Betty Hammond To Marry In Prize-Winning Bridal Gown

• • • WHEN A NOTED Kentucky belle and beauty, Henrietta Ormsby Miller, became the bride of Charles Henry Mantle at a ceremony in Louisville just before the War Between the States, she wore a wedding gown of breath-taking loveliness. The dress, along with the high, laced satin boots worn with it, has been cherished by members of her family throughout the years. However, it has never been worn by any other brides, since it would have had to have numerous alterations. But now, by a coincidence, it so happens that Mrs. Mantle's granddaughter, Betty Hammond, wears the identical size dress and shoe. And she it is who will be the first member of the family to wear the heirlooms as a bride since that other wedding long ago.

Betty, you know, will wed Ewing Miles at an important ceremony to take place in the spring, the couple's engagement having been announced last Sunday. And when she dons the gown and shoes for her marriage it will be for the second time, for, you will recall, she wore them to the Junior League's memorable "Gone With the Wind" ball and captured first prize for the most authentic costume.

The gown, which is fashioned of ivory-tinted satin, features a drop-shoulder effect with real lace forming the interesting double sleeves. The crinoline-lined skirt is posed over a small hoop and has a slight train. Other than the lace on the sleeves, the dress is self-trimmed and is fasttened down the back with tiny satin-covered buttons. Another touch of sentiment attached to Betty's wedding attire will be provided by the beautiful seed-pearl necklace and matching brooch she will wear. These, too, belonged to her great-grandmother and were sent her for the nuptials by her aunt, Miss Clara Mantle Biles, of Louisville, who now owns these valuable heirlooms.

Betty and her fiancé have chosen April 16 as the date for their nuptials, which will be solemnized at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at St. Luke's Episcopal church, with Rev. John Moore Walker officiating.

The pretty bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, Charles Sydney Hammond, and Griggs Shaefer Jr. will act as best man for the groom-elect.

Martha Blacklock has been chosen as maid of honor and the heavy of bridesmaids includes Mimi Pappeneimer, Helen Jones, Janet Allcorn, Emily Anderson, Mary Jane Campbell and Gladys Randall. Acting as the junior bridesmaid will be little Jane Campbell.

Marvin McClatchey, Alex Windsor, of Augusta; Jack Ewing, Owen Perry Jr., Wharton Mitchell and John L. Tye III will be the usher-groomsman.

Following the ceremony Betty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, will entertain at a reception at their home on Golf circle for the members of the bridal party, the families and out-of-town guests.

The wedding will be preceded by a whirl of social affairs, but since a good many of Betty's friends are off at school, she plans to wait until the spring holidays for most of the parties to take place.

• • • WHEN WORK on the Piedmont Driving Club swimming pool began yesterday, news was immediately forthcoming that it would be formally opened May 27. News also came to the effect that the pool's "debut" would coincide with the annual spring opening which takes place on the same date. No affair of the season's social calendar is more eagerly anticipated or gives promise of greater brilliance than the summer opening, and this year, with the completion of the greatly enlarged swimming pool, the date will no doubt be a red letter day for club members.

Work on the pool now under way will result in the latest and most up-to-date improvements. A new circulation system will be installed, as well as submarine lights which will replace the present overhead lights. Another improvement which will serve as a welcome safety feature will be the lanes for swimmers, each lane to be laid in contrasting tile on the floor of the pool.

Aquatic stars among the club membership will dive from new boards, which will be of regulation size and will extend from new diving towers. The pool is the mecca for swimming enthusiasts each day during the season, while the spacious lawn fringing the sides is a favorite gathering place for club mem-

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Mozley, of Lithia Springs, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently at a reception at their home. The couple was married January 19, 1891. Their children are Mrs. C. C. Hendrick, Mrs. W. W. Strickland, Mrs. O. M. Harper, Mrs. H. T. Butler, Miss Sudie Mozley, Mrs. A. L. Turner, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Eddie Mozley and Alber Mozley, of Douglasville.

Miss Lawless Named Sponsor For Winter Frolics

Signal honor has been paid Miss Jane Lawless, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lawless, and popular member of the sub-deb contingent, who has been chosen sponsor of the Kappa Alpha fraternity at Emory University for the winter frolics. The frolics, which are to be held for the first time this year, will take place February 28 and March 1, and will feature a gala program of festivities.

Each fraternity on the Emory campus will choose a sponsor, a queen to be selected from the group of representative belles. Sponsors will be introduced at a colorful pageant on February 28, after which guests will vote for their choice to bear the title of queen.

At a tea dance to be held the following afternoon, the queen will be selected from the trio of belles receiving the largest number of votes.

Billy Fort, of Columbus, is the president of the K. A. fraternity at Emory.

A. Z. A. Banquet.

A. Z. A. chapters, No. 134 and No. 357, will celebrate the winning of the Alexander Triest trophy for having the most representative and best all-round chapter, by a date victory dance and banquet, at 7 o'clock Sunday evening at the Mayfair Club.

Among those who will be present are Mac Beerman, Byron Cohen, Bob Ney, Maurice Spector, Misses Helen Bizinsky, Sylvia Piasnick, Mary Cwi and Shirley Goldstein.

• • • GLAMOROUS Martha Frost is among the popular belles attending Junior Week at Cornell University, where the festivities began yesterday and will continue through Saturday. The former Atlantan, who now resides in New York, lists an enviable number of friends here who take the keenest interest in her activities.

Martha, you know, was to have been one of our debutantes this year, but decided on an interesting career instead. The result was that last fall she went to New York, where she is now in constant demand by a number of famous commercial artists and photographers as a model. In spite of being "busy as a bee," she did manage to come home for the Christmas holidays.

While at Cornell she is the guest of Julio Cadenas, of Havana, Cuba, and is staying at the Alpha Delta Phi house and will be in attendance at the ice carnival this afternoon and at the junior prom this evening. Other features of entertainment will be a musical comedy, a dramatic play and the traditional basketball game with Pennsylvania.

This year the theme of Junior Week is "Every Girl a Queen," a slogan of which the beautiful Martha is certainly a personification.

• • • MRS. CARL A. BARRETT and her son, Bailey Barrett, of Garden Hills, are among the throngs of extra players appearing in "The Passion Play" at the city auditorium.

Mrs. Barrett thus explains her desire to take even a minor part in the great drama. "Since childhood, my imagination has been captured by the sheer beauty of the greatest of all dramas. I have never lost an opportunity to witness this drama whenever possible. Having seen the poignant performance of this man, Josef Meier, I wanted a closer view of the man himself. "It is a revelation! Amazing how this man walks about among the players behind the scenes and affects them so keenly. Day after day, and night after night, the crowds in the wings watch his every movement and strain to catch every word. There may be whisperings when the Christus is not upon the stage. But the moment he appears reverent silence falls over the crowd of players and even the principals of the cast.

"When the Christus is lashed and when carrying the heavy cross, many of the women standing in the wings weep. And when the Christus is upon the cross, there is scarcely a dry eye among the hushed players. My young son is equally impressed by the performance of Mr. Meier and by the man himself."

• • • GLIMPSED HERE and there: Clifton Webb leading Ernest, his beautiful black French poodle, through the lobby at the Georgian Terrace, and telling friends that the dog accompanies him to every performance of "The Man Who Came to Dinner." His mother, Mrs. Mahelle Webb, holding for ziti-ques on Peachtree street to use in their home in Greenwich, Conn. They own a gray parrot named "Goo Goo," who has 300 words in his vocabulary, and so perfectly imitates their voices that they cannot tell which one is speaking.

Betrothed Pair Feted.

Among enjoyable affairs of last evening was the buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. West at their home on Inman Circle for Miss Sarah Johnson and her fiancé, George Linney, whose marriage will take place February 22 in Washington, Ga.

A profusion of spring flowers was used as the decorations throughout the home, the bridal motif of green and white being carried out in the dining room.

The hosts were assisted in entertaining by their daughters, Misses Sarah Dean and Edith Adair West, and by Miss Janyne Green and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Watson.

Mrs. Jessie Lee Ward Weds
Eugene Cogburn in Marietta

MARIETTA, Ga., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Jessie Lee Ward will be married Friday morning at 10 o'clock to Eugene Davis Cogburn at the Methodist parsonage, Rev. B. C. Gamble reading the marriage lines in the presence of the immediate families.

The blond beauty of the bride will be enhanced by her three-piece ensemble of ciel blue wool, worn with felt hat of the same shade and blue shoes. Her accessories will be beige and she will have a shoulder spray of orchids.

The bride-elect is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lynn and her brother is Wayne Lynn, a student at Georgia Tech. She attended the University of Georgia after graduating from Marietta High school, and was a member of the Kappa Delta sorority. She is a member of the Marietta Cotillion Club and was an officer in the organization.

Mr. Cogburn is the son of Mrs. John C. Cogburn and the late Mr. Cogburn. He graduated from Marietta High school and attended Young Harris College and the University of Georgia. The groom-elect is connected with Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, of Danville, Va., with headquarters in Atlanta.

After the ceremony the bride and groom will leave for a honeymoon in the Carolinas and on their return will have an apartment with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cogburn on Washington avenue.

Miss Geissler Feted
By Miss Harris.

An interesting affair of yesterday was the luncheon at which Miss Dorothy Harris was hostess at the Atlanta Athletic Club honoring Miss Rannie Geissler, lovely bride-elect of February 15.

Miss Geissler will become the bride of Roy Kling at a ceremony taking place at the Cathedral of St. Philip at high noon.

Mrs. Arthur Harris assisted her daughter in entertaining. Forming the centerpiece for the table was a crystal vase containing an artistic arrangement of delphinium and red and white carnations.

MISS MARY SUE HALL.

Miss Mary Sue Hall To Wed
W. J. Hayes on Saturday

Widespread interest centers in the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Hickin A. Hall of the engagement and plans for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Sue Hall, to William James Hayes, of Wilmington, N. C. The couple's wedding will be an event taking place at 7 o'clock at the Kirkwood Baptist church. Dr. K. Owen White will officiate.

A program of nuptial music will be presented by Roy Turner, vocalist, and Forrest Perrin, organist.

Miss Hall will be given in marriage by her father and James W. Hall, brother of the bride-to-be, will act as best man for Mr. Hickin.

Mrs. L. A. Evans will be the matron of honor and Miss Margaret Hall will be her sister's maid of honor. Acting as bridesmaids will be Misses Thelma Sorrow, May Pinnell, Sara Adams and Betty McKern.

The usher-groomsman will include Carl Dacus, Joe McKinney, J. T. Tucker, Calvin Grainger and Luke Evans.

The bride-elect received her education in the Atlanta schools, having graduated from Commercial High school and later attended the University of Georgia Evening College. She is a member of Iota chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, international sorority, and also of the U. S. Club.

Her mother is the former Miss Susie Tucker, of Dacula, Ga., and Miami, Fla., daughter of the late William Glenn Tucker and Mary Frances Davenport, of Gwinnett county. Her paternal grandparents were the late Dr. James Polk Hall and Nettie Winchester, of Columbus. Miss Hall is the sister of Miss Margaret Hall and James W. Hall, of Chapel Hill, N. C. and Atlanta.

The groom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haygood Hayes, of Wilmington, N. C. He received his B. S. degree in electrical engineering from North Carolina State College in 1933 and is now connected with the Tide Water Power Company, of Wilmington, N. C. Mr. Hayes is a member of the Wilmington Civilian Club and also the Wilmington Engineers' Club.

Mrs. Hayes' mother is the former Miss Frances Caroline Carr, of Wilmington. His only sister is Miss Frances Hayes, of Wilmington.

A number of interesting parties are being planned in honor of the bride-elect, among them being the miscellaneous shower at which Mrs. C. P. Whaley will entertain this evening at her home on Hillcrest avenue.

Wednesday, Miss Sara Adams and Miss Thelma Sorrow will entertain for the bride-elect at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the former on Alston drive, and on Thursday Miss Hall will be honored at the lingerie shower to be given by Miss Mary Pinnell.

Mrs. Hickin A. Hall will be hostess Friday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at the trousseau tea at her home on Hillcrest avenue for her daughter, and that evening a buffet supper will be given in honor of the couple, following the rehearsal for their wedding.

For Miss Landrum
And Miss Krupp.

Mrs. L. T. Landrum entertained last evening in honor of the fifteenth birthday of her daughter, Sara, who shared honors with Miss Mary Emma Krupp, who will leave shortly to make her home in Columbus.

A buffet supper was served and the Valentine motif was beautifully carried out.

In addition to Misses Landrum and Krupp were Misses Carolyn O'Neil, Betty North and Charlotte Martin, Duff Sutton, Sidney Eberhart, Veazy LeCraw, Drew Fuller and Jack Landrum.

Grimes-TeBow
Plans Revealed

The marriage of Miss Billie Anne Grimes and Dorsey LeRoy TeBow will take place on February 13, at 6 o'clock in the evening at the Gordon Street Baptist church, Rev. Thomas F. Harvey to officiate at the ceremony. T. Ralph Grimes, father of the bride-elect, will give her in marriage.

Miss Grimes has chosen as her maid of honor Miss Virginia Durham, who will be her only attendant. Morton Limbo will be best man for Mr. TeBow, and ushers will include Dowdy W. Grimes, W. T. Grimes Jr., Mark G. Johnston Jr. and Ed Johnston. The music will be presented by Mrs. Robert Price, organist, and Mrs. Readie Ashurst, soloist. Mrs. Ashurst was soloist 21 years ago at the wedding of the bride-elect's parents.

Following the ceremony the parents of the future bride will entertain at a reception at their home for the immediate families and the wedding party. Misses Vivian and Beverly Pierce, cousins of the bride-elect, will assist in serving.

Following the rehearsal for the

Miss Smith Gives Dance at Home

An interesting affair of this evening will be the dance to be given by Miss Dorothy Anne Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. De Ford Smith, at her home on Rumson road.

Spring flowers will be used for decorations. The hostess will be assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Smith; her sister, Miss Janet Smith, and Misses Henrietta Reid, Jane Cowart and Julia Leonard.

Yesterday Mrs. Clarence S. Pierce, aunt of the bride-elect, complimented the latter at a linen and lingerie shower at her home on East Lake drive.

Miss Virginia Durham will entertain Friday for Miss Grimes at a shower.

Mesdames Z. W. Wiley, Harry L. Truitt and W. T. Grimes entertained recently at a kitchen shower at the Wiley home on Johnson road.

Chi Phis of Emory To Give Annual Dance This Evening

The Chi Phi fraternity, of Emory University, will entertain at its annual formal dance this evening at the Piedmont Driving Club, the brilliant occasion to be featured by the introduction of the fraternity sponsor, Miss Louella Stone. Walter Beckham, president of the chapter, will present Miss Stone. At 7 o'clock the members of the chapter and an equal number of young ladies will assemble for dinner at the club, dancing to follow at 9 o'clock.

The Driving Club ballroom will be decorated for the dance in the traditional colors of scarlet and royal blue. Topping the tall white columns which range the length of the room will be large old English lanterns caught with clusters of red and blue cellophane balls. Suspended from the arches connecting the columns will be huge balls of red and blue cellophane. The ceiling will be canopied with spiral cellophane in the chosen colors, and blue and red spotlights focused upon the dancers will create a novel and colorful effect.

Guests will be seated for dinner at tables arranged for groups of 14. The tables will have as centerpieces low plateaux of red carnations and blue gypsophila arranged on mirrored plaques and flanked by candelabra holding blue and red tapers. The carnations will be made into hair ornaments for the young ladies present and into boutonnières for the gentlemen.

The officers of the fraternity include Walter Beckham, Milton Edgerton, Glenville A. Giddings, Henley Sturgess and Newton Jones. The chaperones will include Mrs. Pearl F. Hyde, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Dean, E. H. Reese, Dean and Mrs. J. H. Purks Jr., Dr. and Mrs. John Venable, Dean and Mrs. H. P. Miller, Dr. and Mrs. Goodrich White, Dr. and Mrs. J. Mrs. Parker To Fete D. A. R. Juniors.

Mrs. Spotswood Parker entertains the junior membership committee of the Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., at 2:30 o'clock at her home, 340 South Woodward way. A color scheme of red-and-white carrying out both the valentine and patriotic themes will be used.

Mrs. Ben Hines and Mrs. V. F. Cooper will act as co-hostesses. Miss Sarah Hoshall, acting chairman of the group in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Edmund Walthall, will introduce W. H. Jones, of Augusta, who will give a patriotic address. Mr. Jones represents Richmond county in the state legislature and is a graduate of Emory Law school.

Mrs. Reuben Garland, state chairman of the junior membership committee, will issue an invitation to the juniors to attend the state D. A. R. conference to be held in Griffin March 26-28. Junior reports at this convention will be given at the banquet honoring Mrs. W. Harrison Hightower, vice president general.

Juniors are also invited to attend the annual Martha Washington luncheon given at Craigie House by the Atlanta chapter, and the George Washington party given this month by the junior group for the Dolly Madison Society, C. A. R.

Directly affiliated with the National Defense program is the work being done at Red Cross headquarters in charge of Mrs. Ben Hines. Mrs. Edmund Daub was recently made a first lieutenant in the Red Cross Motor Corps Unit. Also serving in the unit are Mesdames Furman Smith, Spotswood Parker, and Martin Myers. Miss Sarah Hoshall recently entertained the Red Cross committee and officers of the junior group with a sewing circle at her home on Springdale road, where work was done on layettes and knitted garments. Mesdames Thomas L. Hoshall Jr., Ben Hines, Jules Felton and Reuben Garland are planning other home sewing sessions in the near future.

Mrs. Parker, membership chairman, will introduce one new associate member at the meeting Monday, Mrs. Carson Smith from the LaGrange chapter, and the following prospective members with papers in Washington: Mesdames M. L. Jones, A. J. Beck, Richard Harris, Walker Jernigan, William Bowers Jr., Charles Doughtie, William Bugg, E. G. Twitty, Allen Thatcher and Asbury Greene. Visitors will include Mesdames Mary Harrison, Ann Rauchenberg, Lucy Rauchenberg, Anne Daughtry and Mesdames J. R. Snyp and Arthur Akers.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Observe Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Martin held open house Sunday afternoon at their home on Sylvan road in celebration of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Martin received her guests wearing a powder blue lace and crepe dress with a shoulder spray of ruby roses.

The dining table was overlaid with a handsome battenberg cloth, a gift from Mr. Martin to his wife at the time of their marriage. A large red valentine heart formed the centerpiece on which stood a silver flower container filled with 40 ruby colored carnations.

Misses Ida Shannon, Dorothy Martin and Gene Ellison, nieces of the couple, presided at the punch bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin were assisted in entertaining by their daughter, Miss Marion Martin, and Mesdames M. E. Jordan, of New York city; Harriet Pierce, A. S. Crumley, Norman Sewell and Ernest Shannon. Mesdames C. W. Stubblebine and Ed Moss kept the guest book.

Mr. Martin has played an active part in the civic life of the city, having been connected with the city of Atlanta for over 36 years. Mrs. Martin enjoys an active life in P.-T. A. and religious circles.

About 150 friends called to felicitate the couple during the afternoon.

Hadassah Group To Meet Monday.

The Business and Professional Division of Hadassah meets at the Henry Grady hotel on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Preceding the regular meeting, the "Survey Course on Hadassah Projects" will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

A special feature will be an address on "Woman's Responsibility to Government," by Miss Christine Smith, director of the Atlanta League of Women Voters. Miss Lillie Bleich, program chairman, has announced that a piano selection will be presented by Dr. Robert Scharf.

Miss Bess Lutsky, chairman of the division, has announced that the annual fund-raising project will be held during the week of February 16-22 in the form of a chain bridge, at which members of the group will be hostesses. The following girls have already volunteered to act as hostesses: Misses Rose Greenberg, Rose Cherkas, Sarah Gershon, Linda Vada, Pearl Cohen, Lillian Reisman, Helen Seff, Mildred Lebos, Ida Mae Goldstein, and Mesdames E. Sablin, Rose Morris, Nathan Bach, Harry Wolfe, Herman Miles, D. Gersh, Philip Schwartz, and Mrs. L. Heller, of Thomaston, Ga. Reservations may be made by contacting the girls listed above, or by calling Mrs. Rose Morris, chairman of fund-raising.

Auxiliary To Meet.

The Fifth District Pharmaceutical Association, Women's Auxiliary, will meet Monday at 2:30 at the new Coca-Cola Bottling Company, 864 Spring street. At the conclusion of the business meeting a tour of the bottling plant and the showing of a color moving picture made in Hollywood will provide a program.

I RECOMMEND THE NEW "ANTI-SNEEZE" RINSO TO WOMEN WHO SUFFER FROM "WASHDAY HAY-FEVER." RINSO DOESN'T CAUSE CLOUDS OF SNEEZY "SOAP-DUST" says Katharine Baldridge, famous home-making expert

I HIGHLY recommend the New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso to women who suffer from "washday hay-fever" due to "soap-dust". I tell them that the New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso is 98% free of the "soap-dust" that causes sneezing. I show my audiences how the New Rinso soaks clothes dazzling white without hard scrubbing or boiling; how it helps keep colors lovely and fresh. I urge them to use the New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso for economical, speedy dishwashing, and it's so easy on the hands.

New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso saves time...saves work...saves money

Jack Oliver Succumbs at Valdosta Home

Father of Famous Golfing Family Dies Suddenly at 59.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 6.—W. M. (Jack) Oliver Sr., widely known and popular over Georgia and the south as the father of the "golfing Oliver family," died suddenly at his North Patterson street home here this afternoon.

Several weeks ago Mr. Oliver went to Nashville, Tenn., to visit his son Robert who is engaged in business there and while in Nashville he underwent special treatment.

After remaining in Nashville under the care of a physician for two weeks or more, Mr. Oliver returned to his home here last week.

For more than a quarter of a century Mr. Oliver was engaged in the mercantile business here. He had retired.

Besides his active mercantile and business life, he was an enthusiastic sportsman and gave to high school athletics outstanding support and encouragement, and was prominent among the backers and developers of organized baseball in Valdosta and south Georgia.

CIVIC LEADER.
Mr. Oliver confined his activities to these interests, being equally as vigorous in all civic work.

Bob Bags Birdies Outdoorsman Bob Jones shot a couple of birdies this past week on a stand near Albany, Ga. Assuredly, it is not news for Golfer Bob Jones to bag a couple of birdies, but this is another story.

Outdoorsman Bob Jones bagged birdies weighing 12 and 18 pounds. Both were gobblers.

He was as thrilled, friends related, as if he had just come in with a 66 in a competitive round of golf.

The Grand Slam king of golf made his first grand slam in the field. He had never bagged the limit of the warty bronze turkey, smartest game bird of the field, before.

In fact, only once before had Jones ever shot a turkey. About three years ago, he recalled yesterday, he got one. And he said it was a thrill comparable with any thrill the world of sport offers.

Outdoorsman Jones had reverted to his usual sporting role yesterday. He was found in a locker room at East Lake preparing for a round of golf.

But any birdie he might have shot on the East Lake course yesterday assuredly is an anti-climax.

Player's Player The story behind the story of Frankie Sinkwich's return to the Georgia squad is that he is a ball player's ball player. No denying it.

Sinkwich would never have got back on the Georgia squad if the players hadn't wanted him back. They voted him back.

There is one thing that can always be said in fairness to the star halfback. Nothing connected with his football playing has gone to his head. He is a hard worker, one of the most conscientious members of the squad. That's why there wasn't any hesitation on the part of the boys in voting him back.

And no one could ever accuse Sinkwich of being a one-side ball player. There are few better defensive backs than he is. And he can—and does—throw a nifty block when called upon.

It wasn't necessary for anyone to swallow pride in allowing Sinkwich to don his Red and Black football suit again. The boys simply wanted him back. So did the coaches. But to their everlasting credit, they made no effort to bring it to pass.

In Short Visitor: "In considering a successor for LAYDEN at Notre Dame, athletic officials could do a lot worse than think of Jack MEAGHER, of Auburn. . . . His teams probably come closer than any others in following the Notre Dame pattern of Knute ROCKNE. . . . And Meagher's record is not bad. . . . Secretly Jack ABEL, who fought champions Benny LEONARD and Jack BRITTON, would not recommend professional fighting as a career. . . . Because so few can ever hope to reach the top. . . . Literally millions have tried around the world, but only eight at a time ever become world champions. . . . And some of these, as witness Joe LOUIS, hold the titles for years. . . . Abel thinks now is a good time for a capable promoter to revive the game on a high plane here. . . . Abel points out only the best cards would prove profitable, as it is easier to name the great fighters Atlanta has seen than those that haven't been here. . . . Names like Jess WILLARD, Jack DEMPSEY, Max SCHMELING, Young STRIBLING, Benny LEONARD, Jack BRITTON, Abe ATTELL, Mike O'DOWD, Tiger FLOWERS, Pete HERMAN, etc. . . . Can't fool Atlanta fans about fighters. . . . Scotty WESTON was in and out of Atlanta the other day. . . . Scotty played on the CUMBERLAND team which Tech beat, 22 to 0, and later he played with the CENTRE team when Tech beat the great Praying Colonels at Grant Field. . . . Quick, Elmer, a flask: Spec TOWNS' brother, PRESTON, six foot six inches tall, is playing center on the unbeaten Elon College basketball team and scoring around 20 points a game! . . . The Sporting News, the baseball players' Bible, devotes a lot of space, in pictures and story, to the recent Georgia quail hunting expedition of George TRAUTMAN, president of the American Association, and Trammell SCOTT, president of the Southern League.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
It's been a sellout for weeks but they'll fight their way to the rafters of Woodruff Hall in Athens tonight when Elmer Lampe pits his veteran Georgia five against Roy Mundorff's sophomore Georgia Techs in the first battle of the season between two of the bitterest athletic rivals in the country.

The game will start at 8 o'clock (E. S. T.) and the Bulldogs will take the floor with one idea in mind—to make it five straight over the Jackets against no defeats since Lampe has been directing the activities of the cage outfit.

On the other hand, the Yellow Jackets feel they have their best chance in years to whip the Lampe jinx and will be battling from start to finish.

The stage is set, the actors ready and when Mundorff's fast-breaking yearlings get entangled in the hair of Lampe's "trick shot" artist anything can happen and probably will.

These bitter rivals will play their second and last scheduled game this year in Atlanta on February 20.

Both the Jackets and Bulldogs take to the floor with a good offense is the best defense. Both clubs have high-scoring records but neither has been too successful in holding opponents down.

41-POINT AVERAGE.
Tech, with a won seven-lost four record, has averaged 44 points a game but has been able to hold opponents to only 43 points. The Bulldogs, who have won eight and lost six, also have averaged 44 points a game and have held opponents to 41 points.

However, Coach Lampe is quite pleased with the way his boys have improved their defense in their last two games.

"We have finally got out of the habit of playing 'cream puff' defense and are really going after the ball," he said. "The Jackets Bulldog boss remarked, 'Heretofore, we've been nice boys and watched while the other side took charge of things and consequently, trounced us.'"

POSCHNER IMPROVED.
Lampe also said George Poschner, Georgia's great sophomore end last fall, has finally gotten "the hang" of playing defense and is improving rapidly in his shooting.

Mundorff has finally hit upon his best five at Tech and his starting lineup will embrace two juniors, Will Johnson and Carlton Lewis, and three sophoms, Jim Hearn, Buck Stevens and Hoyt Blackwell. On the other hand, Lampe will counter with three seniors, Captain Dan Kirkland, Joe Killian and Roy Chatham; one junior, Bobby Moore, and a sophomore, Poschner.

The starting lineups:
GEORGIA: Pos. F. Killian, G. Peacher, C. Kirkland, G. Chatham, G. Moore.
GA. TECH: Pos. F. Johnson, G. Lewis, C. Stevens, G. Hearn, G. Blackwell.
Substitutes—Georgia: Forwards, Rowland, K. Kraybill, C. Hatcher, C. Rantz, Georgia Tech: Forwards, Crosby, Gardner, Center, Marshall; guards, Anderson, Burroughs.

Happy at Fordham Says Jim Crowley

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(P)—Fordham University football Coach Jimmy Crowley last night greeted reports he might succeed his "Four Horsemen" teammate, Elmer Layden, at Notre Dame as "news to me."

Crowley told more than 700 persons at the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle Athletic Association all-sports dinner:

"I have not been approached by any Notre Dame official to become head football coach at Notre Dame. I am very happy at Fordham."

The back for way the trophy to Minnesota is on figures compiled by Professor Frank C. Dickinson in rating football teams throughout the country over a 10-year period. The Gophers could have still won possession of the trophy by placing no higher than seventh in the rating in 1940 instead of first.

According to Dickinson's system, Minnesota placed first in 1934, 1936 and 1940; second in 1935; third in 1933; sixth in 1938, and eleventh in 1937.

J. P. C. Beats Union For Fifth of Year

Progressives Stave Off Late Rush by Collegians To Win, 54 to 45.

By MELVIN PAZOL.
A little college spirit goes a long way, and Union College, of Barbourville, Ky., had enough spirit to make up for any lack of basketball proficiency to keep the Progressive quintet on the run most of the way last night. The college boys finally lost out, however, 54 to 45.

Lauter's team won its fifth victory of the year, but the players had to go to top speed to stave off a determined late rush by the visitors. With Captain McFadden leading the attack from his pivot position, aided by left long-range shooting by Laswell, Union overcame a 11-point lead midway the second half and pulled to within three points of tying the score before the Lauter team staged a brilliant finish, finally hitting the basket with enough precision to pull away.

The visitors were deadly on free throws, sinking eight out of eight in the first half, with Cartwright bagging seven of these. Although they were ahead only once in the ball game, at 8-7, after six minutes had elapsed, they kept within range always. There was never more than a five-point difference in the first half.

Kuniansky went out on fouls after three and a half minutes of the second half. Ginsburg aided Union's cause by tossing one into the wrong basket while battling for the ball under his foe's goal. He made up for it with a crisp into his own goal on the next play.

With Edelman, Ginsburg and Browdy cracking down, the Progressives built up a 11-point lead at 34-23 with 11 minutes to go. Here Union showed strength, bagging five field goals while the Progressives scored but one, and the score stood 36-33, with nine minutes to go. At six minutes to go they were still behind three points, 40-37, and going strong. Two field goals put the Progressives ahead, 44-37.

With two and a half minutes left, Union was still fighting, behind, 46-43. That was all for the visitors, for Ginsburg and his mates dropped in four shots to none for Union.

Minnesota Will Receive Rockne Trophy Saturday

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 6.—(P)—Minnesota's 1940 football team, heralded as national mythical champions in the sport in addition to being the Western Conference titlist, will receive some additional honors Saturday night.

Between halves of the Illinois-Minnesota Western Conference basketball game, the gridders will be given permanent possession of the Knute Rockne memorial trophy.

The back for way the trophy to Minnesota is on figures compiled by Professor Frank C. Dickinson in rating football teams throughout the country over a 10-year period. The Gophers could have still won possession of the trophy by placing no higher than seventh in the rating in 1940 instead of first.

'Y' To Enter 25 Boxers in Gloves Meet

Earl Dixon and Roland Lee To Lead Local Array of Mitt Stars.

The Atlanta Y team will shove "25 or more" boxers through the ropes in quest of championships in the fifth annual Southeastern Golden Gloves tournament opening February 18 at the city auditorium.

Coach Tommy Phillips, former contender in the lightweight class, announced yesterday that his boys had several weeks of intensive training behind them and will begin tapering off for the event next week.

Phillips has two former champions under his tutelage. Earl Dixon, winner of the bantamweight title last year, and Roland Lee, the youngster whose sledgehammers in both hands won the same crown in 1939, will be the Y's chief threats to reach the finals.

Another dark horse, Phillips warned, is Ed Johnson, flyweight star. Johnson battered his way through a strong field last winter to annex the novice championship in his class. This year he will be competing against the cream of the south's flyweights.

Entries began coming in this week from various sections, officials of the S. E. A. A. said. Over 200 amateurs from Georgia, Florida, Alabama and the two Carolinas will fight in the four-day program here.

George Griffin, at Georgia Tech, is accepting entries. Boxers without previous tournament experience are eligible for the novice class and others will fight in the championship division.

West Fulton Five Routs Druid Hills

The West Fulton High basketball team drubbed the Druid Hills five Wednesday night, 26 to 16, on the Hillers' court. Dickey, with nine, and Dodd, with eight points, led the winners' scoring, while Thoman was high for the losers with six.

W. FULTON (28) Pos. D. Hills (16), G. Griffin (4), F. Burdell (1), H. Katz (8), C. Samples (13), Edelman (12), C. Laswell (13), Kuniansky (6), G. Leroy (2).

Jones Shoots 67, Second in Week

Bob Jones is settling down in the 60's in practice for his only tournament appearance, at the Augusta Masters in April.

He had his second 67 of the week yesterday at East Lake, shooting 32-35. After taking bogeys on the 10th and 11th holes, Jones came in with par on the back nine. He played with J. H. (Doc) Irwin, W. C. C. Caye and Robert Ingram.

Dawson Ragsdale, who was elected secretary of the West End Golf Club at the recent meeting, accepted with a big "if." . . . Dawson was married three days after the election, and he took the post provided he could get to the meetings. . . . Which showed plenty of forethought. . . . Harry Purdy Jr. shot a 72 at Adams park the other day, and his father is still wondering what makes a son win a match 7 up. . . . Purdy senior, you know, is southern amateur billiards champion. . . . He says looking for a shot when you're playing Willie Hoppe is like looking behind the eight ball for good news.

Charlie Murphy is headed for Fort Benning, where he will be a lieutenant. . . . Charlie has been active in public links circles here, and we'll warn the players at Benning now not to go out on a limb with too many strokes for him. . . . Bobby Stowe, former L. S. U. golfer and now pro at Adams Park; Charlie Edwards, West End pro; Gene Gaillard and SHARP. Tommy Barnes are getting set for the Thomasville Open February 22 and 23. . . . Several other Atlantans probably will shoot at Glen Arven. . . . There will be a pro-amateur event before the 54-hole battle gets under way. . . . It's a fine tournament.

The Public Links Association expects to raise $1,500 to send a team to the national meet at Spokane, Wash., next summer. . . . The state, county and city will be asked to contribute. . . . The Atlanta teams always get plenty of publicity, and it's worth a lot. . . . The "gold capital of the world" deserves as much. . . . Charlie Eden's class for girls' high golfers passed the 50 mark. . . . The key pro's idea was a bigger success than he anticipated, and he says there are several pupils who may go places in tournaments later.

Buck Thompson was 2 under par on one nine at the Augusta National during a recent round-robin. . . . And Dr. A. O. Lynch had a 78 to match J. B. McConnell's, and Pete Barnes, a 76 for low. . . . Incidentally, one of the foursome played 90 holes instead of 81 in two days. . . . Dr. H. W. Ridley, Dr. Lynch, Thompson and Ralph McClelland, who was in that group. . . . And we thought 81 holes was something! . . . If clubs planning invitation tournaments will send in the tentative dates, we'll be glad to print them so that conflicts may be avoided. . . . Anyhow, it sounds like a good idea.

Purples Meet Lanier Poets Here Tonight

Commercial Seeks 2d of Season Over Monroe Aggies.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.
Boys' High romped on Jordan, into a tie for the Big Seven League lead, and all over Grady court. They kicked Jordan out of first place, into third place and half way back to Columbus.

All that they did as they put on their greatest performance of the year at Grady court last night to run rough-shod over a slightly favored Jordan High quintet, which had won seven straight games. The score was 48 to 21.

The Purples, who usually start slowly, caught fire from the opening whistle to run up a 7-0 lead from which Jordan never recovered. In fact, Shorty Register's high scoring team of the Big Seven League was so helpless in the face of the great Purple defense they racked up only six points in the whole first half.

Boys' High had an 18-to-6 lead at intermission.

Johnny Doyle was the fair-haired knight who led the slaughter of the innocents as he chunked in 20 points while playing only three quarters. Slender Red Hughes took few shots at the hoop, but was good for 10 scores. Clint Castleberry, the capering court coverer, looped in eight when he tired of slipping the ball through the Columbian's defense for teammates to sink. Dixie Cohen stormed all over Jordan's would-be scorers, and Bob Gaston played a flashy floor game.

Only tireless Chase Riddle, cousin of Elmer Riddle, incensed Red hater, and Lester Ray fathomed the Purple defense for much point gathering. Riddle had 10 and Ray seven.

There is no rest for the weary nor the successful. For tonight the red-hot Purples must take on an even stancher foe, Lanier High, defending champions of the G. I. A. A., surge into town to take on the Purples at Grady court immediately after Commercial High and the Monroe Aggies clash in a league tiff at 7:30 o'clock.

The Poets are in a surly mood and out for revenge. In an early season game the Purples spoiled their record of not having lost a game on their home court in three years. Dwight Keith's gang, tougher now than they were then, are set to give the champs some more of the same.

In other games tonight Tech High tackles Columbus High in Columbus, and West Fulton invades Clarkston for a joust with the state Class B champions of last year.

Strike Stalls Seabiscuit
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—(P)—A surprise strike threat by 1,500 groomers shut down the $3,000,000 Santa Anita race track today—Seabiscuit Day.

Charging the groomers had attempted to dictate conditions under which racing could be resumed, Los Angeles Turf Club officials called off the entire day's card after a crowd of some 20,000 persons had witnessed the unveiling of a life-size bronze statue of the retired handicap king.

The announcement, greeted by boos, came about 50 minutes after the first race was to have been run. Track officials said they expected to hold the regular card tomorrow.

PROFESSOR LOCHBAUM—Here is Emil Lochbaum, Cracker right-handed pitcher, who spends his winter teaching mathematics in a New Orleans high school. But come spring, Emil will don a baseball uniform and head south with the Crackers.

Lochbaum Teaching Kids All Triangles Aren't Love Plots

Cracker Hurler Sheds Spikes for Professor's Robe in New Orleans High School.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 6.—A equals $\frac{1}{2}$ Hb. "Stee-rike three!"

These two statements, so far as the man in the street is concerned, are as far apart as Tchaikowsky's Fifth Symphony and "Beat Me Daddie Eight to the Bar" (ASCAP)—but to Emile Lochbaum they just stand for the difference between his winter and summer pastimes.

That, in a nutshell, is the yearly story of a handsome young country boy who made good in the big city.

During the winter months Lochbaum is a mathematics teacher at Jefferson High school, spending his time trying to teach youngsters that a triangle is something more than the key to the plot of a love story. And then when spring rolls around he turns in his school books for a baseball uniform of the Atlanta Crackers.

BIG HIT.
Lochbaum's first season in the Southern League came last year, and he proved to be a big hit up Georgia way. His hurling was very promising and he showed that hustle which makes good ballplayers good. Now he's ready for his second year in the class A-1 loop—and it's liable to take all of his mathematics ability to compile his number of wins at the end of the season.

It seems that Emile is a very versatile young man. In school he played baseball, as do most lads these days—but he was extremely good at the sport. And when the time came for him to get a job, he joined the faculty of Jefferson High school under Principal J. C. Fairchild as a coach and teacher.

Lochbaum's success in those fields warranted his remaining in them for the rest of his life. But it seemed that the baseball bug which bit the handsome youngster wasn't going to be bothered by a comfortable and promising job.

FIRST SEASON.
So the professor took to the diamond, and in 1937 he played half a season with Abbeville in the Evangeline League. He did pretty well there, but not so much so that he had the desire to return to the Tobasco circuit. That's why instead of playing professional baseball in 1938, he spent all of his time in the spring on his job and then passed away the summer knocking about with local semi-pro teams.

But that bug wasn't to be denied and in 1938 he returned to baseball as a business (although still remaining on the Jefferson faculty) and played the full season with Savannah of the South Atlantic League. He wasn't to regret that action, either, for at the end of the season, when the records were compiled he ranked fourth in the loop among the hurlers.

In 231 innings of 34 games Lochbaum had won 15 games and lost 12 for a .556 mark. Of the batters to face him, 125 fanned. Only 63 got bases on balls, and 239 got hits, and with the bat the local boy didn't do badly. He clipped out a .326 mark for the season.

That showing brought him up to

4 High School Coaches Hired By Ohio State

Seven Assistants Given Jobs, Including Brown's Old Staff.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 6.—(P)—Four high school men were among seven assistants hired by Ohio State University today to aid Football Coach Paul Brown, who three weeks ago jumped from a scholastic position to the collegiate big time.

Three of them were Brown's chief assistants at Massillon (Ohio) High school, where championship teams won him a reputation as a "miracle mentor."

Ohio State, the nation's fifth largest university, is perhaps the only major school with a football staff dominated by high school men. Five of Ohio State's eight posts are now held by coaches fresh from scholastic competition. Brown is the first high school mentor to win a Western Conference head coach berth since Illinois hired the veteran Bob Zuppke.

Here's Brown's staff: C. C. Widdoes, backfield coach; Paul Bixler, ends; Fritz Mackey, tackles; Hugh McGranahan, guards; Eddie Bickie, varsity reserves; Trevor Rees, freshman coach, and Fred Heisler, assistant freshman coach.

Widdoes, McGranahan, and Heisler were with Brown at Massillon and Rees, former Ohio State star end, came from Shaw High at East Cleveland (Ohio). Bixler has been at Colgate. Mackey and Bickie are holdovers from the regime of Francis A. Schmidt, who resigned December 16 along with his entire staff.

PRO-FOOTBALL RUMORS.
Why pity poor Carl Storck, who's only the president of the League? . . . He's better off than Elmer, for he knows where he stands.

Bowling News

The Rosslyn (Va.) World's Champion women's bowling team triumphed over two topflight Atlanta teams in both the afternoon and evening contests on the downtown alleys Thursday, with Lucy Rose and Evelyn Traber grabbing high-scoring honors for the invaders and locals.

Miss Rose, of Rosslyn, had a big 161 in the opening game of the afternoon match and finished with the top three game series of 373 and counted 306 for top-scoring honors in the evening contest.

Miss Traber, of Atlanta, thrilled the spectators as she turned in games of 127, 118 and 119 for the runner-up series of 364 as she bowled in the afternoon match, having a triple strike in the first game.

The Rosslyn team had games of 372, 357, 330 for a three-game series of 1,059 in the afternoon contest to offset the 380, 352 and 486 that brought the Atlantans' total to 1,618, which was consistently over their average.

In the evening match, the Rosslyn stars had a total of 1,640 with scores of 325, 463 and 852 as they bested the series of 1,569 of the Blik's Bowling Center five as they bowled games of 301, 355 and 483.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6.—(P)—C. J. Nunn, of Cleveland, caught a sailfish measuring 8 feet 3 1/2 inches yesterday to take the lead in the annual silver sailfish derby. J. Tremayne, of Detroit, went ahead in the division combining length and weight, with a 66-pound catch 7 feet 10 inches long.

the fast Southern Association early in the 1940 season, and he did right well with Atlanta for the rest of the summer, finishing among the leaders. He won 15 games and lost eight for a .652 percentage. He hurled for 202 innings and gave up 207 hits and 99 runs against 79 strikeouts. At bat he didn't do so well, ending up with .164, but that was his first season in the bigger loop.

DEVIL'S WORK

Jean Goes to Her Room After Fencing With Vivian. He Drops to the Floor Dead

SYNOPSIS. Dazzled by Vivian Forrest's wealth and love-making, Jean Selden marries him, an explorer. She soon learns Vivian is stubbornly imperious and makes no effort to keep from her various love affairs. But he is very proud of his beautiful wife and is extremely jealous. His invitation to Sayre to a house party at palatial Forrest Fell on Long Island puzzles his half-brother, Austin. Other guests are Anne Fraser, Suzy Kirk and Jeter Haskell. All are fencing enthusiasts and are practicing for a club tournament. Vivian and Jean are experts and he insists upon a daily 15-minute practice period with her. Even baby Florine comes in for his jealousy—he had wanted a boy—and he takes delight in calling Jean away from the nursery to fence with him. Sayre's arrival makes Jean realize that Vivian is not dead but that she reminds herself she is Vivian's wife. Vivian surrounds her by bringing a guest Esmeralda Fane, a pretty, blond movie actress, and insisting that she be seated at the head of the table opposite him and given Florine's choice nursery room. Brazenly, Fane tells Jean it is nice that they share the love of such a wonderful man. Vivian, for his part, tells her she must behave better or return to New York, but winds up by making violent love to her, and she asks if he is going to keep his promise to divorce Jean and marry her, he says this is impossible now. Jean's kind mind enables her to handle a difficult situation well. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IX. Jean summoned Mimi again, and dressed for dinner, with perfect calmness. She wore a new gown of sheerest silk chiffon, of an exquisite turquoise blue. The several skirts, one above the other, of various lengths, in the moonlight, and the bodice was a low berth of the material, which pinioned her arms to her sides as it left her entire neck and shoulders bare. She had never looked more beautiful, and she showed a new, proud air, which gave her a queenly effect. The dinner was as usual, save that a new element was at work. Its effect was so vague, so subtle, that it was not recognized at first as an elevation of Esmeralda's position. Yet that soon became evident, for Vivian's consummate art made him produce the effects he wanted, and no one was left ignorant of the new regime.

After dinner, Jean was never in the room with the other two, and after an evening of gay amusement, she slipped away upstairs, and did not go down again. Wearing with her racing thoughts and her efforts to think what to do, she fell asleep from sheer exhaustion, and was awakened by a tap at the door. She was so unusual, she sprang to open it, and saw the imperturbable face of Vivian's new valet, who told her that Mr. Forrest begged she would come to his study for a few minutes' fencing.

This was no new experience, and telling the man she would go in a moment, she closed the door and put on her fencing uniform. Her costume was of soft white wool, short pleated skirt and carefully fitted jacket.

She went to the study and thought at first there would be no one there but her husband, until she saw two or three shadowy forms in the alcoves. Then came Austin, who was in the habit of putting some drops in Vivian's eyes every night at the orders of an oculist. Jean watched him, ready to begin fencing as soon as Austin finished his ministrations. With a resounding thwack on Vivian's back, Austin left the room. Husband and wife faced each other. It was a strange picture, for not once did they smile or speak, except as was necessary to their work.

There were clever thrusts and parries, beautiful lunges and recoveries. They were well matched; what Vivian gained by strength, Jean made up for by skill. As they fenced, Jean became conscious of more people in the room. Austin had returned, Sayre was hovering in the doorway, and Suzy, who had been flirting with Haskell on a sofa in the shadows of some curtains, came out into the open and admiringly watched the play of the foils.

The principals heeded not their audience; they were not trying to win; they were just practicing hard on one or two points. And, for she had been watching the clock, Jean saw that the 15 minutes that Vivian always allotted was up, and after a brilliant riposte, she waited from the room, putting her foil in its place as she passed the rack.

She said no word to her husband or to any one else; she just went off with a careless air and a steady step. Forrest looked after her, foil in the air, and then began to tremble, to waver on his feet, and finally to slump down in a quivering heap.

In a moment, Esmeralda was at his side, stooping to take his head on her knee, "forcing herself not to scream, but giving little pained sighs, as if hopeless.

No one knew where Esmeralda had come from, for she had not stood there. It would seem she came from Vivian's bedroom. She wore but one garment, a voluminous and floating nightdress of white chiffon, and now it was stained with crimson. The girl, her eyes wide with horror, rose to her feet, saying, "He's—dead!" and then fled to her own room. Austin went forward and knelt by his brother.

"Yes," he said, "yes, Vivian is dead."

Austin rose with an odd look of surprise in his eyes, as if he were more mystified than grieved. "How does this thing happen?" he said, looking from one to another. "I watched the fencing; there were no dangerous thrusts."

"Perhaps there was something wrong with Vivian," Sayre suggested, coming nearer the dead man. "You're giving him drops, aren't you?"

"Not as medicine," Austin said. "I put drops in his eyes every night. Doctor Stiles advised it. He's a great oculist, you know. He said Vivian's eyes were only bothered by the sun, and the treatment would soon cure them."

"They look all right," Sayre said, after bending down and peering into them.

"I think we must send for a doctor," Austin said, uncertainly.

Sundays at the Camps Are Usually a Day of Rest

By Capt. Gene Morgan.

"How will Sundays be spent at the camps?"

Sunday is accounted a day of rest in the training schedule during most of the draftee's Army year. Guard duty, fire prevention, kitchen police and other essential service will be performed by a fraction of the command.

There will be church services conducted by Army chaplains of various denominations, attendance at which will be voluntary. Opportunities for athletic contests other recreational activities will be provided. At camp recreation centers soldiers may receive visiting relatives and friends. Many soldiers will visit some near-by town on passes.

Later on in the training year field maneuvers will be held. In some cases these probably will curtail the usual Sunday arrangements for troops when they are simulating actual campaign conditions.

"How are a selected man's civilian legal rights preserved while he is in service?"

Persons in military service are protected by the soldiers and sailors' civil relief act of 1940, effective October 17, 1940. It contains provisions for the postponement of suits, judgments, garnishments, attachments, foreclosures, repossessions, evictions, mortgages and all statutes of limitations. The act also protects the following: Sureties, life insurance indorsers, property rights, guarantors, mining claims, mineral leases and so forth. The law will continue in effect until May, 1945.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Previous to 11:30 a. m. will likely be an exciting time, when sudden demands may be made with startling force. Plan to exercise discretion and self control, for changes and flip-flops in speech are not favored. After 11:30 a. m. favors personal advancement, sports, dealings with people of a professional nature.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Before 8:35 p. m. you can meet or feel a sympathy which will aid you to obtain a better response to your efforts. Between 8:35 a. m. and 3:49 p. m. use special care in travel, communications, trading and dealings with close friends and relatives, for you are not likely to focus your energies to your best advantage. The remainder of the day and evening favors attention to ordinary affairs, and does not especially favor new plans.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The morning hours and until 2:41 p. m. favor developments that require much activity. Benefits may be derived through correspondence, travel and general business.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Previous to 12:40 noon favors affairs in general. Keenness and alertness will be noticed in your dealings and a general attitude of harmony surrounds your transactions. After 12:40 noon be careful of sharp speech, undue aggressiveness or overexuberance.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Before 11:02 a. m. is the best part of the day, favoring property matters and matters pertaining to the land. The remainder of the day suggests sticking to routine.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day may be considered favorable, with the better part of the day previous to 3:41 p. m. An excellent time for making appointments, meetings, conferences, financial affairs and public matters.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Before 8:45 a. m. guard against unpremeditated action, rashness in travel and speech. Between 8:45 a. m. and 8:55 p. m. advancement may be made in affairs pertaining to younger people, social ideas and pleasures. An auspicious day for dealing with relatives.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Previous to 5:30 p. m. disappointments are likely to come to you by expecting too much or by a lack of preparation. After 5:30 p. m. is a favorable period for important matters that may be of interest at this time.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The period previous to 2:02 p. m. favors dealing with the public, publishing and matters that require detail. The remainder of the day will prove better by sticking to routine.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—After 8:07 a. m. is an excellent time for making definite decisions and finishing up matters that have already been started. The evening hours suggest caution in traveling and avoid sudden changes.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Before 2:41 p. m. and after 8:31 p. m. is an excellent period, especially in matters of an ordinary nature. The remainder of the afternoon and evening favors making new plans, coming to decisions, or making changes. The period past 8 p. m. favors sociability and making new contacts.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The period previous to 3:23 p. m. favors only matters of an ordinary nature. The remainder of the afternoon and evening favors making new plans, coming to decisions, or making changes. The period past 8 p. m. favors sociability and making new contacts.

Battle of Wits Staged by Glass And Lindbergh

Senator and 'Lone Eagle' Provide Drama During Aid Bill Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—One of the most dramatic episodes in the lease-lend fight was a polite battle of wits today between Colonel Lindbergh, opponent of the British aid bill and foe of war, and 83-year-old Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who would like to "shoot hell" out of the Nazis.

After hours of testimony, Glass took up the questioning of Lindbergh with the tart observation: "The prospect is now that we'll be invaded and captured before we get through talking about it."

He complained that Lindbergh seemed to believe that the security of the United States depended solely on aviation, but Lindbergh said it would be "fatal" to go into war without other well-equipped defense branches.

Concerning Lindbergh's stand for an immediate negotiated peace, Glass asked what assurances there were that Hitler would keep such a peace. Lindbergh said he wanted the United States to rely on its defensive strength, not on Hitler's promise.

Finance played a great part in war, didn't they, Glass asked at another point. Lindbergh replied that financial friends had told him 10 years ago that Japan, Italy and Germany would collapse, adding that Germany seemed to have found a way of waging war without money.

"Germany can't continue to fight without money," Glass observed. "I give way to you on financial questions," the witness replied, "but the danger seems obvious regardless of finances."

Glass recalled that President Roosevelt had said repeatedly he wanted to do nothing "to cause our boys to be sent abroad" and asked: "Do you think he's going to change his mind?"

"That is possible," the witness answered.

"Yes, I know it is," Glass drawled.

"I've listened to your testimony with a great deal of interest," Glass remarked, "but I believe like David Harum 'Do unto others what they would do unto you, but do it first.' I guess I'm about the only one I know in favor of war."

At another time, Glass asked whether Lindbergh felt he had sufficient experience abroad to qualify as an expert witness and the latter said he had merely pieced together what information he could gather.

Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, broke in to remark that "after a week in Britain, Mr. Willkie is coming back here to testify as an expert Monday."

"I don't believe either one of them is an expert," Glass said.

Westinghouse Lets Contract For Plant Here

$700,000 Structure Will Be Erected on Northside Drive.

A general contract which it is understood will involve an expenditure of approximately $700,000 for the erection of a new headquarters building and general plant for the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company was let yesterday by the Rust Engineering Company, of Birmingham, as announced by Thomas Fuller, Westinghouse's southeastern manager.

The new structure will occupy a six-acre tract bounded by Northside drive, Bishop street and the Southern railway tracks, announcement of the purchase of this site having been made in The Constitution a few weeks ago. For some time grading has been going on on the tract preparatory to building, and as this work is about complete, it is expected to begin on the structure immediately, probably requiring about seven months to complete.

It is expected to centralize all of the company's Atlanta activities in the new building, which will embrace district sales offices and warehouse, display rooms and offices of the Westinghouse Electric Supply Company and the company's X-ray and merchandising divisions.

New equipment is to be added in the service plant, which will make it possible to service large motors and transformers, as well as to assemble switchboards and industrial control apparatus.

In the place of windows in the main office section, glass blocks will be used, and this part will be air-conditioned. Special lighting will include fluorescent lamps and the structural steel frame of the building will be covered with brick exterior. Robert & Company designed the building, which will consist of three different floor levels, graduated from a three-story section to a one-story section.

The Army Has a Heart; Dog Will Join Master

CHANUTE, Kan., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Army has a heart, so 10-year-old, inconsolable Laddie will join his master—at Camp Ord, Cal. Laddie—just dog—has been on an intermittent hunger strike since Everett Scott enlisted three months ago.

Friends, fearful the animal would die, appealed to Major General Joseph W. Stilwell, Camp Ord commandant. He agreed to let Scott have his dog.

So today Laddie was put aboard a train for Kansas City, where he will go by airliner to the west coast.
